KELLY'S HANDBOOK

TO THE

Titled, Landed, and Official Classes,

CONTAINING ABOUT

TWENTY THOUSAND NAMES,

GIVES AN ALPHABETICAL LIST OF

ALL MEMBERS OF NOBLE FAMILIES, BISHOPS, PRIVY COUNCILLORS, BARONETS, MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, LORDS-LIEUTENANT, GOVERNORS OF COLONIES, KNIGHTS AND COMPANIONS OF ORDERS, DEANS, AND ARCHDEACONS, JUDGES, SERJEANTS-AT-LAW, QUEEN'S COUNSEL, ETC.
SUPERIOR OFFICERS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY,
COUNTY MAGISTRATES, AND OWNERS OF THE PRINCIPAL SEATS IN ENGLAND.

Price to Subscribers, 12s. Non-Subscribers, 14s.

The object of this Book is to include, in one general alphabetical list, all those who have any definite position, or title, from Hereditary rank, or order conferred on them by the Sovereign, or from any of the higher grades of the Military, Naval, Legal, Clerical, or Colonial Services of the State; also Deputy Lieutenants, Royal Academicians, Presidents and Vice-Presidents of Learned Societies, County Court Judges, and the larger landowners of the United Kingdom. It is to be observed that it is the only book which enables any one, by reference to a single list, to determine whether any person having a particular title exists, and if so, to discover his residence.

"This is altogether a remarkable work, and one with which we should be sorry to dispense. The introduction contains much useful matter relating to precedence, royalty, Parliament, regiments, clubs, &c., following which is the general list of names. This list is the most comprehensive ever compiled, and is a descriptive directory for the names and titles, rank and residence, and other particulars of many thousand persons whose position in the social scale is distinct and recognised."—The Queen, February 23rd, 1884.

"'Kelly's Handbook' has well-established itself as a dictionary to the names, addresses, and connections of the large number of persons included under the headings 'titled, landed, and official.'"—The Field, February 16th, 1884.

"The prefatory information will be found of great assistance to those who wish to address to persons of rank."—Court Journal. March 1st, 1884.

"Kelly's 'Handbook to the Titled, Landed and Official Classes' gives insight to a mass of social facts of a special nature, and this work is compiled both carefully and correctly, embracing the extremes of every class, with a remarkable success."—Vanity Fair. January 5th, 1884.

"As to the merits of the present volume, we can only repeat what we have said of its immediate predecessors, that it is a marvellously complete and accurate biographical memoir and address book of the notabilities of the realm."—Civil Service Gazette, Feb. 9th, 1884.

LINCOLNSHIRE.

LINCOLN is an eastern shire on the shores of the North Sea, and is the second largest county in England. The Humber lies between it and East Yorkshire on the north; on the west is Nottinghamshire; on the south-west, Leicestershire, Rutlandshire and Northamptonshire; on the south-east, beyond the Nene, are Cambridgeshire and Norfolk. The Humber, the North Sea and the Wash, form the boundary on the north and east. From north to south is 75 miles, and from east to west 45; the area is 1,777,879 acres, being next in size to Yorkshire.

Most of the county is watered by the Witham and Ancholme, Trent and their feeders: half of it is in wolds and uplands, the other half a plain almost level with spring tide height. In the west are some hills lying along the side of the Trent, but generally the land is low: the shores are likewise low and sandy, and instead of there being much trade and shipping, as is to be looked for in a shire near the sea, Lincolnshire is best known for its grazing, for which its pasture lands make it one of the richest shires in England, and its arable land is highly farmed.

The Isle of Axholme is to the north-west, between the Trent and the Don; it comprises a district about 19 miles in length and 9 broad, containing 50,000 acres of highly productive land.

Most of the land to the south-east of Lincoln, and likewise the Isle of Axholme and the vale of Ancholme in the north, is of a uniform level: the drainage works are very extensive, chiefly connected with the Witham and Trent.

Owing to the drainage of the land, many former sources of wealth have lessened: geese were formerly bred, and their quills and feathers plucked, and there are still some hundreds reared annually in the south-east fen district. Rabbit-warrens, which used to abound in the sands of the wolds, have been broken up. The taking of wild fowl has very much fallen off; there used to be heronries and decoys; among the wild fowls are swans, geese, ducks, widgeons, teal, ruffs, shovellers, pewits, plovers, terns, grebes, spoonbills, storks, cranes, herons, oyster catchers, rails, coots, moorhens, and godwits, besides pheasants, partridges, woodcocks and snipes. The fen drains contain much fish, including pike, perch, carp, chub, roach, dace, tench, bream, barbel and eels.

The wolds have been brought under tillage; much corn is raised, and in the north-west district, near Epworth and Crowle, flax, locally called by the name of "line," from the latin linum, is cultivated: Lincolnshire is also rich in aquatic and marsh plants. The feeding of fat beasts for London and the great towns is greatly followed; there are about a million and a quarter of sheep, from which large quantities of long wool is clipped yearly: a great sheep fair is held at Corby in October. Many horses are bred in the county, and at Horncastle is held one of the greatest horse fairs in England during a week in August.

Much of the soil is diluvial and alluvial, but there are hard rocks of the secondary formation. Near Ancaster are quarries of freestone, and elsewhere of sandstone fit for building, and in the range of hills extending north and south through the county, ironstone abounds, and is much worked. In the Isle of Axholme plaster of paris, sulphate of lime, or gypsum, is dug; lime is burnt in the wolds, and from the steep cliffs of the Humber chalk is got, and whiting is made. The geological formation favours the agricultural character of the county.

Tidal Waves. In the North Sea the flood tide-wave enters from the Atlantic Ocean between the Coast of Norway and the British Isles, and subsequently, on quitting the Pentland Frith, separates into two branches, of which the western branch, swelling along the shores of Scotland and England, makes high water in all their rivers and harbours successively till it arrives in the Thames. At three or four miles off Whitby the flood stream runs to the southward till 4h. 10m. after high water at Leith, and at the same distance off Flamborough Head it continues to run half an hour longer; near the Norfolk and Suffolk coasts the streams of the tide run nearly parallel to the shore; and off Wells the flood runs eastward till 9 o'clock, or three hours after high water on shore. The time of high water at Great Grimsby is always 53m. earlier than at Hull, the height being also 1ft. 3in. less; at Spurn Point the time of high water is always 1h. 3m. earlier.

Time of High Water on full and change days at places on the coast of Lincolnshire, arranged according to the apparent progress of the tide wave, with the rise of the tide at Springs and Neaps.*

Of the rivers the Witham and Trent and the Humber are the principal; the Witham rises in the south-west at South Witham, and flows northerly through Grantham to Lincoln: it then flows south-easterly to Tattershall and Boston, and below Boston reaches the Wash and the sea. The Bain is a small river, navigable to Horncastle, and which falls into the Witham near Tattershall.

The Trent enters the shire in the west, near Newton and Kettlethorpe, and flowing northward, forms the Notts boundary of the county for a short distance, and leaves the Isle of Axholme between it and the Don; the Trent having joined the Yorkshire Ouse, the two rivers take the name of the Humber, and flow in one wide channel, easterly and south-easterly, to the North Sea: it is seven miles wide at the mouth between Spurn Point in Yorkshire and Great Grimsby in Lincolnshire. The Trent and Humber are navigated by ships and steamers, and are joined by canals to every navigable river in England.

The Ancholme rises at Fillingham, in the north-midland of Lincolnshire, and flows northerly to the Humber, past Brigg: it has been made navigable nearly to its head.

The Welland comes in from Northamptonshire, past Stamford, and runs easterly to Crowland, and through Spalding to the Foss Dyke Wash.

The Glen rises between Falkingham and Grantham, and falls into the Welland near the Foss Dyke bridge.

Lincolnshire is full of canals and dykes, great and small, so that in many parts the communications by land are very difficult. The dykes were cut for draining the land, and some of them are navigable: the Carr dyke, which was cut by the Romans, runs for 40 miles, north and south, through South Lincolnshire along the foot of the hills from Lincoln to Peterborough; Foss Dyke, made in the reign of Henry I., connects Lincoln with the river Trent. The Stainforth and Keadby Canal cuts across the isle of Axholme, from the Don to the Trent. The Louth Canal connects the town of Louth with the North Sea. The Sleaford Navigation is from the town-of Sleaford to the Witham. The Grantham canal connects Grantham with the Trent at Nottingham, and is the property of the Great Northern Railway Company.

There are few parts of Lincolnshire many miles from a navigation; and, except part of West Lindsey, there is no part which has not access to the general system of navigation throughout England. Steamboats run along its shores to the great ports of London and Hull, so that it joins on to the great lines of ocean steam navigation; steamboats also run inland from Hull.

The parliamentary boroughs are Boston, population in 1881, 18,873; Grantham, 17,345; and Lincoln, 37,313; each return two members, and Great Grimsby, 43,531 and Stamford, 8,993, returning one member each. The municipal boroughs are Boston, population in 1881, 14,941; Grantham, 16,886; Great Grimsby, 28,503; Lincoln, 37,313; Louth, 10,691; and Stamford, 8,773. Great Grimsby, at the mouth of the Humber, has an increasing foreign and coasting trade, and has a Custom House: coal is shipped to the extent of about 500,000 tons per annum, and the fishing trade forms a very important item in the trade, 900 smacks belonging to the port: coasting vessels can enter the docks at any time of the tide, whilst the largest steamers will find sufficient depth of water for 12 hours out of the 24: the first stone of the new docks was laid in 1849, and they were opened in 1852, and the extensions in 1884; these docks, which are eighteen miles nearer the sea than Hull, render Grimsby a rapidly increasing rival to Hull. The Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway connects it with the general railway system.

Boston is on the river Witham: the trade of this port, from an accumulation of silt in the river, began to decline n the middle of the last century, but was revived by forming a canal, deepening the river and enlarging the harbour: the quays are accessible at spring tides to ships of 400 tons, extensive docks have been added, and a navigable channel cut from the river to the sea: there is some foreign trade, but local and coasting trades are the principal; a large trade in fish is carried on, about 90 boats being engaged in the fishery; it has a Custom House and pilot establishment. Spalding and Wainfleet are within the port.

Gainsborough, with a population of 10,873, is a river port on the Trent of some consequence, having, besides the river traffic, a considerable coasting trade. Vessels drawing from twelve to thirteen feet of water can lie and discharge alongside the wharfs at the town. The Eagre (or bore), a tidal wave from the mouth of the Trent, rising to the height of several feet at spring tides on the surface of the river, passes considerably above Gainsborough Bridge: on account of the obstruction it meets with before reaching Gainsborough, the Eagre is there diminished in size.

The great port of Hull, on the north side of the Humber, has much influence on the trade of Lincolnshire; and Goole, likewise on the Humber, has some share in it.

The watering places in the county are:—Cleethorpes, Freiston, Mablethorpe, Skegness and Saltfleet Haven; there is a mineral spring, with bath and pump rooms, at Woodhall Spa; this is a celebrated iodine water, and generally relieves from rheumatic affections.

Lincoln is a cathedral city, with Roman antiquities; other towns are Alford, population in 1881, 2,894; Barton, 5,339; Bourn, 3,760; Brigg, 3,087; Holbeach, 5,190; Horncastle, 4,818; Market Rasen, 2,612; Market Deeping, 1,212; Sleaford, 4,965; Spalding, 9,260: Spilsby, 1,549; at Crowland are remains of an ancient abbey, also a curious triangular bridge: at Little Bytham are many Roman remains of interest.

The railway communication of Lincolnshire depends on the Great Northern, Great Eastern and Midland railways. The Great Northern railway passes through on the west, from London, going through Grantham, Newark and Retford, and on the east it sends out a line through Spalding, Boston (with branches to Spilsby and Skegness), Alford, and Louth (with branch to Mablethorpe), to Great Grimsby and Barton; there are also lines of this railway radiating from Lincoln as a centre to Honington and Grantham, Retford, Gainsborough and Doncaster, Horncastle and Boston, and one to Louth; from Grantham there are lines to Nottingham and Boston; in the south are lines from Essendine, through Bourn, Spalding, and Holbeach to King's Lynn, in Norfolk, and from Spalding, through Cowbit and Crowland, to March, in Cambridgeshire; from Spalding also is a line through Deeping St. James to Peterborough. The Great Eastern railway communicates through Spalding by a joint line of the Great Northern and Great Eastern railways to Sleaford and Lincoln, thence to Gainsborough and Doncaster. In the north a line comes from the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, by Gainsborough and Brigg, to Barnetby and Ulceby, and which sends one line to New Holland and Barton, and another to Great Grimsby; from Barnetby is a line through Market Rasen to Lincoln. The South Yorkshire has a line from Doncaster, by Thorne and Keadby, to Barnetby Junction. From the Midland railway, at Nottingham, is a short line to Lincoln. From New Holland to Hull is a steam ferry, and there are ferries over other parts of the Humber and across the Trent, which river is also navigated by steamboats.

The population is mostly employed in husbandry; but there is some work in ship-building, lime-burning, flax-dressing, and sack-weaving, and there are also large agricultural implement factories; at Lincoln are extensive iron-foundries, engineers' shops and agricultural machinery manufactories: at Little Bytham are extensive works for the manufacture of a brick called the Adamantine clinker which is made of a silicious clay which the Romans used for pottery manufactures, and is remarkable for its hardness, strength, and imperviousness to water: terra-cotta ware is also manufactured in the country to some extent. At Frodingham ironstone is found to a large extent, 1,021,506 tons of ore being raised in 1881.

The population of Lincolnshire is purely English, except so far as it is mixed with Danish blood. In 1801 it was 208,625; in 1811, 237,634; in 1821, 283,058; in 1831, 317,465; in 1841, 362,602; in 1851, 407,222; in 1861, 412,246; in 1871, 436,599, and in 1881, 469,919; males, 235,219; females, 234,700. The number of houses in 1881 was, inhabited 100.562, uninhabited 6,836, and building 571.

Lincolnshire forms three divisions or trithings. Lindsey, or the Isle of Lindum, is half the shire, or North Lincolnshire, between the Witham and the Humber: the Isle of Axholme is part of Lindsey. In South Lincolnshire are Kesteven and Holland. Kesteven is to the west, and Holland on the shore: the latter is flat, marshy, and full of dykes and canals. Each of the three divisions or trithings of the shire had, before the Norman accession, its trithing reeve, and still has its separate magistrates, quarter sessions, clerks of the peace, and treasurer, though there is only one lord lieutenant and one sheriff. The assizes are held at Lincoln. Lincolnshire is in the Midland circuit, province of Canterbury, diocese of Lincoln and archdeaconries of Lincoln and Stow; the Lincoln archdeaconry is sub-divided into the rural deaneries of Aveland, Nos. 1 and 2, Beltisloe, Bolingbroke, Calcewaith, Nos. 1 and 2, Candleshoe, Nos. 1 and 2, Christianity, East Elloe, West Elloe, Graffoe, North Grantham, South Grantham, Hill, No. 2, North Holland, Nos. 1 and 2, Longoboby, Loveden, Ness and Stamford. Stow archdeaconry is sub-divided into the rural deaneries of Aslackoe, Isle of Axholme, Corringham, Grimsby, Nos. 1 and 2, Hill, Horncastle, Lawress, Nos. 1 and 2, Louth Esk and Ludborough, Nos. 1, 3 and 3, Manlake, Walshcroft, Wraggoe and Yarborough, Nos. 1 and 2.

Lindsey formerly sent two members to the House of Commons, and South Lincolnshire two, but by the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," the county for the purposes of Parliamentary representation is divided into North, Mid and South Lincolnshire, each of which returns two members to Parliament. North Lincolnshire comprises the following wapentakes, hundreds and sokes, viz., Aslacoe, Bradley, Haverstoe, Corringham, Louth Eske, Ludborough, Manley, Walshcroft, Yarborough, and so much of Calceworth as lies within Louth Eske; population in 1881, 122,615. Mid Lincolnshire comprises Bolingbroke soke, Boothby Graffoe, Calceworth (except so much as lies within the hundred of Louth Eske), Candleshoe, Gartree, Hill, Horncastle soke, Langoe, Lawress, Well, Wraggoe, and Lincoln liberty: population in 1881, 98,654. South Lincolnshire comprises Aswardhurn, Aveland, Beltisloe, Elloe, Flaxwell, Grantham soke, Kirton, Loveden, Ness, Shirbeck, Threo, and Winnibriggs: population in 1881, 122,166.

Lincolnshire was, perhaps, early settled by the Iberians, and afterwards by the Welsh, who were driven out by a Belgian tribe. When the Romans landed, the chief tribe here was that of the Coritani, who are said to have been a branch of the Icen; in the year 70 they were put down by the Romans. The Romans raised banks, cut dykes, of which are the Foss dyke and Carr dyke, made roads, and built towns. The Roman towns were Lindum-Colonia (Lincoln), Aquis (Alkborough, Causennis (Ancaster), Brigæ (Brant Broughton), Duro Brivis (Tattershall), Vainona (Wainfleet), Banovallum (Horncastle), In Medio (Kirton-in-Lindsey), Pretorium (Broughton), Ad Abum (Winteringham), Verometum (Willoughby), and Margidunum (Willoughby, near Grantham); Caistor, Gainsborough, Ludborough, Yarborough, Washingborough, Braceborough, Billingborough, Habrough, Blyborough, Brackenborough, Stallingborough, Little Bytham and Flixborough were other Roman settlements. Ermine Street, the Fossway, and the Saltway were great Roman roads.

In the sixth century the shire fell into the power of the tribes now called English, namely, the English, Waringe, Frisians, Saxons, Jutes or Goths, Danes, Bructuars, Burgundians and Vandals. The inroads were made by the same families which had already made themselves masters of Kent, the South Saxons, the Southrich, Middlesex, Essex, Gyrvia and East Anglia, and the same as the middle English. Among them were the Gaining, Uffing, Horsing, Horning, Epping, Willing, Billing, Folking, Ludding, Alling, Hedding, Harring, Hacking, Newing, Craning, and other well-known families of the north. They formed a number of commonwealths, of which the best known are those of Lindsey and Gainsborough, and the Gyrvians, the aldermen or kings of which were of the blood of Woden. In time the great kings of Northumberland and the Middle English made themselves masters of this shire, or, as it was sometimes named, Southumberland. Latterly it shared the fate of Mercia, and was occupied by the Scandinavians. The fen district was one of the last strongholds of the Saxons against the Norman conqueror. Oliver Cromwell destroyed many of the old castles. The names of 195 parishes end in by, being one-third of the whole number in that form in England; 76 end in thorpe, another northern termination.

Her Majesty's prison, situated on the Greetwell road, Lincoln, half a mile from the cathedral, is a red brick building, faced with Ancaster stone, and presents an imposing appearance, the gateway being flanked by castellated towers, with the governor's and chief warder's houses on either side of the entrance: it was opened in June, 1872: the cost of the building was about £39,000: the building will now hold 300: the total staff of officers is 21, being 18 males and 3 females. Major Edward Mackay, governor; Rev. H. Halford Adcock M.A. chaplain; George Mitchinson M.D. surgeon; J. Rider, chief warder; Miss Ellen McGeech, matron.

The County Lunatic Asylum is situated at Bracebridge, near Lincoln, on an eminence, on the high road to Sleaford: it is a plain building, erected in 1852, in the Italian style, and had room for 250 patients, but has since that date been considerably enlarged, and will now hold upwards of 600 patients: the ground belonging to and occupied by the asylum consists of 120 acres, which is cultivated to a great extent by the spade husbandry of the patients. The whole of the sewage is disposed of by irrigation over 10 acres of land about half a mile from the asylum, quite inoffensively and profitably: the building and recreation grounds, which are tastefully laid out with flower beds, shrubs, and trees, occupy about 6 acres: a chapel was erected in 1869 to seat 450; there is also a cemetery of one acre on the estate, with a mortuary chapel. The Right Hon. Lord Monson, chairman to the committee of visitors; Robert Toynbee esq. clerk to the visitors; Alexander H. Leslie Melville esq.

treasurer; Edward Palmer M.D. superintendent and resident physician; John Wilford Marsh, assistant medical officer; Rev. Charles Christopher Ellison M.A. chaplain; George Kirkup, house steward and clerk of the asylum; Miss E. Sollett, housekeeper; Robert Runacres, head male attendant; Mrs. Sophia Peek, head nurse.

The Lunatic Asylum at Lincoln is a spacious building, 260 feet long, with a noble front and portico of the Ionic order: the average number of patients is about 80. In 1854 a statue of Edward Parker Charlesworth M.D. was erected. George Mitchinson M.D. and William O'Neill M.D. physicians; Thomas Sympson L.R.C.P.Edin. C. Brook, surgeons; Arthur Pickston Russell M.B. resident medical superintendent; Rev. Edmund Roberts Larken M.A. chaplain; Richard Hall, secretary; Coningsby C. Sibthorp, treasurer; R. C. Carline and Rev. G. T. Harvey M.A. auditors; Miss Munro, matron.

The County Hospital, on the Sewells road, Lincoln, was erected in 1878, and is supported by voluntary contributions: it has 110 beds. George Mitchinson M.D. and Charles Harrison M.D. physicians; Thomas Sympson L.R.C.P.Edin. Septimus Lowe, Charles Brook and Thomas Marshall Wilkinson L.R.C.P.Edin. surgeons; E. Colby Sharpin, house surgeon; Rev. James Stock B.A. chaplain; William Barr Danby, secretary.

The Stamford and Rutland Infirmary, standing on a fine salubrious spot, east of the town of Stamford, is a substantial stone building, with spacious lawn and shrubs: the interior affords room for 36 in-patients and 20 fever patients in detached buildings: it has received several munificent bequests, and is liberally supported by voluntary contributions: in consequence of the addition to the funds, it has greatly extended the sphere of its influence, and is now called the Stamford, Rutland and General Infirmary. William Newman M.D. Walter Dowley Eddowes, and Thomas P. Greenwood, surgeons; William More Hope, house surgeon and secretary.

Coroners for the County.—Walter Clegg, Boston, Boston District; Charles Bartholomew Moody M.D. Grimsby, Caistor District; deputy, Charles Brown, Caistor; John Chamberlin Eaton, Grantham, Grantham District; Albert Iveson, Gainsborough, Kirton District; deputy, William Septimus Bladon, Gainsborough; Geo. Mitchinson M.D. Lincoln, Kesteven and part of Lindsey District; Frederick Andrew, deputy, Lincoln; Thomas Sharpley M.D. Louth, Louth District; deputy, Frederick Sharpley, Louth; Joe George Calthrop, Spalding, Spalding and part of Holland; deputy, Francis Thomas Selby, Spalding.

Till within the last few years, Lincolnshire has, in respect to its geology, been one of the most neglected counties in England. This may, perhaps, be accounted for by the supposed absence of important minerals, by the want of good sections, and by the large amount of drift or surface débris strewn over the surface—as thick masses of clay and sand—concealing the strata which lie beneath.

Of late years some important papers on the county have been published in the "Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society," by the Rev. J. E. Cross, on the Lias of the north-west corner of the county, and the Rev. J. F. Blake on the Kimmeridge Clay, in vol. xxxi.; by Mr. Judd on the Chalk (vol. xxiii.), Speeton Clay (vol. xxiv.) and Neocomian beds (vol. xxvi.); by Professor Morris on the Oolites of the south-west of the county (vol. ix.); and there are some scattered notes in the "Geological Magazine." The definite mapping of the county by the Geological Survey was, however, long postponed in order that the coal-fields might be first completed. In 1875 the issue of Sheet 64 gave us a thorough and complete knowledge of the extreme south of the county, from Stamford, Little Bytham, and Creeton on the west, to Bourn and Market Deeping on the east. This sheet also includes the whole of Rutland, and portions of Leicester and Northampton: it was the work of Mr. J. W. Judd, F.G.S., and, with the accompanying memoir, has fairly placed that gentleman in the first rank of living geologists. Sheet 70, which lies immediately to the north of 64, has also been nearly completed by Mr. Holloway, and will be published in 1877; it extends as far north as Newark, Tattershall, &c.

Diagrammatic Section Illustrating the Relations of the Bed of the Zone of Ammonites semicostatus of the Lower Lias of North Leicestershire and South Lincolnshire.

a Lincolnshire Limestone; b Northampton Sand; c Upper Lias Clay; d Marlstone Rock-bed; e Middle Lias Sands and Clay; f Lower Lias Clays; g Ferruginous Rock of the Zone of Ammonites semicostatus; h Lower Lias Clays, &c.; k Rhætic or Penarth beds; l Red and green Marls with Gypsum (Keuper). The "semicostatus" bed forms a scarp at Redmile, Barkston and Plungar; it is on the same horizon as the famous ironstone bed at Frodingham in North Lincolnshire.

Lying on the east coast of England, Lincolnshire includes none of the hard rocks which stand up so boldly in the west, forming the mountains of Wales and Scotland. The rocks which compose the county lie in the Mesozoic or Middle Period of geologists, and comprise a fairly complete series from the Trias to the Chalk.

As the different beds of rock extend in long bands nearly due north and south, they coincide with the main extension in length of the county: as, moreover, these rocks are of varying degrees of hardness, being an alternation of beds of clay and limestone, we get longitudinal valleys scooped out in the clays, while the harder limestones stand out as bold ranges of hills running from north to south. This simplicity of structure is, however, complicated by the immense quantity of drift which has been deposited here and there, filling up some of the ancient valleys, and by the extent to which the eastern and south-eastern portion has been placed down by the sea, reducing it to one level plain, affording none of those cliff-sections which have so aided the study of the neighbouring county of Yorkshire.

The oldest rocks found in Lincolnshire occur on its western side, and form the slopes of the Trent valley. The Trias, as these rocks are called from their triple division in Germany, is represented here by the upper member only, which is known as the Keuper, from its containing copper ore abroad: it consists of stiff red marl, with intercalated bands of sandstone and gypsum: it constitutes the whole of the Isle of Axholme, and extends in a varying band from 3 to 5 miles on the east of the Trent, broadening out, however, to the southward. The presence of the peroxide of iron, which tinges the beds red, seems to have been prejudicial to animal life, for very few fossils occur in the Keuper. Fish-scales and teeth, with bones and footprints of the Labyrinthodon, should, however, be looked for in any bands of sandstone which may be met with. The red clay is frequently dug for brick-making: the beds have a gentle dip or slant to the eastwards.

The Lias is the name applied to a series of limestones, shales, and clays, which rests upon the Red Marl. At the junction between the two great formations we find a series of beds termed Rhætics, from the great development in the Rhætian Alps, which seem to mark a transition from the one to the other. These beds are in part exposed in some pits near Newark, and extend northwards by South Searle and Gainsborough to the point where the Trent joins the Humber, passing thence into Yorkshire. At Lea, about 2 miles south of Gainsborough, they were noted by Mr. Burton in 1866, in the cutting of the Great Northern line. The characteristic shells, Avicula contorta and Cardium rhæticum, were found here, together with a thin stratum called the bone-bed, from its being full of fish-teeth and scales.

The Lower Lias Limestones and Shales come next in order; and the hard bands of limestone stand out as an escarpment, well seen in the Frodingham cutting of the Ancholme and Grimsby railway. These beds are very fossiliferous, containing many Ammonites, Gryphea incurva in thousands, and, what is more important, a very valuable bed of ironstone, which is now very largely worked. This important discovery and its development are chiefly due to Mr. Charles Winn, M.P. The ore is a hydrated oxide, and the following quantities were raised in 1874:—

Appleby (Brigg)	105,109 tons,	value	£21,021

This bed of iron ore lies low down in the Lias, and is not the same as the Cleveland bed, with which it has been confounded. At Claythorpe, near Grantham, a bed of ironstone has lately been opened, which is probably a continuation: and the ferruginous limestone abounding in Ammonites semicostatus, which is so well developed at Redmile, in the Vale of Belvoir, is also on the same horizon.

The bed of ore is about 27 feet in thickness, and crops out at the surface, forming the plain on which the village of Scunthorpe stands, so that the workings are open and shallow. As is the case with similar ironstone beds elsewhere, we find the ore loose, and of a dark-brown tint near the surface, and passing downwards into a tolerably hard rock: there is a hard limestone band at the base. The presence of limestone renders the ore a very suitable one to mix with another containing silica. Fortunately, a bed of iron ore rich in silica has lately been found near Lincoln, and this is now mixed with the Scunthorpe stone in the proportion of one-eighth of the whole. The yield of metal is about 1 ton to 3½ of ore, or 28 per cent.

The Middle Lias or Marlstone.—This is a very variable formation, both in thickness and mineralogical character: in the south-west of the county it is as much as 20 or 30 feet thick, forming the bold outlier on which Belvoir Castle stands: it enters Lincolnshire near Woolsthorpe, and as it passes northwards becomes thinner, so that at Santon it is seen to be only 8 or 9 feet thick. Here in the cutting it is exposed as hard light-grey limestone, weathering brown, and full of a plaited bivalve shell, known as Rhynconella tetrahedra.

The Upper Lias is in Lincolnshire, as generally elsewhere, a mass of thick clay. In the south-west, near Stainby, where it enters the county, it is, perhaps, as much as 200 feet thick. Passing northwards, by Grantham and Lincoln, we find it at Santon reduced to 60 feet, and composed of blue shales with casts of Ammonites. Everywhere it forms the western slope of the range known as the Cliff, and where it is thickest there we find hills highest, and the scenery most picturesque and diversified.

The Liassic formation thus occupies a band in the west of Lincolnshire, about 8 or 10 miles in width in the south, but narrowing steadily northwards, owing to the thinning out of the various beds of limestone and clay, until on the Humber it is about a mile in breadth. Everywhere the Cliff marks the eastward extension of the main mass; but where the river Witham has cut through the limestone ridge at Grantham, and in the still more striking gorge formed by the same river at Lincoln, we must extend the various members of the Lias for some miles to the eastward, as inliers.

Good exposures of the Lias are rather rare in Lincolnshire: in the Marton cutting of the Gainsborough and Lincoln railway, Messrs. Burton and Waugh collected a number of fossils of the zone of Ammonites angulatus, which have been described by Mr. Tate ("Quart. Jour. Geol. Soc. vol. xxiii, p. 306). On the slope of Spittlegate Hill, near Grantham, there is a good section of the Upper Lias, showing the Fish and Insect Beds at its base, surmounted by ferruginous clays with Ammonites communis. The Liassic clays form a stiff clay land, mostly in pasture; but the marlstone gives rise to a rich, brownish loam, on which excellent wheat crops are grown.

The Oolites.—The strata which lie next above the Lias have received the above name from the rounded, roelike structure—wov (oon), an egg—seen in most of the limestones of the series. They consist of an alternation of beds of limestone and clay, the former standing out as lines of hills, while the latter occupy the valleys between. The commencement of the Oolitic Formation in Lincolnshire is marked by the striking ridge so well known as the "Cliff:" this is a bold escarpment facing the west, and running in a nearly straight line for about 90 miles: along the top runs the celebrated Roman road known as Ermine Street. The escarpment is only broken at the two points already noted, Grantham and Lincoln, where the Witham has cut through the range.

Northampton Sand.—This is a stratum of very varying mineralogical characters, well developed in Northamptonshire, where it is 70 feet thick, but much reduced as we trace it northwards. Near Stamford it is 30 feet thick, at Grantham 48 feet, near Lincoln 30 feet, and in the north of the county some 10 or 15 feet only. Everywhere it forms the top of the Cliff, surmounting a long slope of Upper Lias Clay, which is usually tinged red by the downwash from the ferruginous beds above. The Northampton Sand forms a light soil, usually of a reddish hue, and well adapted for the growth of spring crops: in the county from which it takes its name it is largely worked for ironstone; but the ore diminishes in value as we trace it northwards.

Lincolnshire Oolite Limestone.—The researches of Mr. Judd have shown that this important bed belongs to the Inferior Oolite, and not to the Bath Oolite, as was formerly supposed: immediately overlying the Northampton Sand, it forms a capping to the "Cliff," constituting the broad Oolitic plateau which stretches for 3 or 4 miles east of it. In Mid Lincolnshire it is fully 150 feet thick, at Grantham 100 feet, at Stamford 80 feet, near Kirton 90 feet; but in South Yorkshire it is only 15 feet; and as we trace it further both to the north and south, it at last thins out altogether and disappears.

At the base the limestone often passes into thin, sandy, fissile beds, which are the well-known Collyweston Slates. Fossils are numerous: here and there banks occur which seem to represent old coral reefs, and altogether we have evidence that local depression took place within an area having a diameter of about 90 miles, the amount of depression being greatest in Central Lincolnshire. As a consequence of this, there was slowly accumulated, by the growth of coral reefs, and the action of marine currents sweeping small shells and their fragments along the sea-bottom, a mass of calcareous strata, presenting many variations in its local characters, and constituting the formation to which we have applied the name of the "Lincolnshire Oolite Limestone." The western half of this great lens-shaped mass of limestone has been removed by denudation, and on the summit of the Cliff we get the exposed section of the remaining easterly half, which, dipping to the eastward, lies buried beneath the newer rocks which come on as we pass in that direction.

Excellent building-stones are obtained from this formation, the quarries at Ancaster being especially famous. The commissioners appointed in 1839 to report on the building stones of England for the new Houses of Parliament, state that "many buildings constructed of a material similar to the Oolite of Ancaster, such as Newark and Grantham churches, and other edifices in various parts of Lincolnshire, have scarcely yielded to the effects of atmospheric influences."

The Great Oolite has for its base beds of sandy clay of varied tints. These are the Upper Estuarine Series, for, like the Northampton sand below, they appear to have been formed near the mouth of a large river. At Little Bytham, and other places, bricks of great hardness and durability are made from these clays. They constitute much of the cold unkindly land of the "Heath." At Stamford and Grantham they are 25 feet thick; but northwards they disappear, or are merged into the Great Oolite Limestones. This rock is from 20 to 30 feet thick, and, with the clays beneath, forms frequent outliers on the plateau of Lincolnshire limestone; above it are the Great Oolite Clays, from 10 to 20 feet thick. The limestones of this series are dug for lime-burning and for road-metal, and the clays are dug for brickmaking.

The Cornbrash.—This well-known rock is a ferruginous limestone, usually very fossiliferous, and in this district about 15 feet thick: its top is marked by a thick bed of a large rugose species of oyster—Ostrea Marshii. It forms a red soil of no great fertility, and is esteemed as furnishing hard road metal.

The region occupied by the Great Oolites and Cornbrash forms a band down Mid Lincolnshire, of which Bourn and Sleaford may indicate approximately the eastern limit. This region is characterized by a series of low, flat-topped hills, and some admirable sections of the beds are exposed in the cuttings of the Great Northern railway, as at Essendine, Little Bytham, and Ponton.

The Middle Oolites are represented in Lincolnshire by extremely thick beds of clay, which are very similar in appearance, but which are separated into two divisions by the difference of the fossils which they contain. Of these the lower is the Oxford Clay: it has at its base certain hard sandy beds called Kellaways Rock, 10 to 20 feet in thickness; but the clays above are probably above 500 feet. They abound in Ammonites, and the well-known Belemnites, — the darts or thunderbolts of the peasantry. Brigg, Wickenby, Wragby, and Stixwould may be named as indicating the eastern boundary of the Oxford Clay.

The Kimmeridge Clay forms a broad band eight or nine miles wide in the south, but greatly narrowed in the extreme north by the overlap of the Cretaceous beds. It comes up to the western foot of the Wolds, and Fulletby, Tealby, Caistor, and Worlaby indicate its eastern edge: it is above 600 feet thick, and is exposed in numerous brickyards, in the cuttings of the Louth and Lincoln railway, &c. At the top of the Kimmeridge Clay there is a very bituminous bed of shale, resembling that of the coal-measures: early in the present century much money was thrown away in consequence, in boring for coal in the valley of the river Bain, where these shales are well exposed. At Brinkhill there is a stratum of iron pyrites, known from its yellow hue as "Brinkhill Gold."

The Cretaceous Formation.—The Chalk Wolds of Lincolnshire are well known; but on their western slopes there are a series of sandstones, ironstones & clays which are not so easily recognized. These constitute a sub-division, to which the term Neocomian is applied. We can trace them northwards into Yorkshire, where they form the Vale of Pickering, and thence turning eastwards they form the Speeton Cliffs, which overlook Filey Bay. In Lincolnshire they appear near Worlaby, and pass southwards by Caistor, Tealby, Dennington and Scamblesby.

The West Yorkshire Coal and Iron Company have opened an iron mine in the middle Neocomian beds at Acre House, between Claxby & Nettleton. The existence of fragments of iron slag, Roman pottery, &c., in this part shows that the ore was known and worked in very early times. Mr. Judd describes the bed now being worked as a rock almost entirely made up of small and beautifully polished oolitic grains of hydrated peroxide of iron. The earthy material, full of larger concretionary masses of ironstone, which was at first thought to be equally valuable, is found to yield so small an average percentage of iron that it is not worked. Fossils are numerous, especially a large shell named Pecten cinctus. The ore contains much limestone, and is consequently well adapted for smelting, mixed with the clay-ironstone from the coal measures: it is mostly sent to Leeds for that purpose. 885 tons, valued at £177, were raised in 1874.

The Hunstanton Red Chalk.—This band, there about 4 feet thick, is familiar to all who have visited the Norfolk coast; it is traceable all through Lincolnshire from near Gunby by Candlesby, Nettleton. Grasby, Barnetby, and South Ferriby. Everywhere a curious sponge, Spongia paradoxica, is a common fossil, together with Belemnites minimus: it is as much as 14 feet thick in Mid Lincolnshire.

The Chalk.—Above the "Red Rock" there are several bands of pinkish chalk which have often been mistaken for it. One such occurs near Louth. As we ascend the chalk becomes harder, and, having resisted denudation better than the softer strata which occur both above and below it, now forms an almost continuous ridge along the western side of the Wolds, being only cut through by the Withern Eau and the tributaries of the Witham. The Chalk of Lincolnshire being much more covered by superficial deposits than the hills of the North and South Downs, has not the smooth, rounded, and gently swelling aspect of the latter; it has mostly been brought under the plough, and with very satisfactory results. In the numerous pits the characteristic chalk fossils may readily be obtained, such as the rounded sea-urchins; Ananchytes and Micraster; a furrowed shell, Inoceramus, is common, and Terebratulæ abound. Bands of flint also occur.

THE DRIFT.—In few counties are the stray deposits to which this term is applied better developed. Scattered over the district we find immense beds of clay and sand, full of pebbles and bits of older formations, which in some places are about 300 feet thick. These were formed in the Glacial Period, when an ice-sheet descending from the north forced its way over at least part of the county. From its seaward termination, huge icebergs breaking off carried their loads of stones and mud, dropping them as they passed, melting, to the southwards. Some of the masses of rock so transported are of enormous size: near Stoke tunnel the Great Northern railway passes right through an enormous mass of Lincolnshire Oolite Limestone, which, as noted by Professor Morris, rests on undoubted Boulder Clay.

Over the district bounded on the north by Gibraltar Point, Horncastle and Lincoln, and thence by Sleaford and Corby to the extreme south of the county, and all up the eastern coast the whole surface as far as the sea is covered by drift, which in turn is overlaid by beds of silt or warp. Digging through this, blue clay belonging to either the Oxford or Kimmeridge series is usually found beneath.

Trees near Holbeach. The long rows of aspens bordering the dykes all incline to the north-east, being bent in that direction by the prevalent south-west winds. The trees of the buried forests lie pointing in the same direction. (After Skertchly, Geol. Survey.)

Post-Glacial Period.—Much has been done by the hand of man in draining the Fen-land: in such works traces of pre-historic men have been met with. At Spalding a large and heavy stone celt was found, and near Newport a bored stone, which doubtless served as a hammer-head: flint flakes or knives occurred with burnt bones and a bronze arrow-head in some cinerary urns dug up at Broughton. A large and broad arrow-head of flint was found at Gunthorpe, and another near Manton. Bone lance-heads and pins have also been met with. These relics take us back to the meeting-point between Geology and Archæology,—to the Stone Age, when man was as yet unacquainted with the use of metals, and when he inhabited this country in company with the mammoth, the elk, and other animals now extinct, whose bones we find embedded with his implements in the strata of latest formation.

ABY with GREENFIELD.

ABY is a small village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of Calceworth hundred, Calceworth petty sessional division, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Calceworth, No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles north-west from Alford and 2 south from Claythorpe station on the East Lincolnshire branch of the Great Northern railway. The church was pulled down many years ago, but it was customary, at least till 1830, to hold divine service once a year in the churchyard: the inhabitants attend that at Belleau. The register is included with that of Belleau. The living is a vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of Belleau. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, who is lady of the manor, Willoughby Wood esq. of Hollyhurst, Burton-on-Trent, Mr. John Mawer and Mr. Daniel Fussey are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and heavy loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips; a small portion of the land is devoted to the growth of flax and hops. The area is 1,420a. 1r.; rateable value, £1,978; the population in 1881 was 352.

Greenfield is a small hamlet belonging to Aby, 2 miles north-west from Alford station. Here are the remains of a priory of Cistercian nuns, founded by Eudo de Greinsby about the year 1150, and now converted into a farm-house: at the Dissolution it had a yearly income of £79 15s. 1d.; the site was then granted to Charles, Duke of Suffolk. To the south-west is a barrow.

ADDLETHORPE is a small village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of Candleshoe hundred, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, pleasantly situated about a mile from the coast of the North Sea, 5 miles north-east from Burgh and 6 north-east from the Gunby or Burgh station of the East Lincolnshire railway and 12 east-by-north from Spilsby. The church of St. Nicholas, which stands on rising ground, is a very rich specimen of the Perpendicular style, consisting of clerestoried nave of five bays and aisles, an especially beautiful porch, and embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the chancel was pulled down in 1706 and has never been rebuilt: there are two carved screens, one of which, under the arch which separates the tower from the nave, is nearly perfect, and has carved upon the solid heading of its doorway the legend: "Orate p. anima Johannis Dudeck senior et uxor eius"; the other, under the chancel arch, is enriched with color and gilding; the eastern portions of both aisles are also enclosed with screen work to form chapels: each of these retains its piscina: at the west ends of the aisles are other portions of screens once enclosing these: the font is co-eval with the church: the windows of the north aisle retain fragments of ancient stained glass, including several figures of angels and ecclesiastics: the parapet of the porch is adorned with gracefully carved foliage, and the apex of the gable bears a crucifix with richly foliated terminals: the sides and angles are supported by buttresses terminating in pinnacles, and the parapet is panelled: within the porch is a stoup, and above it a niche, and another niche appears over the doorway: the base and part of the shaft of a cross remain in the churchyard: on the north side are six handsome buttresses, surmounted by pinnacles adorned with fretwork and bearing grotesque figures holding scrolls: in 1875, the church was put in a thorough state of repair, by public subscription. The register dates from the year 1542. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £140, gross yearly value £167, including 7 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Charles Butler Hulbert B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The Wesleyans have a place of worship. The charities are of about £24 yearly value, derived from several small bequests. Charles Langton Massingberd esq. J.P. of Gunby park, Burgh, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Messrs. James Whaler and John Wm. Mackinder. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, potatoes, peas, beans, oats and mustard. The area is 2,006 acres; rateable value, £3,395; the population in 1881 was 243.

AISTHORPE (or EAST THORPE) is a parish, in the Mid division of the county, wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, Lincoln union and county court district, Lawress rural deanery, Stow archdeaconry and Lincoln diocese, 6 miles north-north-west from Lincoln and 7 north-east from Saxelby station. The church of St. Peter is an edifice of stone, in the Early English style, rebuilt in 1868, at a cost of £2,500, by the late Rev. R. W. Otter, formerly rector, from designs by Mr. T. C. Hine, architect, and consists of chancel, nave, vestry, north porch and a western tower with spire, containing 5 bells: the eastern window is stained and is in memory of the Rev. Charles Bernal; the stained window at the west end is a memorial to the Rev. W. C. Salter. The register, including West Thorpe, or Thorpe-in-the-Fallows, dates from the year 1593. The living is a discharged rectory, with the vicarage of West Thorpe, or Thorpe-in-the-Fallows, annexed, joint yearly value £360 including 2 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of Robert Otter esq. and held since 1875 by the Rev. Thomas William Bury M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Robert Fawsitt Ealand esq. is the lord of the manor and owns the whole of the land in the parish, with the exception of 40 acres. The crops are a succession of grain; soil, stiff clay; subsoil, various. The area is 801 acres; rateable value, £1,141; the population in 1881 was 112.

ALFORD.

ALFORD is a market town, railway station, parish and polling-place for the Mid division of the county, on the East Lincolnshire railway, in the Wold division of Calceworth hundred, parts of Lindsey, Spilsby union and county court district, Calceworth rural deanery and Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 9 miles north-north-east from Spilsby, 13 south-east from Lough, 36 east from Lincoln, 141 from London by road and 130¼ by railway and 6 west from the German Ocean. The station of the East Lincolnshire branch of the Great Northern railway is about a quarter of a mile west from the town.

The town derives its name from an ancient ford over a stream, and consists of three main streets, and a market place, with a fine open area, and contains many good inns and shops. Alford gives the title of baron to Earl Brownlow; it is now under the Local Government Act and is well-paved and lighted with gas.

The church of St. Wilfrid is a structure of the Decorated style, endowed in the year 1209: it consists of chancel, with north aisle, nave, with double aisle on the north, south aisle, south porch and a massive western tower with eight pinnacles and containing a clock and 5 bells: the partial reconstruction, and the general restoration of the fabric, was carried out in 1809, under the superintendence of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. at a cost of about £5,500, the interior being at the same time refitted in oak; there is a fine oak screen, still retaining traces of gold and color: a pulpit of Jacobean date, and an octagonal stone font, supported on a marble shafted stem; the chancel has sedilia of the fourteenth century, and westward of these is a large altar tomb, with effigies to Sir Robert Christopher knt. 1668, and his wife 1667: at the east end of the chancel there is a very fine stained window, the gift of the late J. Higgins esq. There are sittings for 850 persons. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a discharged vicarage, with the perpetual curacy of Rigsby-cum-Ailby annexed, gross yearly value £430 with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Thomas Luffman M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge.

The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1864, at a cost, including the site, of £4,000, is a building of white brick, with stone dressings, in the Decorated Gothic style, and capable of seating over 700. There are also Congregational, Baptist, United Free and Primitive Methodist Chapels.

There is a Cemetery of 2 acres at the south side of the town, laid out in 1881, at a cost of £1,400: it has one mortuary chapel, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members.

Ironfounding, brewing, tanning and rope and brick making are carried on.

In 1668 Sir Robert Christopher knt. bequeathed £550 for building and endowing an almshouse for six poor women, which sum was subsequently augmented by Lord Harborough in 1716 with a yearly rent-charge of £22: in 1870 these almshouses were rebuilt by the Hon. Lady Mary Christopher-Nisbet-Hamilton, and each inmate receives a small sum weekly; this sum is distributed in money and bread.

The poor parishioners also receive upwards of £16 per annum, arising from the bequests of several charitable persons at various periods. In 1628 Mr. William Day, of Lincoln, bequeathed the sum of £40, to be lent, free of interest, to four poor tradesmen of Alford for the term of four or five years; £10 of this sum is lost; the remaining £30 is still in use, and is applied as directed. The late Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of this town also left £100 each, the interest to be distributed annually in bread to the deserving poor of the parish.

The Corn Exchange was erected at a cost of £1,400, on a site given by the lord of the manor. The market is held on Tuesday, and fairs for cattle and sheep are held on Whit Tuesday and the 8th of November. Three additional fairs were instituted in 1867, one on the 31st of July, principally for lambs; 24th of August for sheep, and the 17th of September for cattle and foals.

The Mechanics' Institute, founded in April, 1854, is built on a site given by the late Hon. R. A. Christopher-Nisbet-Hamilton, on lease, at a nominal rent, for 999 years: the fund for the erection of the building was raised by shares of £5 each, the shareholders executing a deed vesting the whole of the premises in fifteen trustees upon trust (after paying interest not exceeding £5 per cent. per annum for the capital expended on the building) for the benefit of the institution, or any similar society hereafter to be formed: the present society is composed of a patron, vice-patrons, president, vice-president and eleven committee-men, with about 100 other members: there is an excellent lecture room, together with a circulating and a reference library, the former containing about 1,500 volumes of scientific and useful works, the latter many very valuable standard works.

The Church Institute, founded some years ago, is now situated in West street; the vicar is president, and there are about 120 members.

Near the town is a barrow.

About a quarter of a mile south of the town is a fine medicinal spring, called Holy Well, the water of which is said to be efficacious in scorbutic complaints.

A court-leet is held annually and the Agricultural Labourers' Society have an annual meeting.

Tothby House, the residence of Thomas Cartwright Johnson esq. is a fine old mansion, very pleasantly situated, about a mile north-east from the station.

Miss Constance-Nisbet-Hamilton is lady of the manor and principal landowner.

The soil is very varied; subsoil, mostly gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, and turnips.

The area is 1,410 acres; rateable value, £7,871; the population in 1881 was 2,894.

SCHOOLS:—

Queen Elizabeth Grammar was founded in 1565 by Mr. Francis Spanning, who bequeathed £50 for its support, with the exception of one-fifth of the interest, which he directed to be given to the poor: the school has since received the following benefactions, viz.:—£35 from Mr. William Gubbe in 1568; a house & land at Alford, bought for £25, from Mr. John Toothby, in 1577; an estate at Farlsthorpe, left by Mr. John Spendluffe, in 1588; £100 from Mr. Peregrine Langton, in 1658; & a yearly rent-charge of £5, left by Sir Robert Christopher, in 1668: by a special charter, obtained in 1576 by Lord Burleigh, it was made a Royal foundation; the school is administered under a scheme prepared by the Charity Commissioners & approved by Her Majesty on the 23rd October, 1877. The governing body consists of eleven persons, six of whom are representative & five co-optative governors. The sum of £50 yearly is applied to the maintenance of scholarships tenable at the school, half of which are restricted to boys who have for three years attended some public elementary school in Alford or certain of the neighbouring parishes. The income of the school is about £380 per annum. The sons of parishioners of Bilsby, Farlesthorpe & Saleby are entitled to share in the benefits of this school; Rev. Walter Wm. Hopwood M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford, head master; Edward Smith M.A. & Samuel Ashton, assistant masters.

The National Schools are supported in part by a yearly sum of £60, arising from an estate at Mumby, purchased in 1615 with money bequeathed in 1588 by Mr John Spendluffe; by another sum of £20 a year from the funds of the grammar school, & by voluntary contributions, in addition to the weekly fees paid by the children

ALGARKIRK is a parish, in the Southern division of the county, Kirton wapentake, parts of Holland, Boston union and county court district, Holland rural deanery, and Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 9 miles north-west-by-north from Holbeach, 6 south-by-west from Boston, and half a mile north from the Algarkirk and Sutterton station on the Great Northern railway, situated on the road from Boston to Spalding. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, picturesquely situated on an eminence surrounded by groups of trees, is a magnificent cruciform building of stone, chiefly in the Early English and Decorated styles, and was thoroughly restored in 1850-51 by the rector, from designs of the late Mr. Carpenter, the north aisle and south porch being wholly rebuilt, new roofs fixed, open seats placed throughout the church, and a low leaded spire added to the tower; the superb reredos of Caen stone was decorated in polychrome by Mr. Crace, and the altar cloth was embroidered and presented by Miss Blencowe; the church consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, north and south porches, transepts and a tower with small spire rising from the centre and containing 5 bells, all cast at the foundry of Thomas Norris, of Stamford, in 1662: the whole of the windows in the body of the church are stained: and there are some remains of ancient glass in the vestry: a fine-toned organ was given by the rector in 1876: some fragments of the Earlier Norman church are preserved in the vestry, but the oldest portions of the existing building are comprised in the tower, part of the transepts, the nave, arcades and north doorway: the chancel, which has a new east window, together with its aisles and the nave, are Decorated; the latest portion is the battlemented clerestory, lighted by ten windows on each side, and the low roof: the interior of the chancel is elaborately decorated in gold and color, and has a double piscina of Early English date, and a locker on the opposite side; there is also a beautiful canopied and crocketed piscina in the south transept; the font, of Purbeck marble, has an octangular basin, on a clustered shaft, the principal fittings are all of oak; in the tower are three slabs of grey marble, from the first of which effigies in brass of a civilian and his two wives, with other brasses, have been removed; another now retains only a dimidiated figure of the Holy Virgin and child; the third slab has brasses of a civilian and his two wives kneeling; the former in a furred gown, with girdle, from which depends a gypciere or purse: below on a separate brass is an admonitary inscription in abbreviated Latin, but without name or date: in the churchyard is the effigy of a civilian of the fourteenth century, adjoining is the effigy of a priest in eucharistic vestments. The register of baptisms, marriages and deaths dates from the year 1678. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Fosdyke annexed, gross yearly value £2,000, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Beridge Sparrow M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge. The rector has erected another church and schools at a remote part of the parish, on the Fen allotment, about 12 miles north-west from the parish church, for which see Holland Fen ecclesiastical parish. There are several charities, amounting to £56 yearly, connected with the parish, for the relief of the aged deserving poor. Sir Thomas Middlecott's almshouses at Fosdyke are for the poor of this parish; the endowment is 98 acres, producing about £204 yearly; the building will hold 12 inmates of both sexes, each of whom receives about £15 yearly. Algarkirk Hall, the seat of the Rev. John Beridge Sparrow M.A., J.P. is a spacious modern building, standing in a well-wooded park, surrounded by pleasure grounds. The principal landowners are the representatives of the late Rev. Basil Beridge M.A. and Sir Thomas Whichcote bart. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, clay and loam. The chief crops are wheat, beans and potatoes; a great portion of this parish is pasture land. The area is 2,406 acres; rateable value £6,348; the population in 1881 was 520.

By a Local Government Board Order, dated December 24th, 1880, Algarkirk Fen allotment, with 213 inhabitants, was transferred to Amber Hill parish.

ALKBOROUGH (or AUKBOROUGH) is a parish and pleasant village, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, North division of Manley wapentake, union of Glanford Brigg, Winterton petty sessional division, county court district of Barton-on-Humber, rural deanery of Manlake, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles north from Frodingham, its nearest railway station, 5 north-west from Winterton, and 18 north-west from Brigg, on the east side of Trent falls, where the streams of the Ouse and Trent unite and take the name of the Humber, across which are obtained extensive and beautiful views of Yorkshire, including York Minster. The church of St.

John the Baptist is an ancient stone edifice of Mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and early Norman tower with 3 bells, on the second of which is the inscription—

IESU FOR YI WODIE SAKE
SAVE ALL YE SAVLS THAT ME GART MAKE.

The registers date from the year 1538. The tithes of Alkborough were amongst the earliest endowments of the monastery of Spalding when founded by the Sheriff Thorold in 1052, and it was probably at this time that the church was built. The living is a vicarage, annexed to Whitton, yearly value £279, with residence, in the alternate gift of the Bishop and J. Goulton Constable esq. and held since 1883 by the Rev. Benjamin Hunter B.A. of London University. A vicarage house was erected in 1871 at a cost of £2,000. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel; the former was built 1840, and the latter 1864. A reading room was formed for the parish in 1882; Edward Naylor, hon. sec. Thirty-two shillings charge on the manor is distributed yearly. On the hill are the remains of a Roman camp, probably the site of the Roman town Arquis. The field which comprises the Roman camp is called the Countess Close, from the Countess Lucy, wife of Ivo Taibbois, who in the time of William the Conqueror was Lord of Holland: the whole manor of Alkborough belonged to Countess Lucy: in the Countess close below the ground are some of the foundations of a cell of Spalding, wherein dwelt three monks and a "capelanum seculare," with a prior over them; this cell ceased to exist in 1220: the maze, known as Julian Bower, was undoubtedly made by the monks while the cell existed. J. G. Constable esq. who is lord of the manor, and J. Dent Dent esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and potatoes. The area is 2,540 acres of land and 335 of water; rateable value, £3,591 15s.; the population in 1881 was 399.

WALCOT is a hamlet half-a-mile south. Walcot Hall, a pleasant mansion, with beautiful grounds, the seat of J. Goulton-Constable esq. J.P. and described in a survey made in 1649, as "built of stone and brick and containing one hall, one kitchen, two parlours, six chambers": of the age of this there is no record; it was, however, added to, to make it what it is now by a set of rooms on the south-west side about the year 1700, and a set of rooms on the south-east side in 1800; in this latter year all the grounds and gardens round the hall were laid out and planted. The Abbey of Peterborough had at one time a chapel and burial ground in Walcot: the foundations of the priest house belonging to the chapel have recently been discovered in the south corner of a field called Westcroft.

ALLINGTON EAST and WEST form a parish and village, united for civil purposes, but separated for ecclesiastical purposes, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Winnibriggs wapentake, Newark union, Grantham county court district, Spittlegate petty sessional division, rural deanery of North Grantham, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, situated one mile north from Sedgebrook station on the Nottingham branch of the Great Northern railway, 5 miles north-west from Grantham, and 10 south-east from Newark, on the borders of Leicestershire. Part of East Allington is ecclesiastically annexed to Sedgebrook. The church of St. Andrew, East Allington, is a small plain stone building, with some Early English and Perpendicular features, and consists of chancel and nave only, and a bellcote containing 2 bells. The register is included with that of Sedgebrook. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the rectory of Sedgebrook, joint yearly value £600, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1864 by the Rev. William Drake M.A. formerly fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, who resides at Sedgebrook. The church of the Holy Trinity, West Allington, is a small plain stone building in the Norman Transition style with some Perpendicular windows, and consists of chancel, nave of 3 bays, north aisle, south porch, and a turret containing 2 bells. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £200, with good residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1882 by the Rev. William Newcome Blakeney B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Allington Hall, the seat of John Earle Welby esq. J.P. lord of the manor and chief landowner, is a mansion pleasantly situated, and has undergone various alterations during the past century. Here is a chalybeate spring called Saltwell. The soil is mostly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. The area is about 1,973 acres; rateable value, £2,952. The population in 1881 was 331.

ALTHORPE is a village and parish, comprising the townships of ALTHORPE and KEADBY, and hamlet of DERRYTHORPE, in the Isle of Axholme, in the Northern division of the county, West division of the wapentake of Manley, union and county court district of Thorne, parts of Lindsey, Axholme rural deanery, Stow archdeaconry and Lincoln diocese, 5 miles east-south-east from Crowle, 16 north from Gainsborough, 12 north-west from Brigg, situate on the west bank of the Trent; here is a station on the South Yorkshire railway, called Keadby and Althorpe. The church of St. Oswald is a fine building of ashlar, erected in the year 1483, by Sir John Nevill kt. of Althorpe, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, and a western embattled tower of three stages, with pinnacles, and containing 3 bells: on the western sides of the tower are the arms of Nevill, quartering those of Newmarsh and Mowbray: there are three sedilia, consisting of crocketed ogee arches, divided by pinnacled buttresses, and surmounted by an embattled cresting: at the restoration in 1868, in cleaning the sedilia, which had for many years been covered over with thick coats of colour, a little effigy of a priest was discovered, vested in a chasuble of the wide flowing kind used in the middle ages, the collar richly diapered with a four-leaved ornament and the hands are raised in prayer; the inscription is as follows:—"Hic Jacet Will's de Lound, quondam clericus cancellarii d'ni Regis, cui aie p'pciet deus," that is, "Here lies William de Lound, formerly clerk of chancery of our lord the King, on whose soul may God have mercy." This incumbent was presented to the rectory by Joseph Panely, prior of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, in 1355: the choir seats were recently presented by Mrs. Skipworth; the nave was reseated in 1868. The registers date from the year 1670, and includes the register of Amcotts previous to 1836. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge, £320; gross yearly value, £420, including 24 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1862 by the Rev. Robert Charlton B.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Hull and Gainsborough steamers pass the village daily, stopping when required. The river Trent is crossed by means of ferry-boats. Miss Skipworth, who is lady of the manor, Mrs. Dunn and William Stephenson esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The soil is warp; subsoil, peat. The chief crops are wheat and potatoes. The area is 5,460 acres; rateable value, £10,604; and the population in 1881 was, of the parish, 1,499, and of the township, 527.

Derrythorpe is a hamlet ¾ of a mile south.

Amcotts, formerly part of this parish, is now a separate ecclesiastical parish.

Keadby, a township in this parish, will be found under a separate heading.

Parish Clerk, William Cranidge.

Post Office.—William Cranidge, receive. Letters from Doncaster arrive at 7.30 a.m.; dispatched at 6.10 p.m. The nearest money order offices are Keadby & Burringham: the telegraph office is at Burringham ALVINGHAM is a village and parish, pleasantly situated in the vale of the river Lud, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of Louth Eske hundred, Louth union and county court district, Louth Eske and Ludborough rural deanery, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles north-east from Louth station and 6 south-west from Saltfleet. The church of St. Adelwold is an ancient stone structure, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel and nave, with a tower at the west end in which are 3 bells. The register dates from the year 1590. The living is a perpetual curacy, consolidated with that of Cockerington St. Mary, or North Cockerington, yearly value about £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1879, by the Rev. Benjamin Curtis A.K.C. London, who resides at North Cockerington vicarage. Here are places of worship for Wesleyans and Primitive and Free Methodists. A priory of Gilbertine nuns and canons, dedicated to the Virgin Mary and St. Adelwold, was founded here in the reign of Henry II. which, at the Dissolution, was granted to Lord Clifton: the chapel still remains, and, having been thoroughly repaired in 1841, now serves as a church for the adjoining parish of North Cockerington. The Louth Navigation passes through the parish. Simon Thomas Scrope esq. is lord of the manor, but the land belongs to various proprietors. The soil is clayey and loamy; and the subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 1,940 acres; rateable value, £2,352; the population in 1881 was 267.

AMCOTTS is a township and village, formerly in the parish of Althorpe, but constituted a separate parish by an Order in Council in 1850, and declared a rectory by the Ecclesiastical Commission in 1866: it is in the Isle of Axholme, Northern division of the county, West division of Manley wapentake, parts of Lindsey, Thorne union and county court district, Axholme rural deanery, Stow archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, pleasantly situated on the west bank of the river Trent, over which there is a ferry to Flixboro Stather; it is 7 miles east-by-north from Crowle and 2 south-west from Headly station. The church of St. Mark is a building of stone, in the Early English style, erected in 1853, at a cost of £1,300, and consisting of chancel, nave, porch, vestry and a tower with broach spire: there are four stained windows in the chancel: the church is built on the site of the old chapel of ease, dedicated to St. Thomas-à-Becket, which fell down in 1850, and which was itself built out of the ruins of a much larger structure. The register dates from the year 1836; all entries previous to 1836 are in the registers of Althorpe parish. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value, £360, including 122 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1861 by the Rev. Alfred Sweeting M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Edward Weston Cracroft Amcotts esq. of Hackthorn Hall, who is the lord of the manor, S. G. Belton esq. T. Bladworth esq. Mrs. Glasier, Mr. T. Ross, Mr. J. Batty and the Rev. A. Sweeting M.A. and Mr. John Foster are the landowners. The soil is warp, made from the tidal river Trent; subsoil, peat. The chief crops are potatoes, wheat, beans and oats. The area is 2,018 acres; rateable value, £3,619; the population in 1881 was 396.

ANCASTER is a village, parish and station on the Great Northern railway, formerly a Roman fortification, on the Roman road called Ermine street, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, wapentake of Loveden, Grantham union and county court district, Loveden rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, about 7½ miles north-east from Grantham and 7 west from Sleaford. At the Domesday Survey there were two churches here, and on high ground eastward of the present church, a chapel dedicated to St. Mary and served by a hermit. The church of St. Martin is a small but ancient structure of Ancaster stone, in the Norman, Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and a tower with disproportionate spire containing 5 bells: the very beautiful Norman arcade of four bays, on the north side of the nave, has circular piers with cushioned capitals, and the mouldings of the arches increase in elaboration as they approach the east, and there is a fine Norman font: the south arcade, of three bays, is Early English, but its walls Decorated: portions of the old chancel screen are now incorporated into the pews: the four stained windows in the chancel and the two at the west end were presented by F. W. Allix esq. in memory of his parents and other members of his family: in 1859 the nave was refloored, the nave refitted and other repairs effected, under the direction of Messrs. Kirk and Parry: in the churchyard are two fine ecclesiastical effigies and several stone coffins; and some remarkable sculptures of Roman origin have been met with near the church, including representations of the Dee Matres and a small altar. The register dates from the year 1722. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value, £200, including 118 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1862 by the Rev. John Primatt Maud B.C.L. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The Vicarage house, situated near the church, is of Ancaster stone, and was erected in 1842 by the late vicar. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, and there is a place of worship for the Wesleyal Reformers at Sudbrook; the latter chapel was built in 1837. The poor have £6 14s. yearly for fuel. In the neighbourhood are the famous Ancaster quarries, owned by the "Ancaster Stone Company:" the stone is an oolite of the lower order, hardening with exposure to the atmosphere, and has been extensively used for building in Nottingham and numerous places in the adjacent counties; the Savings Bank at Grantham, Harlaxton Hall, West Willoughby Hall and other public buildings and private mansions are built of this stone; also the Midland Railway station and hotel, St. Pancras, London. The chief residences in the parish are West Willoughby Hall, a spacious mansion, built of Ancaster stone, and surrounded by pleasant woods and plantations of 300 acres, the seat of Frederick William Allix esq. J.P., D.L. and Ancaster Hall, the seat of Edmund James Lucas-Calcraft esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor of Ancaster; F. W. Allix esq. is lord of those of West Willoughby and Sudbrook. Ancaster was a Roman station on the road called "Ermine Street," and is believed to be identical with the Roman town Causennæ: great quantities of Roman coins have been found here, and in the last century a tesselated pavement was uncovered: eastward of the church there was once a castle, and in the sixteenth century an old chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, on the highest part of the hills, but no remains of either now exist. In June, 1865, a Roman kiln was discovered close to the eastern side of Ermine Street, a little north of the village, with remains of pottery, a few small coins and six or seven skeletons. F. W. Allix esq. J.P., D.L. Capt. M. W. Willson, E. J. Lucas-Calcraft esq. J.P. and Charles Kirk esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, rock. In 1773 the parish was enclosed, and what was formerly a wild and barren heath is now cultivated land. The chief crops are turnips, wheat, barley and seeds. The area is 2,800 acres; rateable value, £4,655; the population in 1881 was 650.

SUDBROOK and WEST WILLOUGHBY are two small hamlets, about 1 mile north-west and west respectively from the village.

Edith is a low building of stone, in the late Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, a large south porch and a western tower with broach spire containing 3 bells: in many of the windows are fragments of stained glass: the chancel is a mere fragment of the original, its eastern bay having wholly disappeared: the roofs, covered with lead, are all singularly low in pitch, and give the church a strangely mean appearance: the south porch is disproportionately large, an effect increased by double buttresses at each angle, and a gable rising considerably above the roof of the aisle: the west tower is of three stages with double buttresses at the angles, terminating in crocketed weatherings: the spire, which is octagonal, has three tiers of louvre lights: the church was restored in 1859, under the direction of Mr. Kirk, and during the progress of the work, a coloured group of the Virgin and Child and three small shafts of late Norman work were discovered on opening a doorway which formerly led to the rood loft. The register dates from the year 1573. The living is a discharged vicarage, tithe rentcharge, £93, united to the rectories of Braunceswell and Dunsby, joint net yearly valne, £880, including 93 acres of glebe at Anwick, with residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Bristol and Septimus Lowe esq., alternately, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Haskett Smith M.A. late scholar of Christ's College, Cambridge. The vicarage house is a handsome and commodious edifice, entirely covered with ivy; the grounds are large and well laid out. Jolley's charity of £3 12s. yearly, left in 1684 by William Jolley of Anwick, is for fuel. The Marquess of Bristol is the principal landowner. The soil is of strong clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley, turnips and seeds. The area is 2,019 acres; rateable value, £2,571; the population in 1881 was 348.

APPLEBY is a parish and pleasant village, with a station on the Trent and Ancholme railway and 1 mile south from the village, in the northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, north division of Manley wapentake, union and county court district of Brigg, petty sessional division of Winterton, Manlake rural deanery, Stow archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 7 miles north-by-west from Brigg, 2½ south-east from Winterton, and 170½ from London, situated on the Roman road, Ermine street. The church of St. Bartholomew is a handsome stone edifice, in the Decorated style, with a tower and 6 bells: the exterior was restored in 1868: there is a very richly carved pulpit, and several handsome stained windows: the church was restored 1882, new roofed, nave and tower partly rebuilt, new seats of oak were added at a cost of about £3,000, chiefly defrayed by Rowland Winn esq. M.P. and the vicar: a striking clock was added in the tower by William Coulman Brown esq. of this parish. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a vicarage, yearly value, £210, with 9 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Rowland Winn esq. M.P. of Nostell Priory, near Wakefield, and of Appleby Hall, and held since 1856 by the Rev. John Edward Cross M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, J.P. At Thornholme, 2 miles south-east, are the ruins of a priory of Augustine canons, and in the village the remains of an ancient cross. Here are iron works, worked by a limited company: bricks are also made here. There is a reading-room. The Hall, an ancient mansion, is the occasional residence of Rowland Winn esq. M.P., M.A., D.L., J.P. of Nostell Priory, Wakefield, who is lord of the manor and principal owner of the land. The soil is partly loam and gravelly; subsoil, limestone, with a valuable bed of ironstone, which is largely worked. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. with spire, containing 4 bells: the chancel retains a piscina and locker, and there is a piscina in the south aisle: the tower and spire, added in the Perpendicular period, are very striking but completely dwarf the church; the former has a rich lozenge-shaped panelled parapet and four tall pinnacles with singular crocketed flying buttresses: the spire is also crocketed and has two tiers of louvre lights: on the western splay of the chancel door is a curious but roughly cut outline of a chalice and wafer; on the north side is a monument to Cecily, wife of Samuel Sutton, rector, 1680, and on the south side a brass inscription to John Butler of Baketon, 1603, with arms and crest: it was restored in 1870, when an oak pulpit was presented by Bruce Tomlinson esq. The register dates from the year 1640. The living is a rectory, to which that of Kirkby-Laythorpe was united in 1737, tithe rent-charge, £300, net yearly value £600, in the gift of the Marquess of Bristol, and held since 1877 by the Rev. John Gorton M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, and late archdeacon of Madras, who resides at Kirkby-Laythorp. The Marquess of Bristol is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley and turnips. The area is 838 acres; rateable value, £1,377; the population in 1881 was 126.

ASHBY-cum-FENBY is a parish consisting of two hamlets, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, county court district of Grimsby, Caistor union, rural deanery of Grimsby, No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles south from Grimsby, 3½ south-west from Holton-le-Clay and 4 north-west from North Thoresby stations and 154 from London. The church of St. Peter is a small ancient structure, in the Norman and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle and a tower containing 3 bells: the oldest portion is the south wall of the nave: one of the chancel windows contains some contemporary stained glass, and there is a very ancient stone font and a poor box; in the tower is the recumbent cross-legged effigy of a knight of the time of Edward I.: there are other monuments to Susanna, daughter of Sir William Drury and Elizabeth Stafford, of the noble family of Buckingham, dated 1606, and to Sir William Wray and Lady Frances Wray his wife, dated 1617, and an inscribed slab to another member of the Wray family, dated 1699: the fabric was extensively restored in 1845. There are sittings for 105 persons. The register, including Fenby, dates from the year 1723. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £300, net yearly value £310 including residence built in 1849, and 44 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor and held, since 1850 by the Rev. James Garvey M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, who is also rector of Brigsley. The Wesleyans have a chapel here, erected in 1836. Lady Frances Wray erected almshouses for six poor men or women of Ashby, Barnoldby-le-Beck, Grainsby and Waith: Sir Christopher Wray, her son, endowed them in 1641 with a yearly rent-charge of £30; the two Ashby almspeople have also the interest of £100 left by the late Rev. John Williams M.A. William Heaford Danbney esq. who is lord of the manor, and Harrison Hayter and William Goodenough Hayter esqrs. are the principal landowners. The soil is generally stiff; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 1,675 acres; rateable value, £2,716; the population in 1881 was 264.

and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 7 miles north from Sleaford. The church of St. Hybald is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave and a plain embattled tower with spire, containing 5 bells; the chancel and nave (except the north arcade and chancel arch) were rebuilt in 1854, at the cost of the late vicar, the Rev. John William King B.D.: the font is of the Decorated period: the earliest portions of the fabric are the tower and north doorway. When Holles visited this church in 1640 he found two monuments here commemorating Simon and Isabel de la Launde, the last of which remained in the north part of the nave pavement until the late restoration: portions of a Jacobean monument to Edward King and his wives Mary (Clopton) and Elizabeth (Colly) remain in the chapel: the kneeling effigies of the above are now placed on a ledge in the north wall, and opposite are those of their daughters Mary Anne and Elizabeth, and of a baby in a cradle, representing Amy, a fourth daughter of Edward King by his second wife: on the chancel arch is a small brass to Edward King, dated 13th July, 1617, and below it are the remains of four Latin lines: the communion plate consists of a silver flagon and chalice dated 1719. The register dates from the year 1690. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly value £330, in the gift of the trustees under the will of the Rev. John William King, B.D. and held since 1875 by the Rev. Christopher Child M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Ashby Hall, the seat of Capt. Neville H. Reeve J.P. is a handsome mansion close to the village, built in 1595, and since altered and improved. The trustees of the late Rev. John William King B.D. are impropriators of the tithes, lords of the manor and sole landowners. The soil is light loam; subsoil, gravel and shale. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips, mangolds, potatoes and seeds. The area is 2,880 acres; rateable value, £3,414; the population in 1881 was 169.

ASHBY-by-PARTNEY is a village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles north-east from Spilsby railway station, 1¼ south from Halton Holgate railway station and 127½ from London. The river Limb runs through the parish. The church of St. Helen is a plain structure of brick, in the Gothic style, probably erected in the later thirteenth century, and consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a wooden belfry at the west, containing 1 bell: the chancel roof was covered with tiles, in 1824, having been previously thatched: on the south wall of the chancel is a monument of stone with arms, and inscription to John, son and heir of George Gilbi, of Stanton, esq. 1580: other memorials, some of which have inscriptions now illegible, bear the arms of the Earls of Arundel and Hastings, who had property here in the reign of Edward I. The register dates from the year 1552. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £140 with residence, in the gift of Major-Gen. Charles John Fowler R.E. of 6 Nevern road, Earl's court S.W. and held since 1842 by the Rev. John Elye Norris B.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. There is a chapel for the Wesleyans. The charities amount to £8 10s. and include a sum of £5 10s. which was left by the Rev. Thomas Taylor, late of Authorpe; of which £4 is given to the clergyman of the parish to preach or cause to be preached a sermon on the anniversary of the donor's death, £1 to a good poor frequenter of the Church of England and 10s. to be spent on pious books to be given to children of the parish who can best repeat the catechism. The remaining charity of £3 is derived from land given by an unknown benefactor, and is distributed to the poor by the vestry. Major-Gen. Charles John Fowler R.E. who is lord of the manor, Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, and Chas. Thomas Samuel Birch-Reynardson esq. D.L. of Holywell hall, Stamford, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley, oats and potatoes, with a good portion of rich pasture land. The area is 993 acres; rateable value, £1,167: the population in 1881 was 124. The Lady Wath Beck is one mile south-east.

ASLACKBY (pronounced AIZELBY) is a parish, township and scattered village, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Aveland hundred, Bourn union and county court district and rural deanery of Aveland, No. 2, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles south from Falkingham, 3 north-west from Rippingale station, 7 north from Bourn and 104 from London by road, on the road from Bourn to Sleaford. The church of St. James is a building of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled tower at the west end containing 4 bells and a clock: the nave has a bell-cote at its eastern end and there are piscinæ and lockers in each aisle. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value about £480 with residence, in the gift of and held since 1876 by the Rev. John Smithson Barstow M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels here, the former was erected in 1863. Brownlow's charity of £4 yearly is for fuel. Here formerly stood a castle, said to have been built by one of the Wakes; traces of the earthwork defending it on the western side still exist. Here are the remains of a preceptory of the Knights Templars, now forming part of a farm-house, occupied by Mr. William Fancourt. Robert de Rye, was an early benefactor, in 1185, of the Templars settled in this place, but the preceptory was probably established rather later, in 1194, and there was here, as at Temple Bruer, a round church, portions of which existed till about 1800, and the only fragment now existing is a small square tower of two storeys with a machicolated and embattled parapet pierced with crenelles and bearing on its exterior the arms of the Templars and of the family of de Rye. The lower room has a groined roof, c. 1320, enriched with numerous shields; at the Dissolution (1541-2) the lands were granted to Edward, Lord Clinton and Ursula, his wife. Near to the village are stone quarries. Edward Nathaniel Conant esq. of Lyndon hall, Oakham, is lord of the manor. The landowners are E. N. Conant esq. the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, Lord Aveland P.C. H. Smith esq. and some small owners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and oats and pasturage. The area of the parish is 3,934 acres; rateable value, £5,392; the population in 1881 was—of the parish, 432; of the township, 342.

MILLTHORPE is a hamlet in this parish, 2 miles east from Aslackby, with a population in 1881 of about 70.

GRABY is a hamlet, partly in the parish of Aslackby and partly in the parish of Dowsby, one mile south-by-east from Aslackby and one west from Dowsby, with a population in 1881 of 20. The Aslackby part is called West Graby. The land here is chiefly pasturage. Lord Aveland is lord of the manor.

The FEN is about 3 to 5 miles, and the Decoy about 4 miles to the eastward.

or two good windows: there is no habitable rectory house attached to the benefice, the incumbent residing in a house near the church, of which he is the owner: the church has been recently (1884) re-roofed and improved, at a cost of upwards of £100, defrayed partly by the rector and partly by subscriptions: the church plate bears date 1680. The register of baptisms, burials and marriages dates from the year 1558. The living is a discharged rectory, gross yearly value £230 including 52 acres of glebe, in the gift of Robert C. Vyner esq. and held since 1876 by the Rev. James Foster B.A. Durham. The Wesleyans have a place of worship here, built 1862. The rector has £4, and the church poor £1 10s. yearly, left by Thomas Taylor in 1708. Robert C. Vyner esq. is lord of the manor and owner of nearly all the land. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and beans. The area is 924 acres; rateable value, £1,252; the population in 1881 was 159, but recently has much decreased.

AYLESBY is a small village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, Bradley Haverstoe wapentake, Caistor union, Grimsby county court district, parts of Lindsey, rural deanery of Grimsby No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles west-south-west from Grimsby and 4 south-west from Great Coates railway station, on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway and 160 from London. The church of St. Lawrence is a building of stone of the Early English, late Decorated and Perpendicular styles and consists of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled tower with four pinnacles containing 3 bells and a south porch: the nave and aisles were re-roofed and the tower repaired in 1857, under the direction of Messrs. Maughan and Fowler, at a cost of £420, raised by subscription from the principal parishioners: below the west window of the north aisle is the effigy in stone of a lady of the fourteenth century. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £73 with 35 acres of glebe, in the gift of Thomas Tyrwhitt Drake esq. but pro hac vice, the Crown and held since 1883 by the Rev. George William Julius Jacoby, who is also curate of and resides at Laceby. Thomas Tyrwhitt Drake esq. of Shardeloes, Bucks, is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is strong loam; subsoil, clay on low lands, on the wolds chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,110 acres; rateable value, £2,620; the population in 1881 was 121.

BARDNEY with SOUTHREY (or SOUTH-ROW) and BARDNEY DAIRIES.

BARDNEY is a parish, large village and station on the Great Northern railway, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Western division of the wapentake of Wraggoe, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Wraggoe, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, situate on the east bank of the river Witham, 129 miles from London, 6 south from Wragby, 10 east-by-south from Lincoln and 10 west from Horncastle. The Great Northern railway has stations at Bardney and Southrey; at the former is the junction of the Louth and Lincoln line. The church of St. Lawrence is a large building of brick and stone of the Perpendicular period, dating probably from about 1420, with some fragments of Norman work, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a square embattled western tower containing 4 bells: the chancel was restored in 1873 at the cost of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners: the ancient altar slab, bearing seven crosses, has been raised from its previous position in the floor and now occupies its original place, supported on an oaken frame; it was brought from the old abbey, the ruins of which are near: there is some church plate of the date 1569: the rest of the church was restored in 1878, at a cost of about £2,500, when the west end of the north aisle was formed into a baptistery. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly value £150, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln and held since 1873 by the Rev. William Vlako Turner M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge. There are three Wesleyan chapels, two at Bardney and one at Southrey. The principal charities consist of a Free school for the poor children of Bardney, Southrey, Tupholme and Bucknall, founded in 1711 by Thomas Kitching, who devised landed property which produces £250 yearly to support the school and also to relieve poor widows and apprentice poor children of Southrey; £20 being allotted as an annual income to the schools, £2 for the relief of widows and the remainder for apprenticeships. The charity is managed by 12 trustees. The Rev. William Vlako Turner M.A. is clerk to the trustees. Peter Handcock's Hospital was founded by him in 1712 for seven men and seven women of Bardney and endowed with a weekly payment of 1s. coals, and once in two years, clothing: the vicar of Bardney is chaplain, whose stipend, £10, is chargeable on the Manor farm. Knowle's charity of £18 yearly, left in 1603 by Joseph and John Knowle, of Willoughby, is for bread and clothing. The mitred Benedictine Abbey of SS. Paul, Peter and Oswald at Bardney, was founded at an early but unascertained period and hither, after the fatal battle of Masserfield, August 5, 642, the remains of Oswald, the young king of Northumbria, were brought by his niece Ostryth, queen of Etheldred, King of Mercia, who in 704, resigned his crown to become abbot of Bardney: in an adjoining meadow, known as King's Hill Close, is a barrow, said to mark his burial place: the abbey was, in 870, destroyed by the Danes, who murdered nearly all the monks: after remaining in ruins 200 years, it was rebuilt in the reign of William the Conqueror, by Bishop Remigius and Gilbert de Gaunt, Earl of Lincoln, who endowed it with tithes of all his estates: the building stood upon 6 acres of land, in a moated enclosure containing 25 acres; the abbots were styled lords of Lindsey and sat as Peers in Parliament: their possessions received the last charter of royal confirmation 20th of Henry VII.; and it is conjectured that it possessed 20,000 acres of land, advowsons and pensions from churches and an annual income of the present value of £16,000: the revenue was valued at £429 7s. and after the Dissolution the site was granted to Sir Robert Tyrwhitt: the moated site is all that is now left to mark the site of this great monastic house. The Earl of Harrowby is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Robert Charles de Grey Vyner esq. trustees of the late Phillip Gibbons esq. and William Henry Donville esq. and Alfred Hutton esq. The soil is various; subsoil, clay, sand and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 5,243 acres; rateable value, £10,858; the population in 1881 was 1,393.

SNAKEHOLME and BARDNEY DAIRIES are hamlets, 2 miles north.

SOUTHREY is a hamlet and station on the Great Northern railway, 2½ miles south-east from Bardney, at which the school is licensed for church service.

BARHOLM is a parish and small well-built village, in the Southern division of the county, union and county court district of Stamford, Ness wapentake, parts of Kesteven, rural deanery of Ness, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, one mile and a half north from the Tallington station, 5 miles north-east from Stamford and 4 north-west from Market Deeping. The church of St. Martin is a small and very ancient structure, in the Norman and Transition styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle and a western tower, containing 3 bells: the tower is of a later period than the other portion of the church, and bears date 1648: at the top of the exterior wall is the following curious inscription:

"Was ever such a thing since the creation?
A new steeple built in the time of vexation."

The south doorway is Norman: the south side of the chancel retains a piscina and sedilia: the church was completely restored in 1857, under the superintendence of Mr. Edward Browning, architect, of Stamford, when the whole building was new roofed, the interior reseated and new pulpit, prayer desk and stalls introduced, all being of oak. The register dates from the year 1726. The living is a vicarage, with that of Stow, near Market Deeping, annexed, tithe rent-charge £45, joint net yearly value £165, including 70 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the governors of Oakham and Uppingham schools, and held since 1876 by the Rev. George Palmer Lane M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Lord Kesteven J.P. is lord of the manor, and with the governors of Oakham and Uppingham schools, the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are barley and wheat. The area is 1,230 acres; rateable value, £1,814 10s.; the population in 1881 was 179.

BARKSTON-LE-WILLOWS is a parish and station on the Great Northern railway, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Winnibriggs wapentake, Newark union, Spittlegate petty sessional division, Grantham county court district, rural deanery of North Grantham, Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 110 miles from London and 4 north-by-east from Grantham. The church of St. Nicholas, restored in 1865, at a cost of £800, is an elegant structure in the twelfth century Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, porch and a tower with pinnacles and graceful crocketed spire, containing a clock and 3 bells, the south arcade consists of three arches: the chapel retains a piscina and has a richly-worked parapet with pinnacles; it was built in the fifteenth century, but the aisle was rebuilt in the fourteenth century: the porch is Perpendicular, and above the arch is a rude invocatory inscription in Latin, on behalf of Thomas Pacy, a member of a family by whom the manor was held, temp. Henry VI.: near the north doorway are two sepulchral slabs of a priest and a civilian, with figures of a censing angel on each side: the east window is a memorial to the Rev. E. Willes, a former curate. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, yearly value £610 with residence, in the gift of Sir John Henry Thorold bart. and held since 1850, by the Rev. Richard Reade M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, non-resident. The Rev. Edward Mansfield Clements B.A. vicar of Syston, is curate-in-charge, and resides at the rectory. There is a small endowment for the instruction of poor children; also six bedehouses for poor persons, with an endowment of £43 per annum; also £18 yearly, derived from poor's land, distributed in coal and flour. John Archer Houblon esq. J.P. is lord of the manor. Sir John Henry Thorold bart. D.L., J.P. of Syston park, is principal landowner; there are also smaller owners. The soil is a light sand; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and seeds. The area is 2,083 acres; rateable value, £4,433; the population in 1881 was 499.

BARNETBY-LE-WOLD is a village and parish, and railway station in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, south division of Yarborough wapentake, Brigg union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow, Lincoln diocese. Barnetby station is a junction on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway; lines from Doncaster, Lincoln, Gainsborough and Grimsby meet here: it is 3¾ miles east from Brigg and 15¼ west from Grimsby. The church of St. Mary, situated on an eminence, is in the Early English style and comprises chancel, nave and low square tower and 3 bells: the south wall and other portions are Saxon and the church contains a curious and ancient leaden font, of the Norman period, 1 foot 7¾ inches in height and 2 feet wide, and adorned externally with three bands of arabesque-like scroll work, cast in relief. The register dates from the year 1753. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £307 with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1857 by the Rev. Benjamin Street B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Here are Wesleyan, Primitive and Free Methodist chapels. Michael Emerson's charity consists of 10 acres of land in North Kelsey, which produce annually the sum of £15, for apprenticing poor boys; it is seldom required for that purpose, and if not it is given to the National school. There is here a lodge of the ancient order of Druids in a flourishing state. Everatt and William Abraham esqrs. who are lords of the manor, and Wm. Parkinson Neale esq. and the Earl of Yarborough D.L., J.P. are principal landowners. The soil is limestone and sand; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat, turnips and barley. The area is 2,630 acres; rateable value, £7,155; the population in 1881 was 849, which included 97 in the hamlet of New Barnetby, now attached ecclesiastically to Melton Ross.

BARNOLDBY-LE-BECK is a village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, Caistor union, Grimsby county court district, rural deanery of Grimsby No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles north-west from Holton station and 5 south-south-west from Grimsby. The church of St. Helen is a plain building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled tower, with four pinnacles and containing 3 bells. The register dates from the year 1572. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value, from 225 acres of glebe, £340 with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1861 by the Rev. Morgan George Watkins M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, rural dean of Grimsby (No. 2 division), diocesan inspector of schools for the Grimsby deaneries, and surrogate. There is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1832; and a Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1839. The parish has the benefit of Laceby school, and also sends two inmates to Ashby almshouses; there is a charity of 20s. a year for the poor. In 1862 a granite obelisk was erected in the village, opposite the churchyard, by the members of the hunt, at a cost of £110, to the memory of William Smith, huntsman to the Earl of Yarborough, on the spot where he fell from his horse, April 11th, 1845, from the effects of which he expired on the 16th of the same month. Luke Borman esq. and Charles Manby Nainby esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, are the principal landowners. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 1,460 acres; rateable value, £2,193; the population in 1881 was 212.

BARROW-ON-HUMBER is a parish and large well-built village, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, North division of Yarborough wapentake, Glanford Brigg union, Barton-upon-Humber petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 2½ miles east from Barton, 2 south-west from New Holland station, 5 south-south-west from Hull and 2 south from the Humber. There is a station, called Barrow Haven, on the Barton branch of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, and there is a ferry across the Humber to Hull. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, organ chamber and an embattled western tower, containing 6 bells, which have been re-hung, at a cost of £130: a triple lancet stained window was added in 1856): the restoration of the chancel was in part carried out in the years 1841 and 1856, and again in the year 1885, when both aisles were new roofed and reseated, the north aisle being rebuilt, the nave refitted, the chancel arch renewed, a porch erected and other works carried out, at a cost of £1,400, under the direction of Messrs. Kirk and Parry, of Sleaford: there are several stained windows and choir stalls of oak, erected mainly at the cost of Mrs. Maw, of The Grange: the church plate was presented by an ancestor of the late Mr. Kirk, of Barrow: the Incorporated Society for Building Churches &c. granted £25 in 1868 towards reseating and restoring this church, by which additional seats are afforded for 65 persons. The entire area will now seat 397 persons; all sittings are free, subject to allotment by the churchwardens, suitable provision being made for the humbler classes. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £190; gross yearly value £280, including 35 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1878 by the Rev. John Edward Sampson. Sir Cecil Wray bart. left in 1669 lands to found a Sunday afternoon lectureship: the appointment is in the hands of trustees: the Rev. John Edward Sampson, vicar, is the present lecturer. Here are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist and Congregational chapels. In 1856 a Cemetery was formed, at a cost of £1,000, with an area of 2 acres: it has two chapels, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members. The charities, left in 1596 by Roger, 5th Earl of Rutland, amount to £14 2s. 6d. yearly, and are distributed among the poor by the vicar and churchwardens. Barrow Fair is held on October 11th. About a mile to the north-west of the village, on the marsh, is an earthwork, called The Castle, in which human bones have been found: it occupies an area of about 8 acres, and consists of a large circular mound, surrounded by a fosse 40 feet wide, and surmounted by a small tumulus: round this are grouped several irregularly shaped outworks, also enfossed: the fortification was well protected on the south by a stream which formerly created a swamp or bog in that direction. A little to the north of the village is the site of a convent, founded by St. Chad, in the 7th century, which Bede says remained in his time: in digging here some years ago, stone coffins, a gold ring, an iron weapon and other relics were found. Barrow Hall, on the south side of the village, is a well built mansion, in the occupation of George Charles Uppleby esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. The manorial rights, which belonged to the Crown, were in 1859 sold to Adam Jessop esq. J.P. of Castleford, Yorkshire.

The principal landowners are George Charles Uppleby esq. D.L., J.P. Mrs. Maw, Tombleson's trustees and the Corbett trustees. The soil is partly loam, chalk and clay; subsoil, principally chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 4,755 acres of land and 1,370 of water; rateable value, £11,953, including New Holland; the population in 1881 was 2,711, including New Holland.

ham canal. The church of All Saints is a building of the Early English and Decorated periods, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles and a tower, with spire containing 5 bells: the font is a particularly rich and beautiful specimen of Decorated work, panelled and elaborately carved: portions of the rood screen, displaced, remain: there is a brass to Nicholas Deene (temp. Ed. IV.) and Katherine (Pedwardine), his wife, with effigies of both, and of nine sons: and another brass to James Deene, grandson of the foregoing Nicholas, 1498, and Margaret (Armine), his wife, 1500: the effigy of James Deene is lost, but that of his wife, clad in an heraldic mantle, remains: there are three other slabs, despoiled of their brasses: there is a monument of later date to Dr. Hurst, formerly rector of Barrowby and Headenham, and chaplain to Charles I.; he was plundered, imprisoned and ejected on account of his loyalty to the king, but eventually died here in 1674: the church was restored in 1854, and an organ chamber was added in 1870: the east window, a Perpendicular one of three lights, has recently (1884) been filled with stained glass, the centre light by the vicar, the others by subscription, the total cost being £140. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, yearly value £1,200, including 420 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of the Duke of Devonshire K.G. and held since 1849 by the Rev. George Earle Welby B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, rural dean. The Wesleyans and United Free Methodists have each a place of worship here. Annual donations, from various sources, to the amount of £5 12s. are distributed to the poor of the parish. The Duke of Devonshire K.G. is lord of the manor and principal landowner; Sir John Henry Thorold bart. D.L., J.P. the Duke of Rutland K.G. and the Welby family hold chief part of the remainder. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay and stone. The chief crops are barley and wheat; and there is a fair proportion of pasture land. The area is 4,462 acres; rateable value, £9,043; the population in 1881 was 807.

BARTON-UPON-HUMBER.

BARTON-UPON-HUMBER is a small market town on the south border of the Humber: it is a polling-place for the Northern division of the county and head of a county court district, in the parts of Lindsey, north division of Yarborough wapentake, union of Glanford Brigg, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 10 miles north-east from Brigg and 20 north-west from Grimsby, 6 south-west from Hull by water, 34 north from Lincoln and 165 from London. A branch of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, 3½ miles in length, was opened in 1849, and runs to New Holland station, and communication is had thence by steamboats to Hull; a new station was built in 1855; there are also horse and cattle boats to Hull and Hessle.

The town is governed by a local board of 21 members. The road from Barton to Risholme was constructed in 1765; gas works were erected in 1846, at a cost of upwards of £3,000 and enlarged in 1856.

There are two churches in this town—St. Peter's and St. Mary's. St. Peter's, the mother church, is a spacious building, chiefly in the Decorated style, with some Perpendicular insertions and additions, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, vestry, north and south porches and a western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, the oldest of which is dated 1666: the sixth has this inscription—

"Our sounding is, each man to call
To serve the Lord, both great and small."

The clock, presented by the late Miss Tombleson, was placed in the tower in November, 1852, at a cost of £120. The great feature of this church is its celebrated tower, a short, massive structure, with very thick walls, and originally of three stages, and now 7 ft. high and 18 ft. square: the upper portion of the tower is certainly Norman, of Early date, but the architectural construction of the lower stages is so entirely different from that above as to lead to the conclusion, supported by Rickman, that these remains are undoubtedly Saxon work, only comparable for its extreme simplicity to that of Clapham in Bedfordshire. The two lower stages are ornamented by strips or ribs of stone projecting vertically from the walls and breaking into arches near the top of each stage: this part retains also the long and short quoin and rib stones, with the baluster window, for what appears to have been the original belfry storey, before the addition of the Norman belfry: extending westward from the tower is a small building also apparently Saxon, with long and short work at the angles, and windows splayed on both sides: the east window of the south aisle is especially interesting from its centre mullion bearing in high relief, a figure of Our Lord upon the Cross, with the Virgin and St. John on either side; near this window is a mutilated piscina: the east window of the chancel retains some old glass, including two figures of a pilgrim with staff, wallet and book, and a knight in mail and plate armour, with surcoat and shield, each of the latter bearing a cross: these figures appear from the costume to belong to the time of Edward II. and they represent St. George of England and St. James the Great, rather than any conjectural member of the Beaumont family: there are memorial windows to Mr. Marriott, erected in 1842: to the Rev. George Uppleby, late vicar, placed in 1856: to Mrs. Uppleby, erected by her children in 1858: and to Mr. Lunn, inserted in 1862: there is a mutilated brass effigy, with inscription, to Robert Barnetby, of Barton, esq. 1440: and other brasses to William Garton, of Barton, 1505; and Edward Tripple, yeoman, 1619: there are other memorials in the church to Jane, wife of John Shipsea, rector of Saxby, 1696: Anthony Empringham, yeoman, 1698, and to Mr. Cole, a former vicar: the organ, a memorial to the late Richard Eddie esq. was erected in March, 1856, by W. H. Eddie esq. and the Rev. R. Eddie: the building was extensively restored in 1858, under the direction of Mr. Broderick, at a cost of £1,400: when the nave was re-roofed and the interior reseated and generally refitted, including the introduction of a new organ, pulpit and font: there are 760 sittings, all of which are free.

The church of St. Mary, which stands within 150 yards of St. Peter's, and was originally only a chapel of ease to that church, is a building in the Normau and Early English styles, with Perpendicular insertions, and consists of a chancel with a south aisle called St. James' aisle, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch, vestry, and a western tower, 74 feet in height, with plain parapet and six pinnacles, and containing 4 bells, the oldest of which was cast in 1666: the oldest portions of the church are the Transition Norman piers of the north aisle; the tower, south arcade and south porch are Early English: the chancel of St. James' aisle is Decorated and retains sedilia: in the church is a large slab of blue stone, with brass effigy standing on two butts or tuns, shields with merchants' marks, inscribed scroll, evangelistic symbols and marginal inscription to Simon Seman, vintner and alderman and sheriff of London (1425), who died August 10, 1433: there are other inscribed stones to Richard Harbod, chaplain, 1470; and William Cannon, 1401, and one to Jacob Wymyrke, chaplain to John de Lynewode, merchant: the organ was erected by subscription in July, 1856, at a cost of £200: divine service was suspended in this church in 1816-18 in consequence of the precarious condition of the roof; this having been renewed and other repairs effected, at a cost of £1,200, the church was re-opened in 1819: in 1883 the chancel was completely restored and refitted, at a cost of about £600; a new pulpit, presented by Mr Hesseltine, in memory of his son, and a brass lectern by Mrs. Eddie, in memory of her husband: the communion plate, which is common to both churches, includes a flagon, dated 1754, and a paten, 1764; that of St. Peter's was stolen about 1800. The register of St. Peter's dates from the year 1566, that of St. Mary's from the year 1569. St. Peter's and St. Mary's parishes are united in one living, a vicarage, yearly value £250, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held by the Rev. George Hogarth M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge.

Here is a Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Augustine, erected in 1840: the Wesleyan chapel was built in 1816, at a cost of upwards of £1,500, and was enlarged with school-room in 1833, at a cost of £1,500; it will seat about 800 persons: the Congregational chapel was built in 1806, and the Primitive Methodist chapel in 1838.

Barton Cemetery, covering a space of about 4½ acres, was consecrated in 1867: there are two mortuary chapels; it is managed by a Burial Board, consisting of twelve members, six for the parish of St. Peter and six for the parish of St. Mary; the vicar is chairman.

The Corn Exchange was built in 1853, at a cost of about £1,000; the police station, with magistrates' room, was built in 1847; and the Temperance hall in 1843, at a cost of £700.

£20 a year is expended on the education of poor children by the trustees under Long and Fountain's charities. In 1879, William Trippe, of Barton, left an estate, consisting of 57A. 3R. 10P. the rents to be expended in clothing six poor people; this devise is known as the Bluecoat charity; the income is now about £200 yearly, and 60 poor men and women are annually clothed out of this fund, and, as by a rule of the trustees, three years must intervene before the same recipient can again participate; 180 poor people are benefited by this charity every three years; 16 grey great coats are also annually distributed from the surplus rents of some land at Barrow, left by Magdalen George, of Barrow, in 1729; secretary and solicitor to the charity, H. R. Dix, Whitecross street. About £50 a year, derived from various charities, is distributed in coals to the poor; and the interest of £300, left by Alice Ingle, of Chapel Allerton, in 1830, and of £100, left by Magdalen George, of Barrow, and £200, by G. Uppleby, of Leeds, is distributed monthly in bread, or coals annually.

In 1840 the late Joel Tombleson, of Barton, gave a yearly rent-charge of £5 to provide books for the Sunday schools, and in 1861 J. Gilby Uppleby esq. of Leeds, left £200 for the benefit of the National schools, and a similar sum for distribution among the poor householders, at the vicar's discretion.

The interest of the proceeds of the sale of the "Town Houses," and of the old workhouse bequeathed by Thomas Benton, of Barton, in 1701, and the rents of Paradise close, and two acres of land near the Haven, the bequest of Thomas Holland, of Barton, 1669, produce about £15 yearly. By a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, dated 3rd December, 1875, the churchwardens and overseers of the parishes of St. Peter and St. Mary were appointed trustees, and the net income is to be applied, for the benefit of the necessitous resident inhabitants, by providing them with clothes, bedding, fuel, medical aid, food, or pecuniary aid in special cases, but in no case to apply the same to the relief of the poor rates.

The chief trades of the town are tanning, which has long been a staple trade, malting, brick and tile making, and the manufacture of rope and whiting; there are also several corn mills.

Barton is a town of great antiquity: in the Domesday Survey it is called "Bereton," and is stated to have contained a church, a priest, two mills of 40s., a market and a ferry of £4 value. It was held at an early period by the family of de Gant, of whom Gilbert de Gant, son of Baldwin, Earl of Flanders, accompanied his uncle, the Conqueror, to England, and had a grant of this lordship. In 1359, on the invasion of Brittany by Edward III. Barton furnished eight ships and 121 men; in 1730 the south side of the market-place was burnt down, and in 1762, 1768, 1817 and 1821 there were violent storms, floods and very severe weather. The enclosure and allotment of the parish was effected by an Act of Parliament obtained in 1793, the area being then 5,920 acres, and the award of the Commissioners was made August 12, 1796.

Capt. John Graburn J.P. of Scarborough, Yorkshire, is lord of the manor of Barton, which is co-extensive with the parish: most of the copyholders have enfranchised their lands, and as Capt. Graburn offers every facility for their doing so, the whole of the copyholds will probably soon be enfranchised.

The population in 1881 was—St. Mary parish, 3,180; St. Peter, 2,159; the area of the two parishes is 6,710 acres of land and 1,430 of water; rateable value, £1,431.

BASSINGHAM is a village and parish on the river Witham, which separates it from Thurlby and Norton Disney, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Kesteven, lower division of Boothby Graffoe wapentake, Lincoln petty sessional division, Newark union and county court district, rural deanery of Graffoe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 9 miles north-east from Newark, 9 south-south-west from Lincoln, 5¾ south-east from the Thorpe and Swinderby stations on the Lincoln and Nottingham railway, and about the same west from the Harmston and Navenby stations on the Lincoln and Grantham line. The church of St. Michael is an ancient stone structure, in the Norman, Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, and a western tower containing 5 bells, also a clock: it has been considerably enlarged at different periods: the tower, being in a ruinous condition, was rebuilt in 1782, under the directions of Mr. Thomas Bell, architect, and in the same year the then rector, at his own expense, partially rebuilt the chancel: in 1860 the church was restored at a cost of £1,200, under the direction of Mr. J. H. Hakewill, when the north arcade, chancel and tower arches were rebuilt, the nave roof repaired, and the aisles roofed anew; the interior was at the same time refitted: during the progress of some excavations within the area of the church a very rude and early oblong font of Ketton stone was discovered, probably of the latter part of the eleventh century. In the wall a double tombstone, with crosses on it, was met with, and a sepulchral slab. The register dates from the year 1572. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £600, including 137 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Corpus Christi college, Oxford: the present rector, the Rev. Charles Francis Willis M.A. late fellow of the college, was instituted to the living in 1879. The chapel belonging to the Wesleyan Methodists, built in 1839, at a cost of £1,000, is a spacious edifice. The charities consist principally of land, purchased by donations from various individuals, the annual produce of which amounts to about £44, which is distributed in money at Christmas and Easter. There are corn mills, a brewery and a malting. The manor of Bassingham is divided, and belongs to Gen. Reeve and Edward Marfleet esq. who, with the Brocklebank family, are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and sandy; the subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 1,940 acres; rateable value, £5,021; the population in 1881 was 725.

BASSINGTHORPE-cum-WESTBY is a parish in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Beltisloe wapentake, Grantham union and county court district, rural deanery of Beltisloe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles south-east from Great Ponton, and about the same distance north-west from Corby stations, and 7½ south-east-by-south from Grantham. The church of St. Thomas-à-Becket is an ancient fabric of stone, in the Saxon style, with chancel, nave and south aisle, and a western tower surmounted by a spire and containing 4 bells, and south porch. The register, including Westby, dates from the year 1542. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Dysart, and held since 1869 by the Rev. James Foottit B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Near the church is the old manor house, in the Elizabethan style, occupied by Mrs. Gibson: the moat is now dry. Here is a charity, value about £3 10s. yearly, arising from £1 per annum left by Mr. Russell, and is paid by the vicar of St. Margaret's, Lincoln, and the interest of £5 left by Mrs. Fisher, distributed in money by the vicar for the benefit of the poor. The Earl of Dysart is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, chiefly clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and cereals. The area of the parish is 1,790 acres; rateable value, £4,877; the population in 1881 was 136.

WESTBY hamlet is half-a-mile south-west from the church.

BASTON is a village and large parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Ness wapentake, Bourn union and county court district, rural deanery of Ness, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, on the high road from Lincoln to Market Deeping, 4 miles south from Bourn, about 3 north-west from Market Deeping and 4½ north by east from Tallington station. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient stone structure, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, porch and a tower with four pinnacles, containing 5 bells and a clock: the stained east window was the gift of Mrs. Rubbins, of this place. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value from glebe £231, with house, built in 1867, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1865 by the Rev. Henry Prior. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. There are a few small charities, amounting to about £16 annually, and distributed to the poor, viz.:—In 1830 the Rev. John Mossop gave 1A. 2R. 25P. of land in Langtoft, now let for £6 yearly, to be divided equally for the relief of poor parishioners of Langtoft and Baston: these have also the interest of £100 given by Lucy Price: a yearly rent-charge of £1 6s. given by William Ireland in 1717, out of a house belonging to Mr. Richard Bland, and called "Burnt Yard close," and another rent-charge of the same amount, given by the Finch and Mostyn families, out of land at Little Weldon; also £10 per year, left by Richard Seaton Norton esq. to be given away in coals on Christmas Eve. Ancient Saxon pottery has often been found in a field near the village. Thetford House, now converted into a farmhouse, is the property of Charles Whattoff esq. Lord Aveland P.C., D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor. Lord Kesteven J.P. Charles Whattoff esq. and Frederick St. L. Pratt esq. J.P. of Paston Hall, Peterborough, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are cereals. The area is 2,382 acres; rateable value, £4,084; the population in 1881 was 774.

BAUMBER (or BAMBURGH) is a village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Northern division of the wapentake of Gartree, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Horncastle, rural deanery of Horncastle, archdeaconry of Stowe, and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles north-west from Horncastle station, situated on the road from Horncastle to Lincoln, and bounded on the east by the river Bain. The church of St. Swithin is supposed to be a stone building, but in 1770 was faced with brick, and consists of a chancel, nave, aisles, and a tower with 3 bells: the nave is separated from the chancel by a screen, and from the aisles by octagonal columns and Pointed arches: there are several mural monuments to the Newcastle and Livesey families, and one to the Rev. John Bainbridge Smith D.D. late incumbent, and his family. Until 1820 this church was the burying place of the Newcastle family. The register dates from the year 1691, and also contains entries of baptisms, marriages and burials for the parishes of Bamburgh, Minting, Gautby, Gotby, Waddingworth and Hatton, from 1695 to 1779. The living is a perpetual curacy, consolidated with the vicarage of Great Sturton, joint yearly value £143, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1849 by the Rev. John Fawssett M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £4 4s. 6d. yearly, arising from the Livesey estate, and are distributed in doles of bread. Stourton Hall, the seat of Joseph Montague Livesey esq. A.Inst.C.E., F.S.A. was originally built by the late Joseph Livesey esq. in 1810, in the Classical style, has been entirely rebuilt of Ancaster stone, and enlarged by the present owner; it stands in a beautifully wooded park of 300 acres, containing a lake; the gardens and grounds have been entirely remodelled and enlarged, and are very extensive. Joseph Montague Livesey esq. who is lord of the manor, and Robert Charles Vyner esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is very varied, with part white clay and part sandy gravel subsoil. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips, and mangold-wurtzel. The area is 3,254 acres; rateable value, £3,736; the population in 1881 was 391.

BECKINGHAM is a village and parish, pleasantly situatel on the eastern bank of the river Witham, and on the road from Sleaford to Newark, which here separates Notts from Lincolnshire, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, wapentake of Loveden, union and county court district of Newark, Sleaford petty sessional division, rural deanery of Loveden, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles east from Newark, 14 south-west from Lincoln, 15 north-west from Sleaford and 3½ north from Claypole station. The church of All Saints is a handsome structure, chiefly in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and a tower of Perpendicular date, surmounted by eight pinnacles, and containing 6 fine-toned bells: the church was repaired and restored in 1857-8, under the direction of M. C. Baily, of Newark, when the western arch was opened, an elegant and effective screen erected, several stained windows inserted at the cost of the rector, his tenants and others, and new open seats introduced; a lectern was at the same time presented by a member of the Lincoln Diocesan Architectural Society: the beautiful Early English doorway of the south porch is richly adorned with the chevron, dog-tooth and nail-head ornaments; on the north side is a Norman doorway, now closed: statues and brackets remain at the east end of each aisle, and in the tower is the recumbent stone effigy of a lady of the fourteenth century; there is an organ in this church. The register dates from the year 1573. The living is a rectory, with the chapelries of Fenton and Stragglethorpe annexed, yearly value £750, including 425 acres of glebe land, in the gift of the Rev. Frederick Fitzgerald M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, and held by him since 1878. The rectory house is a large and handsome building of stone, situated in its own park-like grounds, which are highly ornamental; the lawns slope to the river. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The late Mrs. Dorothy B. Brown, of the Milnes family, and a native of this parish, left in 1878 the sum of £500 to the rector and churchwardens, for educational and useful purposes for the poor of this parish. The poor also have the interest of the sum of £25; there is also about an acre and a half of land, which is let in gardens. The Hall is situated near the church, and is surrounded by pleasure grounds, but has not been occupied for some years. The manor belongs to the family of the late Rev. G. Marsland. Mrs. Marsland, John Handley esq. the Milnes family and Corpus Christi college, Oxford, are the principal landowners. The soil is heavy loam and clay; subsoil, stone and clay.

BELLEAU, so called from a copious spring of excellent water which takes its rise here, is a small village, township and parish delightfully situated in the vale of the Ean rivulet, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey,

Digitized by Google

Marsh division of Calceworth hundred, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Calceworth No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, one mile west from the Claythorpe station on the East Lincolnshire branch of the Great Northern railway, 5 miles north-west from Alford, 8 south-east from Louth, and 9 north from Spilsby. The church of St. John the Baptist is a substantial building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of 5 bays, aisles, south porch, and a western tower containing 3 bells: the whole structure was restored and almost totally rebuilt in 1862, under the direction of Mr. C. E. Giles, architect, of London, at a cost of £1,600, of which Lord Willoughby de Eresby gave £400: the church retains a piscina and aumbry, from the older building, erected by Ralph West, of Claythorpe, temp. Edward II. to which also the arcades and rood loft stairs belonged; the reredos and pulpit are of stone, enriched with marble: in the church is a finely sculptured effigy of a Crusader, cross-legged, with a lion at his feet. The register, including Aby and Claythorpe, dates from the year 1640. The living is a rectory, with Aby and Claythorpe annexed, tithe rent-charge, £204; joint net yearly value £360, including 170 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Richard William Bulmer, of St. Aidans. The rectory house is a modern mansion, pleasantly seated on an acclivity a short distance from the church, and commanding a fine view of the surrounding country. Near the church are the remains of a large mansion, formerly a seat of the Lords Willoughby de Eresby, and afterwards of the Earls of Lindsay: it was surrounded by a moat, and appears to have been entered on the north, where a portion of the gate-house, consisting of part of an octangular turret, standing apart, and two archways, groined and ribbed with stone, still remains; in the centre of one of the arches is a finely carved grotesque head, now much defaced. After the Civil War this parish was sequestrated to Sir Harry Vane. Baroness Willoughby de Eresby is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay and heavy loam; subsoil, clay and a little chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area of the parish is 1,344 acres; rateable value, £830; the population in 1881 was, of the civil parish, 154; of the ecclesiastical, 506; and the townahip 65.

CLAYTHORPE is a township and chapelry, with a population in 1881 of 89. The Hussey family, one of whom was created a baronet in 1661, were formerly seated here. The East Lincolnshire branch of the Great Northern railway has a station here. The principal landowner at Claythorpe is Robert C. Vyner esq.

BELTON, by Gainsborough, is an extensive parish and village, in the Isle of Axholme, Northern division of the county, western division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, union and county court district of Thorne, rural deanery of Axholme, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, one mile and a half north from Epworth, 3½ miles south from Crowle railway station, and 14 north from Gainsborough. The church of All Saints is a large and handsome Gothic stone building, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, with a fine tower at the west end containing 4 bells: the chancel contains three stone stalls, a piscina and a tomb, which is believed to be that of Richard de Belwood, of the fourteenth century; the recumbent effigy of a knight in armour, supposed to have belonged to the tomb, is, however, separate: Sir John Ferne, who wrote Blazon of Gentrie, is buried here; several of the windows are adorned with richly stained glass: the corporation of Lincoln placed a new roof on the chancel, and many alterations and improvements were made by the late vicar. There is an endowment of 17 acres of land left for the repairs of the church, producing an income of £29 annually. The registers are continuous and in excellent preservation from 1568, but some loose leaves give the date 1543, and doubtless there are earlier dates: the register also contains an entry of a confirmation held at Epworth church nearly two centuries ago, when about a thousand persons were confirmed, the greatest number going from this parish; it is signed by John Upsall, curate, and dated 22nd August, 1686. The living is a perpetual curacy, yearly value £170, with residence, in the gift of John William Denne Johnson, of Temple Belwood, and held, since 1879, by the Rev. Robert Walker B.A. of Durham University. There are chapels for Wesleyans, New Connexion and Primitive Methodists. John Lightfoot's charity of £40 yearly, left in the hands of trustees, is distributed on St. Thomas' day in clothing and flour, and there are several other small doles. There was formerly at Sandtoft a Flemish church; the burial ground is still traceable; also a cell of Benedictine monks. A fair is held here annually on the 25th of September. Hirst Priory, 3 miles north from the village, the seat of Thomas Harsley Carnochan esq. is a large and noble building, beautifully situated in extensive grounds, near to which was formerly a cell of Augustine canons annexed to Nostal Abbey. Temple Belwood, the residence of J. W. D. Johnson esq. J.P. is an ancient building, situated in a park of about 150 acres. The remains of an old farm house adjacent was at one time an hospital of the Knights Templars. Two public halls were erected in 1883. A. Parkin is lord of the manor of Epworth. The chief landowners are J. W. D. Johnson esq. George S. Lister esq. and T. Harsley Carnochan esq. The soil is warp, silt, stiff clay and sand; subsoil, clay, sand and peat. The chief crops are wheat, barley and potatoes. The area is 8,530 acres; rateable value, £11,783; the population in 1881 was 1,719. The parish includes the hamlets of BELTOFT, 2 miles north-east; CARHOUSES, half-a-mile west; MOSSWOOD, 2 north; SANDTOFT, 3 north-west; TEMPLE BELWOOD, 1¼ north-east; WESTGATE, 1 north-west; WOODHOUSE, 1½ north, and BRAKIN, half-a-mile.

Parish Clerk, Lewis Pitchfork.

BELTON (near Grantham) is a parish and village, in the vale of the Witham, Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Grantham soke, union and county court district, Spittlegate petty sessional division, rural deanery of North Grantham, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2½ miles north-north-east from Grantham. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is an ancient edifice of stone, of the Norman and Perpendicular periods, consisting of chancel, transeptal chapel, clerestoried nave, north aisle, south porch, and a western tower containing 3 bells, on the largest of which is the inscription—

"Personet hæc cælis Dulcissima vox Gabrielis:"

the most ancient portion of the church is the Norman arcade of the aisle; next in date is the greater part of the tower: the remainder of the structure is Perpendicular and in part modern; the chancel was built by Alicia, Lady Brownlow, in 1721, and the mortuary chapel belongs to the present century; in the centre of the latter is an altar tomb of black and white marble, with a recumbent effigy, by the late Baron Marochetti, of John, first Earl Brownlow (1853), in his robes as a peer: placed against the walls are fine monuments to Sophia (Hume) and Caroline (Fludyer), the earl's first two wives; the former of these monuments includes a figure of "Religion," by Canova; another monument, designed by the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A. commemorates John Hume, Viscount Alford M.P. 1851, and there is a third, with tabernacle work in the Perpendicular style, to J. W. S. Brownlow E. Cust, second earl, ob. 1867: in the chancel are memorials to Richard Brownlow, prothonotary, 1638; Sir John Brownlow, his son, 1679; and Alicia (Pullen), wife of Sir John, 1676, with effigies, Sir Richard Brownlow bart. 1668, and his wife; Sir John Brownlow, his son, who built Belton house, 1697; Sir John Brownlow bart. M.P. afterwards Baron Charleville and Viscount Tyrconnel, 1754, and Eleanor his wife; the Right Hon. Sir John Cust, Speaker of the House of Commons, 1770, his son, Sir Brownlow Cust, first Baron Brownlow, 1807, and others of that family to 1858; and also a monument to the Hon. and Rev. Richard Cust, rector of Belton from 1810 to 1864: the octangular basin of the font is ornamented around its sides with a series of quaint carvings: the east window and one on the south side of the nave are stained; the latter, presented by Frances, Lady Brownlow, in 1823, displays numerous shields, bearing the arms of the Brownlow, Tyrconnel and Cust families, dating from 1641 to 1815. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value of £440, including 30 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Earl Brownlow, and held since 1882 by the Rev. William Arthur Purey Cust B.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The school is supported by Earl Brownlow D.L. J.P. Here is a bedehouse for six poor women, built in 1659, and founded by Alice, wife of Sir John Brownlow bart. whose portrait is in the bedehouse; each inmate receives £10 per annum. Belton House, the seat of Earl Brownlow, is a fine mansion, completed in 1689, from a design by Sir Christopher Wren, and improved in 1775, under the direction of James Wyatt: the apartments contain many valuable pictures by Lely, Kneller, Reynolds, Romney, and others: in 1695 William III. was entertained here, on his progress through the northern counties: the park contains 676 acres, in addition to about 60 acres of pleasure grounds, and has three lakes; an ornamental building, known as Belmont Tower, situated on an eminence on the east side of the park, commands an extensive and interesting view of the surrounding scenery. Earl Brownlow D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil and subsoil are various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans and turnips. The area is 1,710 acres; rateable value, £3 444: the population in 1881 was 183.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Watson.

BENNINGTON is a village and parish extending to the shores of the Wash, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Skirbeck, parts of Holland, Boston union and county court district, rural deanery of North Holland No. 2, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles east-north-east from Boston, on the road from Boston to Wainfleet. Part of Leake civil parish is ecclesiastically annexed to this parish. The church of All Saints is a building of stone, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of 6 bays, aisles, south porch, and western tower containing 6 bells: the chancel, chiefly Early English, but altered during the Perpendicular period, is divided from the nave by a carved oak screen with doors: the upper part had been much mutilated, but has now been restored: the chancel retains a piscina and sedilia of Decorated date and an Easter sepulchre and aumbries of the Early English period: the clerestory, which is Perpendicular, with an embattled parapet, has 6 windows on either side; at the north-east angle of the nave is an octagonal turret with spirelet, containing a stair formerly leading to the rood loft, and on the east gable of the nave is a small bell-cote: both aisles once had chantries and the south aisle still retains a piscina: in the north aisle is a statue bracket: the font is a richly carved example of the Perpendicular period, with symbolical figures, scenes from Holy Scriptures, and statuettes of saints and apostles: an organ was placed in the church in 1849. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £800, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1869 by the Rev. Henry Sharp Disbrowe B.A. of University College, Oxford, Canon of Lincoln Cathedral and rural dean. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel here. Here are five bedehouses for three bedesmen and two bedeswomen, who receive five shillings and sixpence per week each. Charities amounting to about £78 are consolidated and distributed yearly on Palm Sunday. The trustees of the late Henry Hallam, Henry Rogers esq. George Howard Reeson and Col. Lennard are the chief landowners; there are several small freeholders. The soil is loamy and rich; subsoil, silty. The chief crops are wheat and potatoes. The area is 2,306 acres; rateable value, £3,499; and 4,405 acres of water. The population in 1881 was, of the civil parish 542, and of the ecclesiastical 623. By a local government board order, dated December 24th, 1880, a detached part of this parish, containing 76 inhabitants, was transferred to Leake

LONG BENNINGTON is a parish in the Southern division of the county, on the borders of Nottinghamshire, wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven, Newark union and county court district, rural deanery of Loveden, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4½ miles south from Claypole station, about 8 north-west from Grantham, and 6 south-south-east from Newark. The village consists of one long street, on the road from Grantham to Newark, bounded on the east by the river Witham. The church of All Saints is a fine stone structure, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and tower at the west end, supported by massive buttresses, terminating in pinnacles, and contains 4 bells. The registers date from the year 1562; these include the registers of Foston for baptisms and burials from 1623 to 1799, and of marriages till 1776. The living is a discharged vicarage, united with the chapelry of Foston, joint yearly value £411, subject to a pension of £120 to the late incumbent, with residence, in the gift of the Duchy of Lancaster, and held since 1878 by the Rev. William Barker, of King's College, London. The Wesleyan and the Primitive Methodists have each a chapel here. The poor's land of 13 acres yields £21 yearly, and Grote's charity is £3 yearly. All tithes and moduses of Long Bennington and Foston, the property of the lay impropriator and vicar, were commuted in 1794. The church and four carucates of land in this town were given by Ralph de Filgerüs to the abbey of Savigney in Normandy before 1175: an alien priory of Cistercian monks here was subordinate to that foreign monastery: during the wars with France it was seized into the king's hands, and, being then valued at £50 yearly, was given by Richard II. to the Carthusians of St. Ann, near Coventry, but, after the suppression of these houses, this was given by Henry V. to the priory of Montgrace: and as part of the possessions of this last-named monastery, this manor of Long Bennington was granted to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster. Here are quarries of freestone and lime, and limekilns. Andrew Macdonald Grote esq. is lord of the manor. The Earl of Dysart is impropriator, and there are a number of small landed proprietors. The soil is rich loam and clay; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans, turnips and seeds. The area is 4,420 acres, including BENNINGTON GRANGE, formerly extra-parochial, but now a parish; rateable value, £6,588, and the population in 1881 was, Long Bennington 910, and Bennington Grange 14.

the twelfth or thirteenth century have been preserved: the church was thoroughly restored in 1875, under the direction of Mr. Jas. Fowler, architect, of Louth, and was reopened in October of that year; the chancel was entirely rebuilt, a vestry added, the transepts, which had nearly disappeared, renewed, the tower slightly raised and strengthened with angle buttresses, and the church re-seated with open benches. The register dates from the year 1691. The living is a rectory, yearly value £380 with residence, in the gift of Edward Heneage esq. M.P. and held by the Rev. Alan Marmaduke Alington M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. Here is a United Free Methodist chapel. About a mile to the west of the village are about 8 acres of ornamental water, well stocked with fish, the property of Edward Heneage esq. Edward Heneage esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and Messrs. J. Mason and J. S. Bogg are the principal landowners. The soil is marl, clay and sand: subsoil, white clay and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, seeds and turnips. The area is 2,994 acres; rateable value, £3,282; and the population in 1881 was 381.

BICKER is a parish and village, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Holland, wapentake of Kirton, Boston union and county court district, North Holland rural deanery No. 1, and Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 4 miles south from Swineshead station on the Boston and Sleaford line, 5 north-west from Algarkirk station on the Great Northern railway, 103 from London, one mile and three-quarters north-east-by-north from Donington, and 9 miles south-west-by-west from Boston. The church of St. Swithin is an ancient stone building, in the Norman early styles, consisting of chancel and clerestoried nave, north aisle, south porch, vestry and a central embattled tower, containing 6 bells; the most ancient portion (consisting of two bays of the earlier nave, with its clerestory) is an excellent example of Late Norman work, but the remainder of the nave was built in the Elizabethan period; there are also traces of a thirteenth-century reconstruction: the remaining portion of the church, which was in a very dilapidated state, was restored in 1876. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a discharged vicarage, having 280 acres of glebe, but now (1884) unlet, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and held since 1853 by the Rev. Henry Thomas Fletcher M.A. Cantab. The Wesleyans and Primtive Methodists have chapels here. Here is an elementary mixed school under government inspection, the master and mistress having an annual allowance of £40: it will hold 100 children, with an average attendance of 90. There have been many charities left to the poor of this parish, among which are Thomas Dickenson's, £10 in 1652: £52, William Tompson's, in 1686; and £26 from the Cust family: the total income of the charities from land let in allotments and from other property is considerably reduced; they formerly amounted to £138 10s. 6d. Lord Willoughby de Broke is lord of the manor of Helpringham-cum-Bicker, Henry Chaplin esq. of Bicker Beaumont, and Mr. Grimble of the small manor of Ball Hall. The principal landowners are Edward Smith esq. E. R. C. Cust esq. William Morley esq. and Edwin Rippon esq. The soil is loam, clay, and silt; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans, peas and potatoes. The area is 3,720 acres, including Copping Syke; rateable value, £5,166; the population in 1881 was 723.

BIGBY is a village, township and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, east division of Yarborough wapentake, Brigg petty sessional division, Glanford, Brigg and Caistor unions, Caistor county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln: it is on the western declivity of the Wolds, 4 miles east from Brigg and 2 south from Barnetby-le-Wold station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway. The portion of the parish in Brigg union is comprised in Glanford Brigg township. The church of All Saints is an ancient stone building, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, with a square embattled tower and 3 bells, the largest cast in 1609, and bearing the motto, "God save the Church," and the 2 others in 1680: the north aisle was taken down in 1779, and rebuilt on a smaller and inferior scale: the church was re-opened, in December, 1878, after extensive restoration, at a cost of about £1,400, the late M. Maw esq. of Cleatham, owner of some land in the parish, contributing £250 towards new roof and other works: it contains some early and interesting monuments of the Tyrwhitt family, formerly of Kettleby, in this parish, which have been somewhat damaged by age and want of care; a slab, with inscription, much effaced, in memory of one of the Skipwith family, of Ormesby, connected with the Tyrwhitts, of Kettleby; and one or two ancient and much broken ecclesiastical figures in stone: the parish began to be enclosed in January, 1756. The register dates from the year 1696. The living is a rectory, yearly value £700, glebe about 25 acres, with large house and pleasant and extensive grounds, in the gift of V. D. H. Cary-Elwes esq. D.L., J.P. and held since 1868 by the Rev. Thomas Field B.D. of St. John's College, Cambridge. At Kettleby Thorpe there was a desecrated Catholic burial-ground, and in 1848, at the time of the construction of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, some workmen found a leaden coffin containing a human body, the features of which were reported to be perfectly discernible; it proved to be the remains of Robert Cliff esq. formerly of Brigg, who was buried in the year 1792; his remains are now interred in Bigby churchyard. Roman coins have been found at Kettleby, also fragments of Roman pavement. V. D. H. Cary-Elwes esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is chalk on the wolds, clay and sand; subsoil, sandy gravel. The chief crops are wheat, turnips, barley and oats. The area of the parish is 3,440 acres; rateable value, £8,757; the population, exclusive of that portion included in the township of Glanford Brigg, was in 1881, 255.

Parish Clerk, Jonathan Rakalls.

BILLINGBOROUGH is a parish and large well-built village, near the Car Dyke, having a station on the Bourn and Sleaford branch of the Great Northern railway, in the Southern division of the county, Aveland wapentake, parts of Kesteven, Bourn union and county court district, rural deanery of Aveland No. 1, Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 9 miles north-east from Bourn, 9 south-east from Sleaford and 3 east from Falkingham. The church of St. Andrew is a structure of stone, in the Early English, Early and Late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of a chancel, which has an old barn roof, brought from Birthorpe, nave, with a lofty clerestory and aisles, and at the north-west angle a tower, with spire 150 feet high, containing a clock and 5 bells, which were re-hung in 1846: traces of the original Early English church remain in the south aisle, but this aisle and its porch dates chiefly from about 1312, to which period the chancel may also be referred; the rest of the church, with the exception of the Perpendicular clerestory, is Late Decorated, and includes the tower and spire, remarkable for the narrowness and height of the former in proportion to the latter; there are three tiers of louvre spire lights: the east end of the south aisle retains a piscina and locker: in the east window are the arms of Eleanor, daughter of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, those of John, Lord Beaumont, and of the Marmion family: in the interior are numerous marble and other tablets: a new roof was placed over the nave in 1870, at a cost of £780, defrayed from land belonging to the church. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge 8s. net yearly value £160, including 140 acres of glebe, in lieu of tithe and residence, in the gift of Earl Fortescue, and held since 1855 by the Rev. John Kynaston M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. There is a Baptist Tabernacle, erected 1868; a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1829, and a Primitive Methodist chapel in 1868. There are charities of about £41 yearly value. Stone tablets in the church record the following gifts to the poor:—£200 by Mrs. Mary Wayet, late of Stamford; £100 in 1827 by Mr. Thomas Buckberry, of Billingborough, the interest of which to be given in bread; and £100 by Mary Gould in 1829, for educating orphans. The Billingborough and Horbling Reading Room and Recreation Society, formed in 1859, has a reading-room and library of 300 vols. open to subscribers; the reading-room is also open to the general public on payment of one penny per visit. The Public Hall, erected in 1865, is a building of red brick, with stone dressings, and will hold 400 persons. Here are some small breweries and maltings. The town is lighted with gas from the Billingborough and Horbling Gas Works, which were completed November 22nd, 1864. There are abundant ever-flowing springs of very pure water in the village, and within a few yards of these rises a mild chalybeate spring: a continuously rising stream of pure water, exhibiting a pressure of 40lb. to the square inch, has also been obtained by boring on the premises of Mr. G. Harrison. The Old Hall is a large old mansion in the Tudor style, now divided into two residences. Some farm-houses in this parish were constructed with materials from the ruins of Sempringham priory. The village has some good shops and inns. Earl Fortescue was formerly lord of the manor, but the Crown purchased the estates and the manorial rights in 1855; a manorial right is also exercised by Major Albert de Burton D.L., J.P. of Buckminster Hall. The principal landowners are the Crown, Robert Kelham esq. of Bleasby Hall, Southwell, Major Albert de Burton, Capt. Henry Smith J.P. of Horbling, and the vicar. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans The area is 2,020 acres; rateable value, £5,330; the population in 1881 was 1,189.

Parish Clerk, George Walton.

BILLINGHAY is a village, township and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Kesteven, first division of the wapentake of Langoe, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, Lafford No. 1, rural deanery and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 10 miles north-east from Sleaford and 3½ south-west from Tattershall station. A small stream, called the Skirth, sometimes navigable, and dividing North Kyme from Billinghay, passes through here. The church of St. Michael is a large structure of oolitic stone, in the Early Perpendicular style, comprising chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and square tower, containing clock and 3 bells, surmounted by a slender, graceful spire: the aisles are separated from the nave by plain Pointed arches and clustered columns on the south side and octagon columns on the north side: the north aisle was rebuilt and the church thoroughly restored and re-seated in 1856, and in 1880 a memorial pulpit with a prayer desk, costing about £40, was erected by friends of the late vicar, the Rev. E. C. F. Jenkins. The register dates from the year 1627. The living is a discharged vicarage, with the chapelry of Walcott annexed, yearly value £520, in the gift of the trustees of the late Earl Fitzwilliam K.G. and held since 1880 by the Rev. Edward Richard Walker B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Here are Wesleyan, Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. A fire engine is kept here. In 1869 a brass seal was found here, belonging to the Hashel of Godeshouse, Cambridge. J. D. Bowling esq. who is the lord of the manor, and the trustees of the late H. Cragg esq. are the principal landowners, but there are many small freeholders. The soil is black alluvial, clay and gravel; subsoil, gravel and blue clay, with shell-laden limestone of the drift period. The chief crops are wheat, oats, cole seed, mustard seeds, mangolds and carrots. The area is 3,443 acres; rateable value, £6,319; the population in 1881 was—of the parish, 2,234, and of the township, 1,440.

DOGDYKE, a township of Billinghay, will be found under a separate head.

Parish Clerk, William Paley.

BILSBY is a pleasant village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of the hundred of Calceworth, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Calceworth No. 2, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, one mile and a half north-east from Alford station. The village is on rising ground, but the rest of the parish is in the fens, having water engines to drain the land. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient edifice of stone, covered with stucco, and consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north porch and an embattled tower containing 1 bell: the chancel is in the Perpendicular style, and contains a piscina and an aumbry: the church was extensively repaired in 1841, at a cost of upwards of £500. The register dates from the year 1679. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £150, gross yearly value £190, including 17 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of and held since 1858 by the Rev. Charles Mason B.A. of Worcester College, Oxford, who is also vicar of Farlesthorpe. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The poor have the following charities, viz.:—£5 yearly, charged upon certain lands now in the possession of Mrs. Bourne, for the education of six poor girls; 20s. left by Mr. Thomas Johnson: 10s. by an unknown donor; and 3s. by Thomas Willerton; and a charity bequeathed by John Fieldsend, which brings in £6 annually, and is divided between the school and deserving poor of the parish. The devisees of the late Thos. Alcock esq. are ladies of the manor; and Rev. John Allott B.A. rector of Maltby-le-Marsh, Mrs. Bourne and Henry Paddison esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is heavy loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 2,820 acres; rateable value, £3,935; the population in 1881 was 510, including Asserby and Thurlby.

ASSERBY is a small hamlet, near the drain called the Boy Grift, about 2 miles east-north-east from Alford.

THURLBY is a hamlet, about one mile and a half south-east, and comprises about 460 acres; it was formerly a parish, and the church (no trace of which now remain) was dedicated to St. Mary. Thurlby Grange, the property of the Duke of Portland, and pleasantly situated on an acclivity, is in the occupation of Mrs. Kemp.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Horton.

BINBROOKE is a large village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, South division of Walshcroft wapentake, Louth union and county court district, Walshcroft rural deanery, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, situated in a pleasant and picturesque neighbourhood on a rapid brook stocked with trout, 10 north-west from Louth, 12 south-south-west from Great Grimsby and 7 west from Ludborough station. The church of SS. Mary and Gabriel, consecrated August 3rd, 1869, is a handsome stone structure, erected at a cost of about £5,000: it is in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, organ-chamber and vestry, and tower surmounted by a broach spire: the seating, for 550 persons, is of oak; the whole is free: Mr. James Fowler, of Louth, was the architect: an organ was placed in the church in 1882, at a cost of about £140, and there is a surpliced choir: the burial ground has been enlarged by a piece of land, the gift of the rector, the Rev. F. E. Allen M.A. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a consolidated rectory and vicarage, yearly value £480, including 360 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Francis Erwin Allen M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The Wesleyans and the Primitive and Free Methodists have each a chapel here. A new Primitive Methodist chapel was built in 1879, and the Free Methodist chapel was built in 1855; a new Wesleyan Methodist chapel was built in 1877, nearly opposite the old one, which is now used only as a unday Sschool. The Temperance Hall, used for lectures, was erected in 1840 at a cost of £550. The Police Station, or lock-up, with a house for the sergeant, was erected in 1852. A parish reading-room and library was opened here in 1882, manager, Charles Greetham. Here was formerly a weekly market. Courts Leet and Courts Baron are held here annually; James Sumpter, high bailiff. Binbrooke hall, the residence of Miss Wright, is a handsome modern mansion surrounded by trees. Christopher Turnor esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, Sir Edmund Beckett bart. Q.C., J.P. and Richard Redmond Caton esq. are principal landowners. The soil is chalk; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 6,070 acres; rateable value, £7,368; the population in 1881 was 1,157.

The river Bain runs through the parish. The church of St. Helen is a handsome Gothic structure of stone and brick, consisting of chancel, nave, with a tower containing 1 bell and surmounted by a crocketed spire, and was rebuilt about the year 1850, at the expense of the late William Whitlam esq. The register dates from the year 1810. The living is a discharged rectory, consolidated with that of Gayton-le-Wold, of the gross yearly value of £450, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1857 by the Rev. Denis Prittie O'Connor M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, who is also the sinecure rector of Calcethorpe. The Rectory is a modern building, beautifully situated in its own grounds. Biscathorpe House, the residence of Robert Rinder and Joseph Rinder Kirkham esqrs. is a handsome building, surrounded by very pretty shrubberies and grounds, and is the property of the trustees of the late William Whitlam esq. who are lords of the manor, and together with the Rev. D. P. O'Connor M.A. are the chief landowners. The soil and subsoil are remarkable for their variety. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,050 acres; rateable value, £1,066; the population in 1881 was 62.

BLANKNEY is a parish, which, though only one mile in breadth, extends upwards of 11 miles in length, in the Mid division of the county, second division of the wapentake of Langoe, parts of Kesteven, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Longoboby, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; the village is 10 miles south-east-by-south from Lincoln, 9½ north from Sleaford, and 7 east-by-north from Navenby station on the Great Northern railway. The church of St. Oswald is a Gothic structure of stone, with chancel, nave, aisles, western embattled tower containing 5 bells, and was rebuilt about 60 years ago; it was restored in 1880, when a north aisle was erected in the Perpendicular style, in the place of the then existing Early English one: the porch was rebuilt and the old archway inserted in its original position, the work having been carried out from designs of Messrs. Carpenter and Ingelow, at a cost of about £3,000, of which H. Chaplin esq. M.P. contributed £1,000: the organ was the gift of Lady Florence Chaplin, the lectern of the Duchess of Sutherland and the altar cloth and frontal are the work and gift of the Viscountess Folkestone and Mrs. Cecil Chaplin: the east window is in memory of Lady Florence Chaplin, as also a statue in white marble, executed by Mr. Boehm R.A.: at the entrance to the churchyard and opposite the porch is a lych gate, erected after design by Mr. G. F. Bodley R.A. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £800, with residence, in the gift of Henry Chaplin esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. and held since 1879 by the Rev. John Otter Stephens M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford. A rectory house was built in 1881, the cost, about £2,300, having been defrayed by the present rector; the contractor was Mr. Thomas Halkes of Dunston. Blankney Hall, a large and handsome mansion, in the hall of which are some very fine tapestries, standing in a park of 200 acres, is the seat of Henry Chaplin esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and the principal landowner: in connection with Blankney hall there is a celebrated stud of thoroughbred horses, among which at the present time are two Derby winners, viz. Hermit and Galopin: a pack of fox hounds is kept by Henry Chaplin esq. The soil is various, being clay, fen land and black moorland; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 6,621A. 3R. 10P.; rateable value, £8,210 17s. 11d.; the population in 1881 was 658.

BLOXHOLM (or BLOXHAM) is a parish, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Lafford No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles north from Sleaford. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a plain edifice of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, porch and an embattled tower, containing 2 bells and a clock: the fabric was originally Early English, and the greater part of the aisle walls and part of the tower are of that date: the clerestory is late Perpendicular, and has three lights on either side. The church was repaired by General Manners in 1812: the chancel was restored by Lady Manners in 1879, at a cost of £1,000: the tower also is chiefly Perpendicular, but the embattled parapet was added by General Manners, whose armorial bearings are conspicuously carved upon the gable of the porch: the chancel arch is plain Early English: in a vault beneath the chancel are buried the remains of Lord John James Manners ob. 1762; Lord Robert Manners. ob. 1782; General Manners, ob. 1828, and Lady Manners, 1829. The register dates from the year 1708. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Digby annexed, tithe rent-charge £210, joint gross yearly value £450, including 18 acres of glebe at Bloxholm, with residence, in the gift of Miss Constance Nisbet-Hamilton, and held since 1873 by the Rev. Charles Barnes M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Oxford. The Hall, a fine old mansion, enlarged and decorated in 1825, is the seat of Miss Constance Nisbet-Hamilton, who is the lady of the manor and principal landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The soil is various; subsoil, shale and clay. The area is 1,298 acres; rateable value, £1,820; the population in 1881 was 97.

BLYBOROUGH is a small parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, west division of the wapentake of Aslacoe, union and county court district of Gainsborough, rural deanery of Corringham, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 3½ miles south from Kirton-in-Lindsey station and 9 north-east from Gainsborough. The church of St. Alkmund, rebuilt in 1877, at a cost of £1,500, under the direction of Mr. James Fowler, of Louth, is an edifice chiefly in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, with chantry chapel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western tower containing 1 bell: the east and south windows of the chancel are stained, being memorials to the late G. B. Luard esq. and to the late rector: the restoration included the building of a north aisle, of the former existence of which, the arches and pillars of an arcade, built up in the north wall, afforded evidence; the only portions of the old church now remaining are the chancel walls, most of the west wall and the tower: in the chapel stands the ancient font, portions of effigies and a tomb with recumbent effigy to Robert Conyng, rector, 1434: a new pulpit and font, of Caen stone and marble, have been placed in the church: in the course of the restoration some fragments of Norman work were discovered, and an ogee arch, between the chancel and chapel, beneath which lay a skeleton, conjectured to be that of Walter, rector, 1312: the arch could not be restored. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1791; marriages, 1691. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £557, net £500 with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Thomas Binfield Ludlow M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. Blyborough Hall, the seat of George Augustus Luard esq. J.P. is a modern mansion, with splendid grounds, approached through a long avenue of very fine oaks. George A. Luard esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, and J. G. Little esq. J.P. are the landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, sand and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 2,345 acres; rateable value, £3,128; the population in 1881 was 249.

BLYTON is a parish, with station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, in the Northern division of the county, wapentake of Corringham, parts of Lindsey, Gainsborough union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Corringham, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles north-east from Gainsborough, 14 from Retford and 153 from London, viâ Retford. St. Martin's church is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early English style, with additions in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of three bays, aisles and an embattled tower with four pinnacles, containing 3 bells: the chancel was rebuilt some years previous to 1866, at the cost of the Earl of Scarbrough, but retains an original east window of Early Decorated character: in the south aisle, once a chantry, there remain a piscina and aumbry: the font is Perpendicular, with richly carved panels and an embattled cornice: the nave and aisles were restored in 1880, and a new roof fixed, under the direction of Mr. Jas. Fowler, architect, of Louth, the total cost being about £1,350: here is a brass plate commemorating one of the Cecil family, dated 1614. The register dates from the year 1571. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £350 with residence, in the gift of Sir H. B. Bacon bart. J.P. and held since 1876 by the Rev. John Stanley Cockshott M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a place of worship here. There is a fund for educational purposes left by John Milns, in 1819, with money producing about £20 yearly, managed by trustees. A school was erected by Sir H. B. Bacon bart. in 1881, to hold 100 scholars, with an average attendance of 40 scholars. Sir H. B. Bacon bart. is lord of the manor, impropriator and principal landowner. The soil varies from light sandy to stiff loam; subsoil, clay. The crops are a succession of grain, with a good share of pasturage for grazing purposes. The area is 3,999 acres; rateable value, £7,168; the population in 1881 was 705.

GREENHILL and REDHILL, formerly extra-parochial places, now form a parish, situated between Blyton and East Stockwith; it is in the Gainsborough union, county court district and petty sessional division. There are two farmhouses on the estate. The area is 381 acres, the property of Mrs. Hodgkinson; rateable value, £524; the population in 1871 was 8.

BOLINGBROKE, or Old Bollingbroke, is a parish formerly a market town, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Bolingbroke soke, Spilsby union and county court district, Bolingbroke rural deanery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles west from Spilsby railway station and 14 north from Boston: it is pleasantly situated in a valley, on the banks of a rapid stream, which flows through sandstone rocks. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, supposed to have been rebuilt soon after 1363, by John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, is an ancient building in the Early English style, consisting of nave, with some indications of a north aisle, the arcade of which is now walled up, and a western tower, containing 2 bells: the windows are very beautiful and in good condition, and the east window in particular is admirable; within the porch is a canopied stoup: at the east end of the south wall are piscina and sedilia, finely carved: the font stands upon part of an old monument: in 1879 the porch was partly restored. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1561; marriages, 1559; burials, 1538. The living is a rectory, consolidated with the rectory of Hareby, joint net yearly value £470, in the gift of the trustees of the late Geo. Bainbridge esq. and held since 1841 by the Rev. Edward Stanley Bosanquet B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel here. The charities amount to £8 10s. per annum, arising from land left in part by John Aldred M.A. rector of Bolingbroke, 1780. The manorial soke of Bolingbroke, now a parcel of the Duchy of Lancaster, was formerly held by the Earls of Lincoln, of whom William De Romara, the first Norman Earl, built a strong castle here: it afterwards passed through various families till it came into the possession of the Laci family, Earls of Lincoln, from whom it passed by marriage to Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster. The celebrated John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, married the heiress of this branch of the Plantagenets, and by her he had issue, at Bolingbroke Castle, on the 3rd April, 1366, Henry of Bolingbroke, afterwards King of England, since whose accession to the throne all the manors and estates of the Duchy of Lancaster have been vested in the Crown. A court leet, baron and customary is held yearly before the deputy stewards. The castle stood at the southern extremity of the town, and some vestiges of it still remain; although being constructed of local sandstone only, it was not calculated for endnrance: it was, however, a formidable fortress until captured during the Civil War, when it was summoned on Monday, October 9, 1643, by the Parliamentary forces, under the Earl of Manchester, and after a few days' resistance, surrendered; the castle was then dismantled and left to decay: the gatehouse, the last crumbling remnant, is said to have fallen down in May, 1815. The Royal army, when advancing to its relief, suffered a severe reverse, at Winceby, near here, October 11, 1643. Bolingbroke gives the title of viscount to the St. John family. The trustees of the late William Ostler esq. are lords of the manor as lessees of the Crown lands. The principal landowners are the Queen, in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, and Major Roger Pocklington-Coltman D.L., J.P. of Hagnaby Priory. The soil is sand, loam and clay; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and potatoes. The area is 1,013 acres; rateable value, £1,740; the population in 1881 was 459 in the civil parish and 519 in the ecclesiastical. By the Act 44 Vic. c. xvii. the Fen Allotment was transferred to the new parish of Wildmore.

NEW BOLINGBROKE is a village and ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1858 from the civil parishes of Carrington, Revesby and West Fen, of considerable extent, 9 miles north from Boston and 9 south-east from Horncastle, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, soke of Bolingbroke, Spilsby union and county court district, Bolingbroke rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, situated on the road from Boston to Horncastle, 7¼ miles west from Eastville station on the East Lincolnshire railway and 8 miles north-east from Dogdyke railway station on the Great Northern railway. The church of St. Peter is a very handsome Gothic structure of brick, with stone facings, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and octagonal open belfry, surmounted by small spire and containing 1 bell: it was erected in 1853 under the Fen Chapel Act from designs by Messrs. Teulon, and endowed by the trustees under that Act with £80 yearly, and augmented by W. Ostler esq. and Queen Anne's bounty to £299. The register dates from the year 1854. The living is a vicarage, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, gross yearly value £299, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Boys Johnston M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The Wesleyans have a chapel here. A pleasure fair is held on the 10th and 11th July. W. G. Lely esq. is the principal landowner. The soil is mostly clay; subsoil, blue clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and beans. The area is 404 acres; rateable value, £648; the population in 1881 was 549. A portion of this parish is now included in Carrington.

BONBY is a small village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, wapentake of Yarborough, Glanford Brigg union, parts of Lindsey, Barton-upon-Humber county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles south-south-west from Barton, 7 north from Brigg and 3 miles north-west from the Elsham station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient edifice of brick, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave and a tower containing 3 bells, and is in good repair: in the reign of King John this church was given by the priors and convent of Merton to the priory of St. Womund in Norway, and shortly afterwards an alien priory of Austin canons was founded here, but in the reign of Henry IV. it was granted to the Carthusians of Beauvalle, Nottinghamshire. The register dates from the year 1649. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £340, net £275 with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Yarborough, and held since 1884 by the Rev. John French Flowers M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels here. The Earl of Yarborough D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil of about one half the parish is a fine chalk subsoil, highly fertile; the other part of the parish, viz. the Carrs, consists of a clay subsoil of a black nature. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 2,410 acres; rateable value, £3,951; the population in 1881 was 406.

BOOTHBY (or BOOTHBY-GRAFFOE, the village which gives name to this wapentake) is pleasantly situated on the Cliff range and the Roman way, Ermine Street: the parish is in the Mid division of the county, parts of Kesteven, higher division of Boothby-Graffoe wapentake, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Longoboby, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles south from Lincoln and 1½ north from Navenby railway station. The church of St. Andrew is a stone structure in the Norman and Early Decorated styles, rebuilt in 1842 by subscriptions of the late Viscount Melbourne, the rector and the inhabitants generally, at a cost of about £1,000: it is erected on the site of the former one and consists of chancel, nave and square western tower surmounted by 4 pinnacles and containing 3 bells. The register dates from the year 1720. The living is a rectory, yearly value £600 with residence, in the gift of the Rev. Charles Garth Fullerton B.A. of Thrybergh Park, Rotherham, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Henry Taylor Cordeaux M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. At the enclosure, in 1774, the tithes were commuted for 321 acres of land, and in 1841 those of Somerton Castle were commuted for an annual rent-charge of £120. In the year 1281 Anthony Beke, or de Bek, Bishop of Durham, obtained a license from Edward I. to crenellate his mansion at "Saubretonne"; or "Somerton," in this parish, which he afterwards presented to the king, who committed its custody to Henry, Lord Bellamonte; King John I. (Le Bon) of France, taken prisoner at the battle of Poictiers, September 20, 1356, and afterwards a captive in England, was confined here from Saturday, Aug. 4, 1359, to Saturday, March 21, 1360, when he was removed to the Tower of London; the remains of this castle are very extensive, and a portion, together with some modern erections, form a commodious mansion and offices, now the property of the widow of Frederick Marfleet esq. who purchased the manor about the year 1840: the castle area, 330 feet by 180 feet, was enclosed by outer and inner moats, and at the angles are the remains of four circular towers, formerly connected by intermediate buildings, and forming a quadrangular pile: the south-east tower, still nearly entire, is surmounted by three pinnacles and a spire-shaped roof: the south-west tower is in ruins, and the north-west tower has been taken down; that at the north-east angle has a curious groined roof, supported by an umbilical pillar, from which spring twelve arches, each forming a niche in the wall, in every one of which there appears to have been a Pointed window; the later buildings are partly Elizabethan; the double moat is still extant. Boothby Hall, the seat of Charles Edward Marfleet esq. is a handsome stone building, in the Italian style, erected in 1867: the views to the south and west are extensive. Charles Edward Marfleet esq. is lord of the manor of Boothby and principal landowner, and Mrs. Frederick Marfleet is lady of the manor of Somerton Castle. The soil is strong loam on the lowlands and limestone on the high land; subsoil, limestone. The crops are on the four and five course shift. The area is 2,850 acres; rateable value, £3,321; the population in 1881 was 168.

BOOTHBY-PAGNELL is a parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, wapentake of Winnibriggs, Spittlegate petty sessional division, Grantham union and county court district, rural deanery of South Grantham, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, about 5 miles south-east-by-south from Grantham and 2½ east from Great Ponton station. The church of St. Andrew is an edifice of stone, in the Norman and Decorated styles, with some additions of the Perpendicular period, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisle and a tower of three stages, with a panelled and embattled parapet and eight pinnacles and containing 3 bells: of the original Late Norman church, the tower and arcades of the nave remain; but the latter are not coeval with each other, the south arcade being probably the earlier; the north aisle (1330) which opens into the chancel by an arcade and the chancel itself are Decorated; the parapet of the tower is Perpendicular, and the pinnacles bear shields, each with two chevronels coupled, apparently the arms of Attelounde: the chancel has two plain statue niches at the east end, and in the south wall a piscina: the font is cylindrical and has a bold embattled device worked upon its lower portion: in the chancel aisle is a mural monument of marble to Elizabeth (Lloyd), 1696, wife of Francis Tyrwhit, of Kettleby, and afterwards of Abel Litchford, rector and lord of the manor, by whom this memorial, which has well executed busts of both, was erected; there are also numerous tablets to the families of Litchford and Harrington up to 1857, and their arms appear in several of the windows: at the east end of the chancel aisle is a memorial window to John Litchford, of Boothby hall, 1842. The register dates from 1566, but is said to be illegible till 1559. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £377, gross yearly value £477, including 121 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Capt. Cecil Thorold J.P. and held since 1846 by the Rev. William Cyril Newcome M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Boothby Hall, the seat of Capt. Cecil Thorold J.P. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner, is a fine building in the Domestic Gothic style, situated in pleasant grounds: adjoining the mansion is an ancient Norman manor house. The soil is creach; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The area is 1,794 acres; rateable value, £2,262; the population in 1881 was 130.

BOSTON,

WITH THE PARISH OF SKIRBECK AND THE HAMLET OF SKIRBECK QUARTER.

BOSTON is a large, ancient, flourishing seaport (which gives the title of baron to the Irby family), situate in the eastern parts of Lincolnshire, on the navigable river Witham, which runs into the Wash; it is 8 miles from the junction of the rivers Witham and Welland, and 14 from the entrance to Boston deeps: it is a municipal and parliamentary borough, the head of a union and county court district, and polling-place for the Southern division of the county, market town and parish, having separate jurisdiction, in the parts of Holland, Skirbeck wapentake, rural deanery of North Holland No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 34 miles south-east from Lincoln, 107¼ from London, 33¾ from Louth, 66 from Hull, 47¼ from Great Grimsby, 18 from Sleaford, 32 from Grantham, and 16 from Spalding. Boston is a first-class station on the Great Northern railway, and the junction of the lines to Grantham, Grimsby, Hull, Lincoln, London and Sleaford.

This place derived its name from St. Botolph, an Anglo-Saxon, who founded a monastery here about the year 650, from which circumstance it was called Botolph's town, of which its present name is a contraction. The monastery, which was destroyed by the Danes in 870, stood on the northern side of the present church. From the discovery of the foundations of several ancient buildings, urns, and other relics of antiquity in 1716, this place is supposed to have been of Roman origin; and according to Dr. Stukeley, the Romans built a fort at the entrance of the Witham, over which they had a ferry at a short distance to the south of the town. In 1281, in the reign of Edward I. a serious fire devastated the town: in 1286 it was inundated, and in 1287 or 1288, one Robert Chamberlayne, having assembled some associates disguised as ecclesiastics, secretly set fire to the town, and while the inhabitants were endeavouring to extinguish the flames, they plundered the booths of the rich merchandise exposed for sale at the fair, and burnt such goods as they were not able to carry away; Chamberlayne was afterwards taken and hanged, but his confederates escaped.

Boston is first mentioned as a commercial town in records relating to the reign of King John, when a Quin zieme, or Fifteenth being levied on the movable goods of dealers generally. Boston paid for the two years ending July 30, 1205, the sum of £780 15s. 3d.; the stock-in-trade of Boston merchants being thus worth, at that time, about £5,855, representing a capital, in the present day, of about £17,566. The Hanseatic merchants had a house in Boston soon after 1259, and in the ten years—1279–89—Boston paid customs duties to the amount of upwards of £31,988, being one-third more than London, and continued to be a great commercial port and place of business throughout the 13th and 14th centuries.

In the early part of the reign of Edward III. it was made a staple port for wool, leather, tin, lead and other commodities, which gave a new impulse to the spirit of commercial enterprise; so that in the reign of Edward III. Boston sent deputies to three grand councils held at Westminster, and contributed 17 ships and 260 men towards the armament for the invasion of Brittany. Early in the 15th century the commercial prosperity of the town began to decline and towards the beginning of the 17th century it had become "a decayed and ruined port."

The town was first incorporated 37 Henry VIII. by charter dated 14th May, 1546, and Queen Elizabeth gave the corporation a Court of Admiralty, which was vested in a mayor, recorder, deputy-recorder, twelve aldermen, and eighteen common councilmen, assisted by a town clerk and other officers; but since the passing of the Municipal Reform Act the corporate body comprises a mayor, six aldermen, and eighteen councillors. The style of the corporation is "The Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Boston;" and under the Municipal Reform Act the borough has a "Commission of the Peace," consisting of an unlimited number of justices appointed by her Majesty. The mayor is a justice of the peace during his mayoralty and the year after. The borough is divided into two wards, called West Ward and Bargate Ward. The Boston town council adopted the Local Government Act in 1858. The borough police force consists of one head constable, one inspector, one sergeant and twelve constables.

The town is exceedingly healthy, clean, well-paved and lighted, and has an abundant supply of good water from a stream at Miningsby, a village twelve miles north: the works were undertaken by a company of shareholders in 1850, with a capital of £30,000.

The municipal and parliamentary boroughs are not co-extensive: the municipal borough comprises only part of the parish of Boston, but the parliamentary borough includes also the parish of Skirbeck, and its hamlet of Skirbeck Quarter, including the fen allotment of the hamlet of Skirbeck Quarter, but not the fen allotment of Skirbeck parish, which is several miles from the town. Boston returns two representatives to Parliament.

The river Witham, which flows through the town, is crossed from the west side to the market place by a handsome iron bridge of one arch, erected by the corporation in 1807, at an expense of £22,000.

The main thoroughfare runs nearly north and south, with the Market place about midway, having other streets diverging therefrom to the east and west: the Market place, Strait Bargate, Wide Bargate, High street and West street are the principal places of business.

The Market place is a spacious area, on the north-west side of which is the parish church: at the south-east end of the church a marble statue has been erected, by public subscription, to the memory of Herbert Ingram esq. who represented the town in Parliament for several years, and was drowned in Lake Erie, in 1862: he was a passenger, with his eldest son, on board the Lady Elgin steamer, which sank in Lake Erie after coming into collision with a schooner: the body of Mr. Ingram was recovered, and brought to this country and interred in the Boston cemetery. Mr. Ingram was a native of Boston, and the founder of the 'Illustrated London News.' At the foot of the statue is a female figure, pouring water from an urn, indicative of the fact that Boston owes its plentiful supply of pure water mainly to Mr. Ingram's exertions.

The principal market is on Wednesday, but a smaller one is held on Saturday. A fat and store stock market is held every Wednesday, which is well attended. The market for corn is held near the market place, and the cattle market and fairs are held in the open space in Wide Bargate.

The fairs are on the 4th of May for sheep, and the day following for cattle; August 5th for fat cattle; September 15th for foals, cattle and general merchandise; November 18th, and the two following days for horses; and December 11th for cattle only.

The trade of the port, from an accumulation of silt in the river, which impeded its navigation, had begun to decline about the middle of the last century, but was revived by forming a canal, deepening the river and enlarging the harbour: this has been much improved by the operations of the Great Level of the Wash. The quays, which are conveniently adapted to the loading of vessels, are accessible at spring tides to ships of 400 tons burthern. The Custom House, a commodious building, was erected at the public expense, and the Pilot Office was built in 1811; the establishment of the latter consists of a nautical committee—five acting pilots and two officers. The exports consist chiefly of the agricultural produce of the county: the imports are timber, hemp, and tar from the Baltic, and linseed from the Black Sea. A considerable trade is also carried on with the interior of the kingdom by means of the Witham, and the various navigable canals with which it communicates. About 90 boats are employed in the Boston fishery; shrimps, soles, herrings, and other fish are taken. Spalding and Wainfleet are within the port of Boston, and there are coastguard stations at Hobhole in the parish of Fishtoft, at Wrangle and Foodyke. There are agricultural implement and machine works, and iron and brass foundries on a large scale; also several extensive breweries, oil cake mills, tobacco and cigar manufactories, brick fields, cooperages, ship yards, tanneries, malt kilns, rope walks and whiting works. Here are four banks and a Savings bank, and several good hotels. There are four newspapers published here, the 'Boston Gazette,' the 'Boston Guardian,' the 'Lincolnshire Herald,' and the 'Boston Independent.'

The first sod of the Harbour Commissioners' new docks at Boston was turned on June 9th, 1882, amidst great public rejoicing. The work was carried out under the Act obtained the preceding year, at an estimated total cost, including land, machinery, and sheds, of £120,000: the plans were prepared by Mr. W. H. Wheeler M.I.C.E. engineer to the commissioners, and the work was carried out under his direction, assisted by Mr. C. D. N. Parker (formerly of Leith docks); Mr. Abernethy, past-president M.I.C.E. has acted throughout as consulting engineer. The entrance lock is placed on the concave side of a bend in the river, near Maud Foster Sluice, and in a direct line with the fairway of the channel: the dock is 825 feet long and 450 feet in the widest part, the water area being about seven acres, and is connected with the Great Northern railway by a swing-bridge across the haven: the lock has two pairs of gates, is 300 feet long and 50 wide, and has 25 feet of water in the sill at ordinary spring tides: the quays are provided with sidings in connection with the railway, sheds for storing grain and other produce, and facility for rapidly loading and unloading ships, besides a coal-hoist, worked by hydraulic power and capable of filling a ship of a thousand tons in one tide: the walls are 32 feet 6 inches high from floor to coping, and 15 feet thick at the base, built of concrete made of Portland cement, sea shingle and burnt ballast, with large blocks of rubble stone embedded in the mass: the upper part, where the ships come in contact with the walls are lined with Staffordshire blue bricks, and the coping is of hard sandstone: the foundation of the lock, composed of cement concrete, rests on a bed of very hard clay; the invert is of sandstone, the walls of concrete lined with Staffordshire bricks: the sills and hollow quoins are of granite: the excavation amounts to nearly half a million cubic yards. The lock gates, of pitch pine, with green-heart heel-posts, mitre posts and bottom ribs, are each 29 feet 6 inches long, 32 feet high, and 2 feet 7 inches thick: the sluices are disposed in the side walls, and so arranged as to scour the mud from the back of the gates and the lock pit. The entrance and the portion of the river near the dock is dredged out to the same depth as the sill, the dredging of the rest of the channel, between the dock and the new cut, being part of the work included under the River Witham Outfall Act. A wooden pier extends from the mouth of the lock to the channel, and a jetty from the lock wall is also carried along the river parallel with the dock: the excavations were used to form the quays and approaches. From the docks the town is reached by a new road, the offices being erected at the entrance where this joins the dock premises, in St. John's lane. The swing-bridge across the haven is of wrought iron, 126 feet long and 13 feet wide, and is provided with a single line of railway, a track for carts and horses, and also for foot-passengers: the bridge swings on an oval-shaped cast iron pier, 16 feet wide, sunk in the centre of the river, with a clear water-way of 55 feet on each side. The abutments on each side of the river are of concrete, faced with Staffordshire bricks. The contract for the construction of the dock, with offices, railways and swing-bridges was let to Mr. W. Rigby for £80,200. Under the powers of the River Witham Outfall Act, 1880, a new cut is being made from that river to deep water, by which the distance to sea will be shortened 1½ miles, and a good navigable channel provided from the town to Boston-deeps.

The church of St. Botolph, situated on the west side of the market place, is a spacious and magnificent structure in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel a nave of seven bays, with clerestory lighted by fifteen lofty windows on either side, aisles, a chapel on the south-west, between the porch and south aisle; south porch with parvise and crypt, and a stately lantern tower, a masterpiece of architectural design, 300 feet in height at the west end, which, contains a peal of 8 bells, and a set of chimes consisting of 44 bells, of which the 36 smaller ones were cast at Louvain, Belgium, by Mons. A. L. Van Aerschodt: these chimes were placed in the tower in 1867, at a cost of £1,300, and are played by machinery erected by Messrs. Gillett and Bland, of Croydon. The present church appears to be the fourth built on this site: the oldest portion of the present church is the lower part of the tower, the foundation stone of which was laid on Monday, June 30, 1309, being the Monday after the Feast of St. John the Baptist (June 24) by Dame Margery Tilney, Richd. Stephenson, a merchant of Boston, and John Russdale, rector of Boston, each of whom placed £5 on the stone; it was not, however, completed till more than 30 years later, and is now the most conspicuous and beautiful feature of the church, serving also as a valuable landmark to travellers both by land and sea: it consists of three very lofty stages, of which the two lower are relieved by large windows and boldly executed panelling; the belfry storey has a single large window in each face; the whole tower, supported by angle buttresses, diminishes in bulk upwards, and is finished with a pierced panelled parapet and fine angle pinnacles, from within which rises an elegant octagonal lantern, strengthened by flying buttresses from the pinnacles of the tower and crowned with a rich pierced battlement and eight pinnacles bearing gilt vanes: the porch is chiefly Decorated, with an upper portion of Perpendicular date: the details of the original structure, including the carved oak door, are rich, and much superior to the later work, some of which bears the date 1663; adjoining the porch on the west is the Cotton chapel, a comparatively low structure, with reticulated tracery in the windows, restored in 1857, by the citizens of Boston, U.S.A., as a memorial to the Rev. John Cotton, vicar of St. Botolph's, 1612-33, who then being silenced for Nonconformity, resigned this living and emigrated to the newly-founded city of Boston, in New England, where he served as a distinguished and honoured minister until his death, December 23, 1652. The chapel was re-opened on July 21, 1857, by the Bishop of Lincoln, and contains a memorial brass; the inscription, by the Hon. Edwd. Everett, of Boston, U.S., is as under:—

Both the north and south elevations of the nave, viewed from without, are imposing from their great length, numerous windows, buttresses and pinnacles; each is finished with a Decorated cornice and embattled parapet, and on the gable is a bell-cot; both the aisles and the clerestory are relieved by pinnacles with canopied niches, some of which still retain statuets and an octangular turret staircase gives access to the aisle roof. Within, arcades of seven Decorated arches on either side, supported by clustered piers, divide the nave and aisles, and an arcade of two bays opens into the Cotton chapel, which has a stained window, placed in 1856, by the freemen of Boston to the memory of John Laughton, founder of the Free School here, and which for some time was carried on in this chapel; in 1635 the room over the porch, up to that time used as a schoolroom, was converted into a library by Anthony Tachary, then vicar, assisted by Sir William Bassingberd and other benefactors, and in 1720 the Corporation purchased for £50 (and added to it) the library of Mr. Kelsall; the fine east window of the chancel is filled with stained glass, chiefly displaying scenes in the life of Our Lord: there are also canopied sedilia and a piscina, and on the north side two aumbries: the stalls, from their number and character, form a striking feature in this part of the church; they are 64 in number, and of these 38 have richly carved canopies, presented by numerous donors at a total cost of £1,000: the misereres attached to these stalls constitute the finest and most interesting series in England, and the subjects of the carvings upon them are of very varied character: the brass lectern is the successor of an eagle lectern of the same material, sold in 1553 for 40s.: the pulpit, dating from 1620, is elaborately carved and has been restored: the octagonal font, a very fine work, was presented in 1853 by the Right Hon. A. J. B. Beresford-Hope M.P., P.C., D.C.L. &c.: the church contains a number of ancient monuments: in the south aisle, under a sepulchral arch in the wall, of the fourteenth century, is an altar tomb of alabaster, with canopied sides, and on the upper slab the recumbent effigy of a knight in full armour, the head enclosed in a conical basenet, reposing on a tilting helmet, and the feet resting on a lion. Westward of this, beneath an arch of Earlier date, is a similar tomb of black or grey marble, supporting a recumbent alabaster effigy of a lady, wearing a mitred headdress, and a low bodiced gown and flowing mantle; the head rests on a cushion supported by angels, and at the feet are two small dogs; these effigies are said to represent Sir John Tilney and his wife, and were removed to their present site from the east end of the north aisle about 1770, but there is a further tradition that they were brought hither from St. John's Church, on the pulling down of that building in 1626: on the north side of the sacrarium, within the rails, is a fine Flemish brass, with effigies of a civilian and his wife beneath a canopy and super canopy, the shafts of which are enriched with figures of saints; these effigies commemorate Walter Pescod, a merchant of Boston, and his wife, 1398, but part of one, with the border legend, and other portions, are missing: on the opposite side is the brass effigy of a priest in the habit of a canon or prebendary, over which is a cope adorned with figures of the apostles: there are also in other parts of the church mutilated brasses of a civilian and two wives, under a canopy, c. 1400: a palimpsest brass with part of the effigy of a lady, c. 1460; on one side, and on the other that of a widow, c. 1390; brasses of a civilian and his wife, c. 1480; and two groups of children, c. 1490; brass inscribed to Robert Townley, alderman and comptroller of Boston and Joan his wife, 1585, and some fragments of other brasses; in the south aisle is a tablet with inserted brass inscription to Thomas Lawe, three times Mayor of Boston, ob. 1637, and above it a bust, representing him in gown, ruff and skull-cap: the church was extensively restored in 1850-1, under the direction of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and Mr. G.G. Place, of Nottingham, when the entire nave was reseated: the church is 305 feet long and 100 feet wide, the height of the nave being 140 feet. There are 2,000 sittings, of which 1,700 are free. The register of baptisms date from the year 1557; marriages, 1564; burials, 1559. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of St. James, net yearly value £325, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Ingram, relict of Herbert Ingram esq. and held since 1850, by the Rev. George Beatson Blenkin M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, who is also a canon of Lincoln cathedral and rural dean for Holland; the Rev. George William North Lowe B.A. is lecturer; and the Rev. Joseph Schofield M.A. mayor's chaplain.

The chapel of ease was erected in High street in 1820, by subscription and endowed by the corporation: there are sittings for 1,200. The living is a perpetual curacy, yearly value £100, in the gift of the trustees of Thomas Collis esq. and held since 1856 by the Rev. George Edwin Pattenden LL.D. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, canon of Lincoln cathedral, who is also head master of the Boston Grammar School.

The church of St. James, in George street, is a chapel of ease to the parish church, it was erected in 1872 through the exertions of the Misses Gee, and is one of the many successful designs in the Gothic style, of the late Sir Geo. Gilbert Scott: it will seat 800 persons.

A small white brick church, opened on the 3rd November, 1857, at Hilldyke, near the toll-bar, is intended for the convenience of persons in the remote parts of the parishes of Boston, Fishtoft, and Sibsey, and will hold 300 persons.

The Catholic Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is situated in the Horncastle road, and was erected in 1826, with house for the priests: at the restoration of the parish church of St. Botolph's, the organ gallery therefrom was removed to this church: the interior is elegantly decorated: the old continental organ is now replaced by a more efficient instrument, many of the old stops, however, being retained on account of the richness of the metal.

The Congregational Church is in Red Lion street: a church was erected upon the site of the old theatre, and the present structure was built upon the same site, in 1868: it is an elegant and commanding Gothic structure, rich in carving, with a noble stained glass window and a fine organ: it will seat 700 people: the school accommodation being insufficient, the proposed alterations include the extension of class-room, assembly room, or lecture hall, new heating apparatus and various sanitary improvements.

The Wesleyan Chapel, in Red Lion street, is a building erected in 1840, at a cost of £8,000, having an Ionic colonnade with four massive pillars in the centre, and a square tower at each angle: it will accommodate 900.

There are places of worship for General and Particular Baptists, Primitive Methodists, Unitarians, Free Methodists, Calvinists and New Connexion Methodists.

Boston Cemetery, laid out in 1855, is one mile north from the town, and stands by the side of Maud Foster's drain, on one of the roads leading to Horncastle: it consists of 12 acres of land, divided by a broad gravel walk into two portions, that on the south being consecrated, and that on the north being set apart for the use of Catholics and Dissenters: there are two mortuary chapels, erected in the same year, and a lodge at the entrance, built of red brick: it is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members.

The Free Grammar School, established in 1554, and opened in 1567, is in a very flourishing condition, and has an income of £1,800 yearly: there are nine exhibitions tenable at the school, entitling the holders to a free education and £5 each yearly; of these four were founded by T. Parry esq. and the rest by the trustees: there are also three exhibitions of £50 a year to the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge or Durham; a gold medal, given by the late Mauss Parry esq. of Sleaford, is awarded annually to the best scholar of the year. There are now 140 scholars: the school is conducted by the head-master, the Rev. Canon Pattenden LL.D. and six other masters.

Laughton's Charity School was founded in 1707 by John Laughton, for educating and apprenticing 35 boys, the sons of freemen of Boston.

The Blue Coat School was established in 1713; the boys are now taught with those of Laughton's Charity, and a building adjoining Laughton's is now completed, in which the girls are taught in separate schoolrooms; there is room for 174 boys and 100 girls.

The National Schools, in Pump square, were established in 1815, and will hold 287 boys and 262 girls: these schools are in the Elizabethan style, and have a teacher's house attached: they are under Government inspection, and are supported by annual subscriptions and the weekly payments of the scholars. The present schools were built in 1849. The St. James' National Schools include boys, middle-class girls and infants' school, the girl's school, established by Miss Gee, being incorporated with the two others: there are also infants' schools in Botolph street, Duke street and Witham Marsh respectively, and all in connection with the Church of England. There is a British school in Shodfriars lane; also day schools in connection with the Wesleyan body.

The following are known as the Boston Municipal Charities, and are vested in trustees. Richard Wright Millington, clerk; Mr. Charles Dobson, treasurer; Mr. Alfred Reynolds, surveyor; Mr. Bartol Stow and Mr. William Porter, auditors. The estates known as "Charter Lands Charity" was granted by charter on the 6th January in the first and second years of the reign of King Philip and Mary, and yield an annual income of about £1,800: this sum is distributed in payments to the vicar, lecturer, head-master of the grammar school, English master, drawing master, four £50 scholarships, five £5 scholarships, and four Queen's bedesmen, who receive a weekly payment of 10s. each and gowns.

"Henry Fox's Charity."—This charity was made by deed of gift by one Henry Fox, dated the 16th August, 1557, for the finding of a priest to attend upon the Mayor for the time being, and produces an annual income of about £150, which is paid to the Rev. J. H. Schofield, the Mayor's chaplain.

"Usher's Charity."—This charity was left by deed of gift dated the 7th day of April, 1558; and by a minute in the record book of the corporation, dated the 12th January, 1567: "At the assembly it is ordered and agreed that the messuage lands and tenements that are given to the Mayor and burgesses by Richard Briggs, after the death of him and Adriane now his wife, shall be to the finding of an usher in the grammar school of Boston." The income is about £150, and is paid to William White esq.

"Charity under Richard Brigg's Will for the Poor of Boston, Skirbeck, Fishtoft and Benington."—This charity was left by Richard Brigg, by his will dated the 2nd April, 1583: the income amounts to about £35, and is annually paid to the churchwardens of the above parishes.

"Charity for Choral Bedesmen."—This charity was also left by Richard Brigg, by his will, for the use and maintenance of four bedesmen to be appointed by his wife, and after her death by the mayor of the borough and four justices for the time being, to behave themselves in celebrating divine service for ever." This fund amounts to about £60, and is paid to the four best singers in the parish church.

"Bedesmen Charity."—This charity was also left partly by Richard Briggs, the income from which is about £120. Agnes Fox, by her will dated prior to the year 1568, bequeathed all her estates to the same charity, the income of which is £20. Ann Carr, by deed poll, dated 5th October, in the 30th year of Queen Elizabeth, granted all her estates to and amongst the poor of Boston. The income of this amounts to about £40 annually. The whole of these sums are distributed among 10 bedesmen by weekly payments of 10s. each.

"John Skynner Baily's Charity."—This was left by the will of John Skynner Baily in 1877, to be distributed between 6 poor men and 6 poor women, the annual income of which is £108.

The whole of the ancient charities was settled and vested in the Boston Municipal Charity Trustees by a scheme settled and approved of by Sir George Rose knt. one of the Masters of the High Court of Chancery on the 27th July, 1880.

A Gothic drinking fountain, of white Mansfield stone, with basin of red Aberdeen granite, with brass drinking ladles, was erected in the foot of the Town bridge, at the expense of the late Thomas Garfit esq. The baths are on the river side, south of the town; they are supplied with sea water, and hot, cold, or vapour baths may be had at any time.

The Corn Exchange Buildings, on the east side of the Market place, were erected from designs by Messrs. Bellamy and Hardy, architects, of Lincoln: the ground floor, opening to the street, is occupied as business premises. The Permanent Library and Reading Room is held in the upper rooms, and contains over 3,000 volumes of books, and is well supplied with newspapers and periodicals. The School of Art is held in the same building. The Corn Exchange, built from designs by the same architects, is a handsome building, standing in the rear, and both were erected in 1855.

Shodfriars Hall, in South street, a handsome brick building, with a very fine half-timbered front, was restored in 1874 by Mr. J. Oldred Scott, at a cost of £9,000: it contains a large hall, fitted up as a theatre, seating about 800 persons, and there are also a club-room, library and reading rooms, which are well supplied with newspapers.

The Masonic Hall, in Main Ridge, erected in 1860, is in the Egyptian style, and contains a lodge room and a banqueting room.

The Boston Artillery Volunteers (1st Lincolnshire), consisting of Nos. 1 and 2 Batteries, was formed in 1860: it has 120 enrolled members, with a brass band: the practice ground is at Hobhole, in the parish of Fishtoft, and they have a spacious drill hall in Main Ridge. The C company of the 2nd Volunteer Battalion of the Lincolnshire Regiment was also formed in 1860, and comprises 80 men: the headquarters are in High street: the shooting range is at Slippery Gowt marsh.

The Boston Cottage Hospital was established in 1871, and is a building having accommodation for 14 patients; it was erected in 1874: it is a handsome structure, pleasantly situated on the south bank of the Witham, with grounds at the back, which are laid out as a recreation ground, and called "The People's Park;" the management is in the hands of a committee.

A Provident Dispensary was established in 1852: the management of this institution is in the hands of a committee: the average number of patients relieved annually is 2,780.

The Gas Works, situated in Fydell street, were established in 1826, and were enlarged in 1871, and now occupy a space of about five acres.

The Guildhall, an ancient Gothic-fronted structure in South street, with some ancient stained glass in the west window, is now used only for the election of the mayor.

The Boston and County Conservative Club was established in January, 1884, and occupies a splendid suite of rooms in the centre of the Market place: it has reading-room, billiard room and smoking room.

The Assembly Room, in the Market place, is a spacious building, where the corporation hold their meetings, and has an illuminated clock in the centre, and is used for concerts, bazaars, and public meetings: the basement is used as the Butter and Poultry market.

The Sessions House, on the north side of the church, is a structure in the Italian style: here the magistrates for the parts of Holland, Kirton and Skirbeck meet in petty session every Wednesday; and quarter sessions are also held at the regular periods for trial of both borough and county prisoners. Petty sessions are held every Friday by the borough magistrates at the Police office in the Market place. There is a county Police station in Skirbeck Quarter, and a borough Lock-up under the Assembly Rooms. There being no prison in Boston, all prisoners are committed to Her Majesty's prison at Lincoln.

The extensive recreation grounds, or People's Park, situated on the bank of the river Witham, and adjoining the Boston Cottage Hospital, are most tastefully laid out, displaying almost every description of landscape gardening: the Alpine garden, fernery and lake are distinguishing features.

The outlying districts of Boston extend several miles from the town, and include Frithville and Boston West. Frithville is given under that heading. The East Fen was, by a Local Government Board order, dated December, 1880, transferred to Leake parish, at the same time the detached part known as "Boston East" or "Long Hedges," was transferred to Bennington parish, and other detached parts of the Fen allotment transferred to Frithville and Carrington; the drains are kept in order by commissioners. These places once formed part of the Great Fens enclosed and drained in 1760. The Corporation are lords of the manor. The area of the parish is 2,801 acres; rateable value, £44,141 5s. 0d.; and of the municipal borough, 2,664 acres; rateable value, £44,141 5s. 0d.; the Corporation being rated upon the same assessment. The population of the municipal and parliamentary borough in 1881 was:—

Boston (including 324 officers, and inmates in the workhouse)	14,937
Hall Hills	4
Municipal limits	14,941
Carrington (part of)	30
Fishtoft (part of)	193
Frithville (part of	283
Leake (part of)	22
Skirbeck	2,550
Skirbeck Quarter	854
Parliamentary limits	18,873

The civil parish of Hall Hills, and part of the civil parishes of Carrington, Fishtoft, Frithville and Leake are ecclesiastical, annexed to St. Botolph parish; population in 1881, 15,469.

SKIRBECK parish nearly surrounds the town of Boston, and is within the parliamentary borough, but not included in the municipal borough. Skirbeck is on the north, and Skirbeck Quarter hamlet on the south side of the river Witham: it is partly in the wapentake of Kirton, but chiefly in that of Skirbeck, parts of Holland, and Boston union. The church of St. Nicholas is an ancient building of stone, in the Norman, Early English and Decorated styles, standing on the bank of the river, about a mile from the town of Boston, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, and a perpendicular western tower of three stages, with embattled parapet and pinnacles and containing 5 bells: it was originally in the Norman, Early English and Decorated styles; no Norman portions now remain, the chancel, which was Norman, having perished: the two eastern bays now form the quasi chancel. The church was thoroughly restored in 1874, at a cost of over £3,000: the rood-loft stairs remain, and the font, given by William Clarke and Richard Jenkyn, has the date 1662: in the churchyard is a tombstone of the fourteenth century, in the upper part of which appears the bust of a civilian: within a deeply-cut quatrefoil in the north aisle is an interesting old alms-box. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £235, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Alcock, and held, since 1853, by the Rev. Robert Evelyn Roy, M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. Holy Trinity is an ecclesiatical parish formed in 1875 from Skirbeck civil parish: the church stands on the Spilsby road, Skirbeck: it is a handsome stone edifice in the Decorated style, consisting of a deep chancel, nave and aisles, a small turret and 1 bell, and was erected entirely through the exertions of the late Rev. William Roy B.D., incumbent of St. Nicholas, Skirbeck, and was consecrated in 1848. The register dates from the year 1848. The living is a vicarage, endowed with £152, in the gift of Mrs. A. C. Roy, and held by the Rev. Henry Jones Alcock M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin; the net value of the living is £290 with residence. The population in 1881 was 1,712. Skirbeck parish contains three National schools, one in the Spilsby road, erected through the exertions of the late rector, the Rev. Wm. Roy D.D., in 1840, for 280 children; a second, adjacent to the old parish church, holding 112 children, and the third, situated in Skirbeck Quarter, with an average attendance of 100 children. St. Leonard's Hospital is endowed with £35 yearly: 10 bede-houses situated on Maud Foster drain, constitute the St. Leonard's hospital; the houses were rebuilt in 1874 for 10 poor men and their wives, who receive one shilling each weekly. Sir Thomas Middlecott's charity of 20 acres, let for £68 7s. 6d. yearly, is for fuel, for distribution in Skirbeck Quarter. At Skirbeck Quarter is the Police station and lock-up for the north division of Holland: the staff consists of 1 superintendent, 1 sergeant, and 3 constables. About 1½ miles east of the church is Rochford Tower, the residence of Edward Clarke Porter, esq., supposed to be the remains of the ancient chapel of Hiptoft: it contains a circular flight of stairs, communicating with three apartments and the roof, and is enclosed with an embattled parapet: the angles are terminated by turrets: in 1859 some curious mural paintings were discovered here representing Scriptural subjects, and an effaced shield of arms, supposed to be that of the Rochford family, who built the tower in the sixteenth century. Near Skirbeck road stands a large quadrangular building of the fifteenth century, called the Hussey Tower, probably built by Richard Benyngton in the reign of Henry VII., and afterwards acquired, with other property, by Sir John, subsequently Lord Hussey: it consists of a square tower three storeys in height, with an octagonal embattled turret, containing a staircase: the whole structure is of brick, with stone dressings: the roof with its lead covering was removed in 1728 William Foster, esq. of Lincoln, is lord of the manor. The landowners are G. D. Rowley esq. William Garfitt esq. J.P., J. J. Jebb esq. and several small holders. The area of the parish of Skirbeck is 3,799 acres; rateable value, £12,685; and the population in 1881 was 1,730 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes part of Sibsey parish, and 404 in the civil parish, of which 854 were in Skirbeck Quarter: the rateable value of Skirbeck is £11,351, and of Skilbeck Quarter hamlet, 5,140. The Skirbeck Fen allotments were, by a Local Government Board order, dated December 24th 1880, transferred to Sibsey.

HALL HILLS, formerly extra-parochial, is now a parish in Boston union, 1 mile west from Boston. The area is 20 acres; rateable value, £422.——Letters from Boston.

SHUFF FEN, formerly extra-parochial, is now a parish, in Boston union, 3 miles west from Boston. The area is 93 acres; rateable value, £126.

BOTTESFORD is a large township, parish and small village, in the Northern division of the county, east division of Manley wapentake, parts of Lindsey, union and county court district of Brigg, rural deanery of Manlake, archdeaconry of Stowe and diocese of Lincoln, 3½ miles south from Frodingham station and 7 west from Brigg. The parish comprises the townships of BOTTESFORD, HOLME, YADDLETHORPE, ASHBY, BURRINGHAM and part of EAST BUTTERWICK; the last three are given under separate headings. Burringham for ecclesiastical purposes is separated from Bottesford. The church of St. Peter is a large stone cruciform edifice chiefly of the Early English period with portions of Norman and Decorated work, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, transepts, aisles and a western tower, with embattled parapet, and eight pinnacles and containing 3 bells: in the chancel are three fine sedilia, credence table and piscina: in the north wall is a double aumbry and in the east wall are two small aumbries: the communion table, dated 1633, was the gift of Mrs. Edith Perkins, of Ashby: in the north transept the altar slab of the chantry formerly existing there remains, but now serves as a tombstone; its five consecration crosses are still visible: here also is the large slab of another altar; the nave roof is a modern work designed by the late Mr. Willson: the chancel roof of similar date was designed by Mr. S. S. Teulon: in the vestry is a good oak chest, dated 1693, and presented to the church by the late Mr. E. S. Peacock F.S.A. of Bottesford Manor: there is a good Early English hexagonal font: on the south side of the churchyard are the remains of an Early English cross: the church was restored in 1870 by subscription, the chancel having been previously restored at the expense of Miss Hall. The register dates from the year 1603; there are transcripts of earlier registers in the episcopal register at Lincoln. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £350, in the alternate gift of the Bishop and Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and held since 1873 by the Rev. Francis Joseph Moore B.A. Trinity College, Cambridge. Edward Peacock esq. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is lias clay; subsoil, lias. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and potatoes. The township contained in 1881 a population of 124; rateable value of Bottesford, £1,359. The parish comprises 7,470 acres, and a population in 1881 of 2,464.

Holme is a township 6 miles west from Brigg. Joseph Cliff, jun. esq. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. Rateable value, £726; the population in 1881 was 72.

Yaddlethorpe is a township and small village, 7½ miles west from Brigg. Edward Peacock esq. who is lord

BOULTHAM is a small village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Kesteven, hundred of Boothby Graffoe, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Graffoe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 1 mile south-south-west from Lincoln. The church of St. Helen is a small stone structure, in the Early English style, and has a new chancel, built by Lieut.-Col. R. Ellison: the church was evidently much larger formerly, as two arches that supported a south aisle testify; the churchyard, which contains a block of granite weighing upwards of two tons and was formerly a part of the Sebastopol fortifications, and brought here by Major R. G. Ellison, in memory of the men of the 4th regiment, who fell in the Crimea, also occupied a larger area. The register dates from the year 1716. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Bracebridge, annexed in 1574, yearly value £130, joint gross yearly income £280, in the gift of Major R. G. Ellison, and held since 1863 by the Rev. Charles Christopher Ellison M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at Bracebridge. Boultham Hall, the seat of Major Richard George Ellison D.L., J.P. is a large red brick and stone building: it has been enlarged and restored and stands in a park of about 30 acres. Major Richard George Ellison D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, sand. The chief crops are barley and oats, and nearly one-third of the parish is fen land. The area is 1,247 acres; rateable value, £3,242; the population in 1881 was 114.

BOURN is a parish, union and market town, polling-place for the Southern division of the county, head of a county court district and station on the Bourn and Essendine branch of the Great Northern railway, with through route to the Spalding and Sleaford line, 10 miles north-east-by-north from Stamford, 7 north from Market Deeping, 12 west from Spalding and 97 from London, at the junction of the roads from Stamford and Market Deeping to Sleaford, in the parts of Kesteven, Aveland wapentake, rural deanery of Aveland No. 2, and Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese. The town consists principally of four streets, diverging from the Market place; all remarkably clean and lighted with gas: the houses, modern and well built, are supplied with water from a spring rising into an artesian well at the northern entrance to the town: Spalding is also supplied with water from this place, by means of a separate artesian well, on land purchased by a Spalding company under an Act of Parliament. In a field at the south-east of the town is a spring called "Peter's pool," or "Well Head," the water from which flows in a strong stream eastwards, driving three mills within a quarter of a mile from its source; from the Quay, in Eastgate, it was a navigable river by Statute, and was called the Bourne Eau, joining the river Glen at Tounge end; from this stream the town is supposed to derive its name. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a large and ancient edifice in the Norman, Late Transitional, Early English and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south chantry and porch, vestry, a noble south tower finished or partly rebuilt in the Perpendicular period, containing 6 bells, and a portion of another tower at the western end: the clerestory is Perpendicular, but both arcades date from the twelfth century, and exhibit massive columns, with cushion capitals, supporting semi-circular arches: the font, a Perpendicular octagon, is inscribed "Jesus est nomen quod est super nomen": the interior was thoroughly repaired about 1854, new pews added; three stained windows have been respectively presented by the vicar, Edward Hardwicke esq. and Henry Dove esq.; the vicar also presented to the church in 1866 a new reredos of stone and marble: the west end was restored and three stained windows inserted in 1883 by Mr. R. M. Mills: the tower was repaired and the north and east arches opened, also at the cost of Mr. R. M. Mills, with the exception of £150 raised by the congregation, a new clock was also added at the expense of the town: a new pulpit was erected in 1882, with money originally presented to Mr. Dodsworth and left by his executors to the vicar to be spent on the church at his discretion: a heating apparatus was also added in 1878. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1563; marriages, 1564; burials, 1562. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £20, gross yearly value £400 with residence, in the gift of William Grantham Lely esq. of Carlton Scroop, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Hugh Mc Neile Mansfield M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who resides at the Abbey. The Baptist chapel was erected at a cost of £1,700 in 1835; the Congregational chapel was erected in 1846; the Wesleyan, Star lane, built in 1841, cost nearly £1,000. The Cemetery of 3¾ acres, opened for interments in June, 1855, has two mortuary chapels, erected in the same year, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members. The charities amount to about £700 yearly, which are distributed as follows:—About £300 in clothing and coals at Christmas; £52 10s. quarterly to certain pensioners: with other gifts at Lady-day and Michaelmas amounting to £65. Here are two almshouses: one for 6 men and the other for 6 women, who receive a weekly allowance and 10s. extra every quarter to the male inmates; both men and women have coal at Christmas. The Town Hall, a handsome building, was erected in 1821, at a cost of £3,600; the quarter sessions for Kesteven are held alternately, here and at Sleaford, magistrates' meetings fortnightly, on Thursdays, and a County Court monthly. The Public Hall and Corn Exchange, situate in Church street, was erected by a company in 1870, at a cost of £2,000, including the cost of land and fittings: it is a building of red brick with stone dressings, and has a large hall, in which the corn market is held, with stage and retiring rooms, and capable of seating 500 people: it also serves for public meetings and musical entertainments. There is a reading room and library at Mr. J. T. Morris's, in West street; the library contains upwards of 1,000 volumes; all the principal newspapers are taken: the reading room is open from 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. The market is held on Thursdays, and fairs for cattle, March 7th, May 6th, September 30th and October 29th. The Police Station is in North street: in the Market place is a handsome drinking fountain, erected in 1860, by subscription, from the design of Mr. Edw. Browning, as a memorial to the late Mr. John Lely Ostler: it consists of a canopy supported on four shafts of Aberdeen granite, and is in a modified Gothic style. Here is a Savings Bank, which is held in the Town Hall. Bourn was the birthplace (13th September, 1520) of William Cecil Lord Burleigh K.G. Lord High Treasurer in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and Chancellor of the University of Cambridge. Dr. William Dodd, vicar of Wing, Bucks, and prebendary of Brecknock, who was condemned at the Old Bailey, February 24th, and executed for forgery 27th June, 1777, was born here in 1729, and afterwards went to Clare Hall, Cambridge. Red Hall, situated at the south entrance of the town, an ancient mansion, with extensive pleasure grounds, and partially surrounded by water, was for many years the residence of the Digby family, and has been converted into a railway station. In Edward the Confessor's time, Bourn Castle, of which scarcely any traces now exist, was the seat of the Saxon lords of Bourn manor, including Morcar, who fell with all his followers at the battle of Threckingham in 870: Ostac, who died in 960, Leofric, the friend of Croyland Abbey, and afterwards of Hereward le Wake, the famous Saxon chieftain, on whose death it was given by William Rufus to Walter Fitz Gilbert; but from the reign of Henry II. till that of Edward III. the manor was held by the Lords Wake of Wilsford, who are said to have occupied the castle, which, according to tradition, was destroyed by Oliver Cromwell: the fortress originally consisted of a massive keep with four square towers at its angles, placed on the summit of an artificial mound, and surrounded by a deep moat crossed by a drawbridge, protected by a strong gatehouse; the outer baily or ground beyond this moat, about 8 acres in extent, was in its turn encompassed by a second moat; a small mound, faint traces of the moats, and two or three windows and crenelles, built into an adjacent modern structure, are now the only remains, save that in 1860 some excavations were made which revealed the plan and foundations of the gatehouse, and showed it to have been flanked by two circular towers. An abbey for Augustine canons was founded here by Baldwin Fitz Gilbert or le Wake, before 1138, but was suppressed and granted, December 21st, 1538, to Sir Richard Cotton; it stood near the church, and a farmhouse, formerly occupied by the Pochins, appears to be part of the original building, as well as an Early English arcade, visible from the vicarage garden, which probably formed the southern end of the cloister, and some small lights, now built into a modern mill. Here was buried Thomas Holland, Earl of Kent, who died May 10th, 1397, and his son Edward, killed in Brittany: Sir Francis Trollope bart. left his estate here to George Pochin esq. by whom the present abbey house was erected in 1764. The Marquis of Exeter P.C., D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor of Bourn, and William Ann Pochin esq. of Edmondthorpe Hall, Oakham, is lord of Bourn Abbots. The principal landowners are the Marquis of Exeter, Sir Philip Duncombe Pauncefort Duncombe bart. of Great Brickhill, Bucks, William Ann Pochin esq. and Lord Aveland P.C., D.L., J.P. The soil is fen and loam; subsoil, silt and gravel. The area of the entire parish is 9,815 acres; rateable value, £22,411; the population in 1881 was —of the parish, 3,760, including 133 officers and inmates in the workhouse.

CAWTHORPE is a hamlet in this parish, one mile and a half north; it has only a few houses. DYKE is 2 miles north-north-east on the Car dyke. Here is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1878, and also a small school which the Wesleyans use as a chapel on Sunday; rateable value of Cawthorpe, £2,742.

Parish Clerk, Simon Benstead.

BRACEBOROUGH is a pretty village and parish, with a station on the Bourn and Essendine branch of the Great Northern railway, 1½ miles north from the village, 90 from London, 6 north-east from Stamford, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Ness wapentake, union and county court district of Stamford, rural deanery of Ness, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The Nene forms the eastern boundary of the parish. The church of St. Margaret, originally consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, was remodelled in a debased style, and its proportions destroyed in the last century: in 1858 it was restored under the direction of Mr. Kirk, architect, and is a stone building in the Early Decorated style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, western tower with spire, containing a clock and 3 bells and south porch: there are three stained windows in the chancel and one at the west end. The register dates from the year 1593. The living is a rectory, yearly value £200, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Thomas Ault M.A. of St. Aidans. About 1 mile to the north-east is Braceborough Spa, the springs of which yield daily 1,500,000 gallons: one of the springs is enclosed in a bath-room attached to the house of Dr. F. Willis, in whose grounds the springs rise. The water is noted for its remarkable purity and abundance of gaseous constituents, rendering it eminently suitable for drinking and dietetic purposes: it exerts also a beneficial action, used externally, in certain affections of the skin. Here is the pumping house of the Peterborough water works; about a million gallons per day are forced through the pipes to Peterborough, 14 miles distant; Joseph Ellis, engineer in charge. Shillingthorpe Hall, 1 mile south-west from the village, with gardens and pleasure-grounds, the residence of Mrs. Dixon, is the property of Lord Kesteven, who is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loam. The chief crops are cereals. The area is 2,230 acres; rateable value, £3,242; the population in 1881 was 184.

BRACEBRIDGE is a rapidly increasing and pleasant village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, county of the city of Lincoln, parts of Kesteven, hundred of Boothby Graffoe, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Longoboby, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles south from Lincoln, situated on the river Witham. The church of All Saints is a small but ancient structure of stone, in the Early Norman, Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, transept, south porch and a western tower, partly of Norman date and containing 2 bells: fixed in one of the pillars at the side of the pulpit is an hour glass stand, now fitted with a new sand glass, and there is a good cylindrical Norman font: in 1868 a new east window in the Norman style, from a design by Mr. Drury, of Lincoln, was introduced, and in 1874-5 the church underwent a thorough restoration, and was considerably enlarged, at a cost of £2,500, raised by voluntary contributions, under the direction of Mr. J. L. Pearson R.A., F.S.A., when a new north aisle, shallow transept and vestry were built, the material used being brown Ancaster stone: the walls of the south aisle were also rebuilt, the singular south doorway reset, a new east window inserted, and the whole structure new roofed: a large number of fragments of coffin lids of the thirteenth century were found in the south wall, and have been again built in with their ornamental crosses facing outwards: in the south aisle is an altar tomb of the seventeenth century, which has also been restored; it bears the quaint distich:

"If lasting life in well hewen stone were found,
Such had the stone been that had covered thy ground."

The register dates from the year 1663. The living is a vicarage, annexed to the rectory of Boultham, yearly value £275, joint gross yearly value £280, with residence and 1½ acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1863 by the Rev. Charles Christopher Ellison M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here are Wesleyan and Methodist Free Church chapels. The County Lunatic Asylum is situated in this parish, on an eminence, on the high road to Sleaford: it is a plain building, erected in 1852, in the Italian style, for 250, but has since been considerably enlarged and will now hold upwards of 600 patients: the ground belonging to and occupied by the asylum consists of 120 acres, which is cultivated to a great extent by the spade husbandry of the patients. The whole of the sewage is disposed of by irrigation over 10 acres of land about half a mile from the asylum, quite inoffensively and profitably: the building and recreation grounds, which are tastefully laid out with flower beds, shrubs, and trees, occupy about 6 acres: a new chapel was erected in 1869 to seat 450; there is also a cemetery of one acre on the estate, with a mortuary chapel. Brick and tile making is carried on here to a great extent. The Lincoln Gas Light and Coke Co. have works here, erected in 1876-7. A reservoir has been constructed for the supply of water to Bracebridge and the south part of Lincoln. Thomas Fairfax esq. is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are C. C. Sibthorp esq. the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Mrs. Keyworth and Mr. J. Rudgard, and there are many freeholders who grow great quantities of vegetables for the supply of the Lincoln market. The soil is sandy loam and clay; subsoil, gravelly clay and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips and grass. The area is 1,482 acres; rateable value, £7,791; the population in 1881 was 2,123, which includes 711 officers and inmates in the County Lunatic Asylum.

BRACEBY is a small parish and village, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Grantham soke, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Grantham and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 7 miles east from Grantham, the nearest railway station, and 5 west-by-north from Falkingham. The church of St. Margaret is a small but ancient edifice of stone, in the Early English style, with Perpendicular additions, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, north aisle, and a western bellcote, containing 2 bells: the clerestory is an addition made during the period of Transition, from the Decorated to the Perpendicular style: the outline of the arches of a former south aisle are distinctly traceable in the masonry of the south side: the church will seat 100 persons. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1770; marriages, 1759; burials, 1773. The living is a vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of Sapperton, gross yearly value £45, in the gift of Sir W. E. Welby-Gregory bart. (three turns in four) and the vicar of Grantham (one turn in four), and held since 1855 by the Rev. William Handley Bland M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, who is also vicar of Middleton Rasen. Sir W. E. Welby-Gregory bart. D.L., J.P. of Denton Manor, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is light; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are wheat. The area is 922 acres; rateable value, £1,257; the population in 1881 was 115.

BRANSTON is a large village and parish, in the county of the city of Lincoln, Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Lincoln union, liberty and county court district, rural deanery of Longoboby, Lincoln diocese and archdeaconry, 4 miles south-east from Lincoln, and one south from Heighington station, on the Great Northern and Great Eastern joint railway. A small stream called The Beck flows through the parish. The church of All Saints is a stone structure, in the Early Norman and Early English styles, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles and a western tower with lofty spire, containing 4 bells. The chancel arch affords a very fine example of Early English work, the clerestory and roof are Perpendicular: the chancel has triple sedilia, and a piscina of the Early English period: in the north aisle is a very fine monument to Sir Cecil Wray and dame Mary his wife, erected in 1736, and Vere Bertie families: a large vestry was erected in 1836 by the Rev. Peregrine Curtois, father of the present rector: the chancel was rebuilt in 1864 by the Rev. Atwell Curtois, the then rector: in the chancel is a slab of Purbeck marble, with a beautiful cross and inscription to Richard de Thistleton, formerly of this parish: the interior was thoroughly restored in 1876, under the superintendence of the late Sir George Gilbert Scott R.A. at a cost of £2,000, when the tower arch was opened, a new north aisle erected, and the seating in part renewed. The register dates from about the year 1626. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £1,050, from 636 acres of glebe, and £219 tithe rent-charge, with residence, in the gift of and held by the Rev. Peregrine Curtois LL.B.; this family have held the advowson for about 200 years. The rectory house was built in 1765 by the late Rev. P. H. Curtois, grandfather of the present rector. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, Gothic in style, built of local stone, with pitch-pine fittings, and seats 300 persons; and cost for erection £1,100. There is a sum of £36 yearly for apprenticing, arising from land left in 1619 by Thomas Garritt esq.: the charities for distribution produce £65 yearly, derived also from land left by Thomas Garritt esq. Branston Hall, the seat of Alexander S. Leslie-Melville esq. J.P. is a spacious stone building, near a woody vale; in the grounds are two small lakes. The Long Hills is situated about a mile from the village: it is a stone mansion, erected in 1838 on the site of an ancient house; it is the property of R. Smith esq. but is now unoccupied. The land is all freehold. The principal landholders are the Rev. P. Curtois LL.B. Alexander S. L. Melville esq. R. C. Berne Coupland, Henry Grimes, A. R. Allenby esq. C. S. Dickinson, R. Smith esqrs. and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The soil is various; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 5,457 acres, now in a good state of cultivation; rateable value, £9,864; the population in 1881 was 1,431.

BRANT BROUGHTON is a village and parish in the Southern division of the county, Loveden wapentake, Newark union and county court district, parts of Kesteven, rural deanery of Loveden, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles north-west from the Leadenham station on the Grantham and Lincoln railway, 8 east from Newark, 12 south from Lincoln, and 12 north-west from Sleaford, situate on the small river Brant. The church of St. Helen is a beautiful structure of Ancaster stone, principally of the Decorated period with Perpendicular additions, consisting of a chancel, clerestoried nave of 3 bays, aisles, north and south porches, and a western tower with crocketed spire and pinnacles, and containing 6 bells: the chancel was rebuilt in 1812 by the Rev. R. Sutton, then rector, and was again rebuilt in the year 1876, as nearly as possible on the original foundations, together with the north chancel aisle, which had been destroyed, from the designs of Messrs. Bodley and Garner, of London, at a cost of nearly £6,000, in the Decorated style of the middle of the fourteenth century, a vestry being added on the north side: the interior of the church is much less ornate than the exterior, but is lofty and well-proportioned, and has a good Late Perpendicular roof, which has been repaired, and the original colouring, which was very perfect, has been carefully restored: the chancel is vaulted in wood, with moulded ribs and carved bosses, and richly painted and gilded, so as to harmonize with the old work in the nave: the stained east window is of five lights: the fine clerestory, lighted by five windows on either side is Late Perpendicular: both aisles and clerestory have embattled parapets, enriched with panelling and blank shields; the stair to the rood loft remains on the north side of the chancel arch: there is a fine brass eagle lectern, and chandeliers of iron, skilfully made by the village blacksmith, under the direction of the architects. The register dates from the year 1710. The living is a rectory, of the yearly value of £780, including 5 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Sir Richard F. Sutton bart. and held since 1873 by the Rev. Frederick Heathcote Sutton M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford, who has a handsome residence here. The learned William Warburton, born 24th December 1698, at Newark-on-Trent, where his father was town clerk, was rector of this parish from 1728 until the time of his death; in 1757 he became dean of Bristol, and in 1759 was made Bishop of Gloucester, where he died, 7th June 1779. Here are Wesleyan Methodists and Reformed Wesleyan chapels, and a meeting-house for the Society of Friends. The rent (£17) of four acres of land, purchased by a donation from William Tyrwhitt in the year 1736, is applied to various charitable purposes by the rector and churchwardens: the poor have also an annual rent-charge of £1 3s. left by Randolph Pattison in 1691, and also a small charity for the poor, left by the late Mr. Bush. The late Sir Richard Sutton bart. who died in 1855, was born here in 1798, and succeeded his grandfather, the first baronet, in 1802: he was the greatest huntsman of the age, and was many years master of the Burton, Cottesmore and Quorn hunts. This was a Roman station. Sir Richard Francis Sutton bart. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is partly clay but generally of good quality; subsoil, clay and stone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, seeds and turnips. The area is 2,932 acres; rateable value, £6,350; the population in 1881 was 679.

BRATOFT is a parish and small village, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles north-east from Firsby Junction station, 5 east from Spilsby, and 2 west from Burgh. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is an ancient structure of sandstone and brick, of the Decorated and Perpendicular periods, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of three bays, aisles and a tower containing 3 bells: screens, elaborately carved, enclose the eastern portion of the aisles, and form chantry chapels; and a similar screen divides the nave and chancel: the font is Decorated, and exhibits on its panels the symbols of Our Lord's Passion: at the western end, hung over the tower arch, is a singular painting, the work of one Robert Stephenson, which represents in a grotesque and fanciful manner, the defeat of the Spanish Armada; the hostile fleet is here symbolised by a huge red dragon, outstretched across the sea between the coasts of England, Ireland, France and Scotland, which appear at the corners of the picture; on the English coast troops appear massed beneath the Royal Standard, and a short distance off the little English fleet awaits the Spaniards. Below are six rhyming couplets, and the words "Non nobis Domine:" in the chancel is a piscina, an old tomb, and a low side window. The register dates from the year 1685. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £328, gross yearly value £434, including 44 acres of glebe and good parsonage house, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Charles George Ridley, who is also vicar of Irby in the Marsh. Charles Langton Massingberd esq. J.P. of Gunby Hall, Burgh, is lord of the manor and owner of most of the land. There are also several small freeholders. The soil is a rich loam and clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, oats and barley. The area is 1,814 acres; ratable value, £2,340 15s.; the population in 1881 was 218.

BRIGG (or GLANFORD BRIGG) is a township in the parishes of Bigby and Wrawby, union and market town, head of a county court district, polling-place for the Northern division of the county, and railway station, in the parts of Lindsey, south division of Yarborough wapentake, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1. archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, situated on the river Ancholme, which is navigable for sloops to the Humber; it is 163¼ miles from London, 16 south-west from Hull, 23 north from the city of Lincoln, 16½ north-east from Gainsborough, 19 west from Grimsby, on the road from Lincoln to Barton and Grimsby. Brigg was formerly only a small fishing hamlet, but it is now a thriving town of extensive trade, is well lighted with gas and partially paved, and the inhabitants are supplied with excellent water from St. Helen's well, about a mile from the town: the Waterworks were established by the late C. Cary-Elwes esq. The Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway Company has a station here, with extensive warehouses. Brigg is governed by a Local Board of 15 members, and in 1872 it was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from the civil parishes of Bigby, Broughton, Scawby and Wrawby. The church of St. John the Evangelist is situated in the centre of the town, and was rebuilt on the site of an old fabric in 1842-3, at an expense of about £2,700, raised by subscription, the stone having been given by Sir John Nelthorpe bart. whose wife laid the first stone: it is a substantial Gothic edifice, consisting of chancel, nave and square tower with pinnacles containing 8 bells. The register dates from baptisms and marriages, 1843; burials, 1857. The living is known as the vicarage of Glanford Bridge, and is of the yearly valne of £250, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Philip Henry Brierley M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford and surrogate. There is a lectureship in the church of £48 yearly, derived from 30 acres of land; the present lecturer is the vicar. Here is a Catholic Church in Bigby street, dedicated to the Immaculate Heart of Mary, endowed by V. D. H. Cary-Elwes esq. and others; also a Congregational chapel, Wrawby street Wesleyan Methodist, a large building, and Primitive Methodist, both in Bridge street; a Free Methodist in Bigby street and a Friends' Meeting-house in Queen street. A Cemetery, situated on the road to Wrawby, a short distance from the town, covering an area of four acres, was opened on the 1st of August, 1857, at a cost of £2,500; it has two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of the Wrawby-cum-Brigg Burial Board of nine members. The weekly market is well attended and held on Thursday; and a fair is held on the 5th of August for cattle and general commodities, and a hiring for servants on the Friday before Old May-day. Adjoining the union is the Police Station, a stone building where Petty Sessions are held every alternate Tuesday: the County Court is also held here. A Corn Exchange was erected in 1850 by a joint-stock company. The Exchange Club is at the Corn Exchange, and is maintained by an annual subscription of 1½ guineas from each member. There are news and reading rooms, which are well supplied with newspapers and periodicals. The Foresters' Hall is in Forester street, and is a commodious structure. There are two banks and a savings bank. V. D. H. Cary-Elwes esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The population of the local board district in 1881 was 3,087, viz:—Glanford Brigg township, 1,657; in Bigby parish, 105; in Broughton, 214; in Scawby, 618; and in Wrawby, 419; rateable value, £3,982; the population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1881 was 3,151, viz:—in Bigby, 434; Broughton, 214; Scawby, 618; and Wrawby, 1,885.

and the former retains two of its original windows, and a sedile; the communion plate includes a chalice dated 1575, and a large flagon, the gift of Letitia Lady Wigley, daughter of Arthur Cressey, of this parish: the mullions of the chancel windows are carved out of chalk, and there are the remains of a cross in the churchyard. The register dates from about the year 1750, the earlier portion having been destroyed. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £60, in the gift of the Bishop of Ripon, and held since 1856 by the Rev. James Garvey M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, who is also rector of and resides at Ashby-cum-Fenby. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. George Henry Haigh esq. D.L., J.P. of Grainsby, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Robert Elmhurst esq. of Ouslethwaite, Barnsley; G. H. Haigh esq. Grainsby, and Charles Manby Nainby esq. J.P. of Barnoldby-le-Beck. The soil is generally stiff, some portions of it are loamy; subsoil, clay. The area is 907A. 1R. 8P.; rateable value, £1,486; the population in 1881 was 139.

Parish Clerk, William Blythe.

BRINKHILL is a small village and parish, in a picturesque valley, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Hill hundred, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Hill No. 2, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 7 miles north-north-west from Spilsby, 9 east-north-east from Horncastle, 5½ west-south-west from Alford. The church of St. Philip is a building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and open bell gable containing 1 bell: it was rebuilt in 1857 of old green sandstone and brick, with freestone dressings: in the churchyard is a stone shaft of a cross, terminating in an embattled coronal. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, consolidated with that of Harrington, tithe rent-charge £243, joint gross yearly value £310, including 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir Henry Day Ingilby bart. and held since 1850 by the Rev. Robert Wentworth Cracroft B.A. of Balliol College, Oxford, who resides at Harrington. There is a Wesleyan chapel here, rebuilt in 1873. The poor have seven acres of land, left by an unknown donor. During the Civil War Cromwell called upon a substantial yeoman in this parish to give up all his horses for the use of the Parliamentary army, whereupon the farmer, being a Royalist, is said to have sent them to the blacksmith for the ostensible purpose of shoeing, but contrived to have their feet pricked with the nails in such a manner as to render them entirely useless for the time being: the descendants of this loyal countryman have been occupants of the same land ever since that time, the present representative being Mrs. Mary Ann Maidens. In the parish are found pyrites of iron, which, from its bright yellow colour, has been named "Brinkhill gold." Sir Henry Day Ingilby bart. of Harrington Hall, who is lord of the manor, Measburn Staniland esq. J.P. of Harrington, and Mr. Joseph Dring are the principal landowners. The soil is chalky loam and clay; subsoil, same. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 822A. 0R. 39P.; rateable value, £1,141; the population in 1881 was 149.

BROCKLESBY (with the hamlet of LITTLE LIMBER) is a parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, East division of Yarborough wapentake, Caistor union and county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 165 miles from London, 7 north from Caistor, and 8 west from Grimsby. Brocklesby station, 2 miles north-west, on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, is in the parish of Ulceby. The church of All Saints is a structure wholly in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a small tower with spire, containing 1 bell: the perfect symmetry of this church and the elegant flowing tracery of its windows make it one of the most beautiful examples of the style to be found in the neighbourhood: in the chancel are some ancient monuments to the Pelham family, ancestors of the Earl of Yarborough, one of which commemorates William Pelham and 17 children, all of whom are represented on the monument, together with several shields of arms: there is also an earlier one to William Pelham (1587) and Eleanor his wife: the church was re-roofed and thoroughly renovated in 1852 by the late Earl of Yarborough, and contains an old organ removed from the dining room in Brocklesby Hall and dated 1773. The register dates from the year 1672. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Kirmington annexed, joint gross yearly value £450, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Yarborough, and held since 1869 by the Rev. John Henry Johnson B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, who resides at Kirmington. Brocklesby Hall, the seat of the Earl of Yarborough D.L., J.P. is a noble mansion, situated in a well-timbered park, about 2 miles in length and 1 in breadth, and stocked with deer: the mansion contains some very fine pictures and also a figure of Niobe in Parian marble, besides other fine specimens of sculpture. In the rides adjoining the park is a mausoleum, in the form of a Grecian temple and consisting of a chapel with catacombs below: the chapel, approached by a flight of steps, is divided into four compartments by eight Corinthian columns, supporting a dome: this structure was erected to the memory of Sophia, wife of Charles A. Pelham, who died 1786, and furnished the late Prince Consort with a model for the mausoleum at Frogmore. The principal entrance to Brocklesby Park is through a fine monumental arch of stone, erected at a cost of more than £2,000 and bearing the following inscription on the two sides and ends of the fabric:—"To Charles Anderson Worsley, 2nd Earl of Yarborough, Lord Lieut. of the County. By his Tenants and Friends. Born 1809: died 1862." Here are some very fine cedars of Lebanon, one of which was planted by Lady Dudley North and bears an inscription dated 1792. The Earl of Yarborough is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is generally free; subsoil, chalk and gravel. The land is chiefly in grass. The area is 3,995A. 0R. 25P.; rateable value, £5,514; and the population in 1881 was 262.

NEWSHAM, NEWSHAM ABBEY MARSHES, NEWSHAM BOOTS and NUN COTHAM, which had formerly a nunnery, formerly extra-parochial, are now included with this parish.

Parish Clerk, John Thompson.

trict, rural deanery of North Holland No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles west-north-west from Boston, and 1 mile south from Langrick railway station. The church (name unknown) is a small stone building, in the Early English style, having chancel and nave: the nave was rebuilt in 1847, and the chancel added in 1854, at the sole expense of Thomas Gee esq.; the chancel contains a stained window: the church is seated with open oak benches: its history is involved in obscurity, but this much is known that in pre-Reformation times it was served by the monks of Semperingham after the dissolution of the monasteries; and until the estate was bought by the Gee family in 1813, the inhabitants rated themselves voluntarily and paid a clergyman to officiate once a Sunday in their church: the church ceased to be a donative in 1864 and was then made, by the acceptance of £200 from Queen Anne's bounty, a benefice presentative, but no district was assigned to it. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1709, and there are important records of a much earlier period. The living, which is of the net yearly value of £120, permanently assigned to it in 1856 by Thomas Gee esq. is in the gift of Frederick Curtois esq. and held since the year 1864 by the Rev. Thomas Campbell, of Durham University, who resides at Witham Bank, Boston. There is a school, erected and supported by Thomas Gee esq. in 1856; it is used as a Sunday school; it has an average attendance of 30 children. A charity of £42 yearly, arising from land in the parishes of Kirton and Wyberton, and left by one Thomas Mableson in 1666, is divided among eight poor deserving families of this township. Brothertoft Hall, once the residence of the celebrated Major Cartwright, is a plain modern building now occupied by Frederick Curtois esq. who is lord of the manor. Mrs. Ingram, Henry Rodgers and Frederick Curtois esq are the principal landowners. The soil is a rich loam; subsoil, clay and loam. The chief crops are wheat, beans and potatoes. The area of what is now called Brothertoft is 1,805 acres; the population in 1881 was 253. By a local government order, dated December 24th, 1880, Fosdyke Fen allotment, in the ecclesiastical district assigned to Holland Fen chapelry, was for civil purposes, with its 123 inhabitants, added to Brothertoft proper: this civil district, the whole of which is now called Brothertoft, contains about 1,805 acres, the rateable value being £3,569.

BROUGHTON (with the hamlets of CASTLETHORPE, GOKEWELL and MANBY) is a large parish and villiage, in the Northern division of the county, East division of Manley wapentake, parts of Lindsey, Glanford Brigg union, Brigg county court district, diocese of Lincoln, archdeaconry of Stow, and rural deanery of Manlake, 4 miles north-west from Brigg, 3¼ miles north from Scawby station on the Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway and 3 from Appleby station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway. Part of the parish is governed by a Local Board of 9 members. The church of St. Mary has a square tower, pinnacles and 5 bells; the tower is of great antiquity: the lower part formed the nave of a smaller Saxon church and is a very perfect specimen of Saxon work; attached to it, at the west, is a smaller round tower of the same date, containing a spiral staircase; the nave, of Early Decorated character, is built upon the foundations of a Norman church, parts of which have been recently discovered during the progress of the restoration in 1884; it is of three bays with clerestory and aisles; the latter are of Perpendicular character; here is a south porch: the chancel is of Early English work: at the north is the Anderson chapel, containing some good monuments to members of the Anderson family, dating from 1660: there is also a very fine altar tomb of the fourteenth century, with figures to Sir Henry Redford and his wife, and a large brass of the same date, of which the inscription is gone: the chancel was restored and seated with oak seats, and the east and south windows filled with stained glass by the last rector, the Rev. Thomas Booth Wright. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, yearly value £1,350, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Rev. Thomas Booth Wright, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Wyatt M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford. Here are chapels for the Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists. The hamlet of GOKEWELL, 2 miles distant, was the site of a Cistercian nunnery, founded by William Dautrey (De Alta Ripa) before 1148. There were, at the Dissolution, a prioress and six nuns, the gross yearly revenue being about £19; the site was granted, 30 Hen. VIII. (1538-9) to Sir Thomas Tirwhitt. That portion of the parish called Brigg Foot forms part of the town of Brigg, but pays parochial rates to Broughton, and its population is included in that parish. Broughton seems to have been a Roman settlement. The Earl of Yarborough is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is principally sandy; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 6,918 acres: rateable value, £7,835; the population in 1881 was 1308, of which 1,094 are in the Local Board district.

The river Till divides this parish from Saxelby. The church of All Saints, rebuilt in 1857, under the direction of Mr. Hine, of Nottingham, in the Decorated style, is a structure of rough cliff stone with freestone dressings, and consists of chancel, nave, north transept, vestry, south porch, and a bell turret with spirelet, containing 1 bell: in the chancel are stained windows, placed there at the cost of Thomas Huskinson esq. The register dates from the year 1654. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £250, with 65 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Major Robertson, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Edward Thomas Wigg, of St. Bees,

BURGH-UPON-BAIN (or BROUGH-ON-BAIN) is a parish, in the Mid division of the county, Eastern division of the wapentake of Wraggoe, parts of Lindsey, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Wraggoe, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 7½ miles west from Louth, 8 east-by-south from Market Rasen, about 3 north from the Donnington-on-Bain station of the Louth and Lincoln line of railway, and situated on the road from Louth to Wragby and 2 miles east from South Willingham station. The church of St. Helen, restored in 1872, is a stone building in the Early English style, with chancel, nave and square tower with 1 bell: it contains several monuments to the Lister family: there is a small old chalice weighing 4½oz.: the church was restored and enlarged by the former lord of the manor, the late Capt. John Wilson Fox J.P.: there are two mural monuments in the tower to the members of the Pisdar and Lister families, former owners of Girsby manor. The register dates from the year 1575. The living is a vicarage, yearly value about £150, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the late Captain John Wilson Fox of Girsby Hall, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Alfred Freeman M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford. Mrs. Fox resides at Girsby Hall. The trustees of the late Capt. John Wilson Fox are the lords of the manor and owners of the whole of the parish. BURGH-IN-THE-MARSH is a parish, and small ancient market town, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles east from Spilsby, 2 east from the Gunby or Burgh station of the East Lincolnshire railway, 126¼ from London, 19 north-east from Boston, and 5 north from Wainfleet. The town is pleasantly situated on the site of a Roman camp, overlooking a vast tract of marsh and fen land, extending to the sea. There were formerly two churches at Burgh, but that of St. Mary the Virgin was destroyed at the beginning of the sixteenth century. Roman coins have frequently been met with in the old churchyard of St. Mary, subsequently a garden. The church of SS. Peter and Paul conspicuous both from its size and commanding position, is a building almost wholly of Late Perpendicular date, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, with embattled parapet, aisles, north and south porches, and a fine and massive western tower, with turret on the south east, enriched canopied niches on its western face, and terminating in a parapet with ornamental finials, surmounted by 16 iron crosses; it contains a clock and 6 bells, of which the third and fifth were added in 1616, by the devise of Mr. John Holden: from the summit of the tower a very extensive view is obtained over the broad flat marsh district around: the eastern portion of each aisle once formed chantry chapels, but the screens enclosing them were removed about 1865, and portions are now attached to the chancel walls; the rood screen still remains: the pulpit, dating from 1623, is a good example of its time, and was also the result of Mr. Holden's bequest: beneath the modern pavement is a stone inscribed with a most singular interogatory epitaph to Leonard Palmer, gent. 1610, his wife Catherine, two sons and three daughters: on the font is a beautiful carved oak canopy of the same date and design as the pulpit: a lectern, beautifully carved by Mr. Good, a local artist, was presented by subscription in 1874: the organ was the gift of the Right Rev. W.G. Tozer D.D. successively bishop of Zanzibar, Jamaica and Honduras, and vicar of Burgh 1857-63. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, with that of Winthorpe annexed, joint gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Darius James White B.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge, and surrogate; the Rev. William Arthur Brameld M.A. of Keble College, Oxford, is curate; the sum of £150 is paid to the curate who has the charge of Winthorpe by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners who hold the great tithes. A mission chapel and Sunday school, the gift of Bishop Tozer, was built in the Middle Marsh in 1867 for purposes of public worship, will hold 60 persons. St. Paul's mission house was established on St. Paul's day, 1878, as a college for training students for foreign missionary work. Since the opening, upwards of 50 students have been received, a large proportion of whom have proceeded to St. Augustine's, Canterbury, and others have gone direct to missionary work. The annual charge for the maintenance of each student is £40, assistance towards which is frequently furnished by Missionary Studentship Associations, the Rev. William Arthur Brameld M.A. of Keble College, Oxford, principal. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. A Grammar school was founded in 1726 by Jane Palmer, of Newark, who endowed the incumbents of Burgh, Croft and Wainfleet All Saints, for the purposes of this foundation, with 28 acres of land, now producing about £50 yearly, from which sum grants are at present made to the National schools under the management of the vicar and churchwardens. In 1503 John Holden left by will 54 acres of land in the parishes of Burgh and Irby for the maintenance of divine services in the churches of those parishes, and for certain specified charitable and useful purposes. Veale's charity of 4 acres produces £17 yearly for fuel. Here is an interesting museum consisting of objects collected by Jabez Good. Here are maltings, two breweries, and brickfield. There is a literary institution with reading room, supplied with daily papers. The market is on Thursday, and one of the largest stock markets in the county is held every other week during the summer, and once a month during the winter. The fairs for cattle, are held on the second Thursday in May and 25th September. The Baroness Willoughby de Eresby is lady of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, clay, sand and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans, potatoes, peas, barley and mustard. The area is 4,233 acres; rateable value, £8,032; the population in 1881 was 1,136.

BURRINGHAM is a large village and township in the parish of Bottesford formed into a separate ecclesiastical parish in 1869, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, east division of Manley wapentake, union of Glanford Brigg, county court district of Brigg, petty sessional division of Winterton, rural deanery of Manlake, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln: it is a station on the South Yorkshire railway, 168 miles from London, 5 east-south-east from Crowle, and 4½ north-west from Bottesford, situate on the east bank of the Trent. The church of St. John the Baptist, built in 1857, is an edifice of red brick, consisting of chancel and nave, and a low tower with turret: three of the windows are stained. The register dates from the year 1857. The living is a rectory united with Gunness, under the title of Gunness-cum-Burringham, tithe rent-charge £200, joint gross yearly value £220, including one acre of glebe, with residence at Gunhouse, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich, and held since 1861 by the Rev. Walter Allcroft B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, who resides at Gunness. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The ferry connects the road from Brigg to Doncaster. The Hull and Gainsborough steamers pass the village, stopping when required. Thomas Moulds Henry Foster esq. and the Rev. S. W. Hall's trustees are the principal landowners. The soil is alluvial; subsoil, peat. The chief crops are wheat and potatoes. The area is 1,513 acres; rateable value, £3,411; the population in 1881 was 542 in the township, and 864 in the ecclesiastical parish of Gunness-cum-Burringham.

BURTON-BY-LINCOLN is a small village and parish in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, hundred of Lawress, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Lawress No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles north-west from Lincoln. The church of St. Vincent, built in 1795, is a stone building in the Norman and Perpendicular styles, containing chancel, nave and square tower with 1 bell: it contains several memorials to the Randes and Sutton families. The register dates from about the year 1558. The living is a rectory, yearly value £420, tithe rent-charge £510, with 10 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Lord Monson, and held since 1843 by the Rev. Edmund Roberts Larken M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford. Here are almshouses originally founded in 1651 by Sir J. Monson bart. K.G.P., M.P. of Burton which were rebuilt in 1879 by the present Lord Monson, for ten poor widows of the parishes of Burton, Broxholme and North and South Carlton, who each receive 3s. 4d. per month: they have also divided amongst them an annuity of £5 left in 1712 by Edward Monson esq. of Burton. Burton Hall, a handsome modern mansion, built partly in the Elizabethian style, surrounded by a finely-wooded park, is the seat of Lord Monson P.C., D.L., J.P. who is the lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,325 acres; rateable value, £3,472; the population in 1881 was 282.

BURTON-COGGLES is a village and parish, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, Grantham union and county court district, rural deanery of Beltisloe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, one mile and a half north from the Corby station on the Great Northern railway, 98¾ miles from London, and 9¾ south-east from Grantham. The ancient name of this place was Byrton-le-Coggles, or Byrton-en-les-Coggles, Coggles meaning smooth round stones. The church of St. Thomas-à-Becket is an ancient stone edifice, having chancel, nave and aisles, erected respectively in the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, a western tower surmounted by a short spire containing 3 bells, a south porch: the aisles are separated from the nave by stone columns: it contains some ancient brasses; and two stone statues of knights in chain armour (supposed to have belonged to the family who were the founders of the church and ancient lords of the manor) have been dug up and placed in the porch: there have been discovered the remains of two side altars, a circular staircase, and a lychnoscope window, all previously bricked up and plastered over. The church was restored in 1874 (E. Welby Pugin esq. being the architect), when the Leper window was discovered in the chancel. The register dates from the year 1565. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's Books at £16 12s 3½d. net yearly value £550, including 114 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Joseph Phipps Townsend esq. and his trustees, and held since 1883 by the Rev. John Woollam M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford. Here is also a Primitive Methodist chapel. There are 8A. 3R. 28P. of land belonging to the poor of this parish, tenanted by Henry Hutchinson, of which Sir Hugh Arthur Henry Cholmeley bart. is trustee, but the donor is not known. There are some other charities of small amount. Sir Hugh A. H. Cholmeley bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and owner of all the land except the glebe. The soil is clay and loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are cereals. The area is 2,676; rateable value, £7,292; the population in 1881 was 257.

foundation of a new church was laid, almost on the old site, October 28th, 1870, by the late vicar: this edifice is in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave, north transept or St. Mary's chapel, and a small bell-cot surmounted by a crocketed spirelet above its western gable. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1765; marriages, 1736. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge, £10; gross yearly value £308, including 263 acres of glebe, with good residence, in the gift of Mrs. Snow, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Joseph Newton Smith M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The poor's land of 3 acres, left by an unknown donor, produces £3 15s. yearly. The principal landowners are R. G. Millns esq. E. Tomlinson esq. Retford Hospital, James Ward esq. and George Hebb esq. The soil is strong clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and seeds. The area is 2,580 acres; rateable value, £2,374; the population in 1881 was 202.

BURTON-UPON-STATHER is a parish and considerable village, formerly a market town, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, north division of Manley wapentake, Glanford Brigg union, county court district of Lincoln, rural deanery of Manlake, archdeaconry of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles east-north-east from Crowle, 5 north-west from Frodingham railway station, 4 west from Winterton, 12 north-west from Brigg, pleasantly situated on the brow of a bold cliff, on the east bank of the river Trent, over which is a ferry to Garthorpe. The church of St. Andrew, situated on a commanding eminence, is a stone edifice, partly of the Transitional Period, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, porch, and a western tower containing 3 bells: the church was extensively restored in 1865, under the direction of the late Mr. Browning, at the cost of Sir Robert Sheffield bart. the late Rev. Charles Sheffield, vicar, and the parish, when the southern portion of the nave—formerly a chantry chapel—was converted into a wide aisle, and a new porch and chancel doorway erected: there are several monuments erected to the memory of representatives of the house of Sheffield: the most ancient is a mutilated figure of a knight Templar, laid with his legs crossed, which has been brought from Owston, and was probably over the grave of a Sheffield within the Church, for Leland informs us that they were interred in the church as well as in the churchyard: prior to this period, 1340, when the order of the Templars was dissolved, the Sheffields had no connection with Burton: the effigy is undoubtedly intended for one of that family, as their arms are on the shield, and it now lies in a niche in the northern wall of the chancel at Burton: the drapery of this figure is sculptured with great boldness, the mail armour is executed with great precision; the hauberk on the body terminates differently from that of any figure of this sort; the thighs appear to be covered with a gamboised or quilted defence which reaches to the knees, which are defended by plain armour; the hands are raised in prayer, and the feet have rested on a lion, part of the tail being still remaining; the sword depends from a belt adorned with large studs; the remains of the angelic figures which support the cushion for the head, are delicately sculptured, two very similar figures to which are on the tomb of John of Eltham, Earl of Cornwall, who died in 1334: an ancient sword, but such a one as the Templars never handled, probably brought from Owston church, now stands near the figure, the whole effigy is very much mutilated: a marble stone, on which is engraved the following: "the venerable remains of the five Sheffields mentioned in the Itinerary of Leland, upon the printing of the book, were rescued from the danger of oblivion, and removed from Owston to this place by the pious direction of the not degenerate heir of that antient family, John, Earl of Mulgrave, who, after the famous sea fight in Sold Bay, was, at twenty three years of age, by King Charles II. made captain of the 'Royal Catharine,' colonel of the Old Holland regiment, gentleman of the Bedchamber, and Knight of the most noble order of the Garter, afterwards, by King James II. Lord Chamberlain of the Household; by King William and Queen Mary created Marquis of Normanby, and by the Queen, Duke of Buckingham, made Keeper of her Privy Seal, Lord Steward of the Household, and Lord President of Her Most Honourable Privy Council." A sculptnre consisting of a beautifully draped figure standing by an urn, erected to the memory of Sir Charles Sheffield, 1st. baronet, who died September 15, 1774, also of Margaretta Diana Sheffield, his wife, daughter of General Joseph Sabine, who died Jan. 6, 1762; a sculpture consisting of a figure kneeling over an urn, by Bacon, erected to the memory of two brothers, baronets, who died within three weeks of each other, viz.—Sir John Sheffield, 2nd. bart. died Feb. 1, 1815, Sir Robert Sheffield, 3rd bart. died Feb. 26 in the same year: the east window and oak reredos are respectively erected in memory of the late Sir Robert Sheffield, fourth baronet, and Julia his wife. There are many monuments to other members of the Sheffield family, the latest being a window in the north aisle erected in memory of the late vicar Rev. Charles Sheffield, second son of the third baronet, who was rector of Flixborough and vicar of Burton from 1822 to 1882—60 years. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a vicarage, united with the rectory of Flixborough, joint yearly value £750, in the gift of Sir Robert Sheffield bart. and held since 1882 by the Rev. Francis Amcotts Jarvis M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge and Wells Theological College J.P. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel; the former was built in 1840, and the latter in 1868. In 1777 Burton suffered from an explosion of gunpowder, on board a vessel on the Trent, which blew up with a tremendous explosion, and damage to the church and other buildings was done to the amount of £3,000. A steam boat runs to Gainsborough and Hull daily calling at Burton. Two annual fairs are held here—one on the first Monday after the 1st of May, and the other on the first Monday after New Martinmas-day, and a feast is held at Whitsuntide. Brick and tile making is carried on; also shipbuilding, vessels as large as 300 tons being built. In 1865 a pier was erected by Messrs. Wray and Son, late shipbuilders, at which the steamboats to and from Gainsborough and Hull call daily: J. Garside esq. of Worksop has lately become the owner of the shipyard, which, under the superintendance of Mr. George Morfin, employs about 40 hands. One mile south-east from Burton is Normanby Hall a handsome mansion in the Italian style, the seat of Sir Robert Sheffield bart., D.L., J.P. pleasantly situated in a fine park of nearly 580 acres, well wooded and stocked with deer. The Dean and Chapter of Westminster are lords of the manor, and hold a court leet and baron at Easter. The principal landowner is Sir R. Sheffield bart., D.L., J.P. The soil is clay and red sand; subsoil, clay and ironstone. The chief crops are wheat and barley, and partly pasture land. The area is 3,860 acres; rateable value £5,166 15s.; the population in 1881 was 971, including the hamlets of THEALBY, NORMANBY, 1 mile south-east, and part of COLEBY, 3 miles north.

BURTON-STATHER is a small place at the river side, principally inhabited by shipwrights.

DERBY is a hamlet, half a mile east of the village.

NORMANBY is a hamlet, one mile south-east. Normanby Hall and about twenty houses.

THEALBY is a pleasant hamlet, one mile and a half east from the church. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel here.

BURWELL is a pleasant village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, wold divisicn of the hundred of Louth Eske, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Calceworth No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 5½ miles south-by-east from Louth, 3 west from Authorpe station, and 138 from London, situated on the road from Louth to Spilsby. The church of St. Michael, an ancient Norman structure, covered with ivy, consists of a chancel, nave and tower with 2 bells: it contains several monuments to the Lister and Alington families: the interior was re-arranged, and open seats substituted for the old high pews in 1882: the font, given by Thomas Fitz-William, bears the date of 1460. The parish register (including Walmsgate) dates from the year 1586. The living is a vicarage, with Muckton and Walmsgate annexed, gross joint yearly value £230, with house, in the gift of William Hornsby esq. of Grantham, and held since 1853 by the Rev. Charles Argentine Alington B.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. A weekly market was formerly held here; the old butter-cross, in the centre of the village, is now used as a dovecote. Here was formerly a small alien priory of Benedictine monks, founded by John de Hay, and given by some of the lords of Kime to the Abbey of St. Mary Sylvæ Majoris, near Bordeaux In the reign of Henry I. Burwell was the lordship of Sir Marmaduke Langdale, but it was for many years possessed by the Listers, until the decease of the late Matthew Henry Lister esq. when the lordship was purchased by William Hornsby esq. Burwell Park is the property of William Hornsby esq. who resides at Grantham, and is lord of the manor, impropriator and sole landowner: it is a fine mansion, situated in a beautifully wooded park of 200 acres: the mansion is at present unoccupied. The soil is chalky and heavy loam, and the subsoil chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips. The area is 2,190 acres; rateable value, £2,301; the population in 1881 was 159.

BUSLINGTHORPE is a parish in the Mid division of the county, wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, Caistor union, Market Rasen county court district, rural deanery of Lawress No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, 1½ miles north from Wickenby station, 4 south-west from Market Rasen, and 11½ north-east from Lincoln. The church (record of the name lost), originally Early English, was rebuilt in 1835, under the direction of Mr. E. J Willson, of Lincoln, and consists of chancel, nave, western tower and 1 bell: the modern structure, with the exception of the tower, which is of older date, is of brick, and scarcely covers the site of the former nave, but the old Early English chancel arch has been re-erected and a shield of ancient glass placed in the east window: during the restoration of the church two monuments were discovered, and are now placed on the south side; the first of these is a cross-legged effigy of stone, representing a knight clad in mail, his head supported by angels, and his feet resting on a lion; the figure may be assigned to the later thirteenth or earlier fourteenth centuries, and probably commemorates Sir John de Buslingthorpe: when found, it was lying face downwards, beneath where the pulpit had stood, but is now placed on a new base: the other monument, exhumed in 1707, consists of a coffin-shaped slab, surrounded by the following inscription, in Lombardic characters, but much mutilated: "ISSY · GYT · SIRE · RICHARD · LE · FIZ · SIRE · JOHN · DE · BOSELYNGTHORPE · DEL ALME · DE · KY · DEVS · EYT · MERCY." The upper surfaces displays a semi-effigy in brass, representing the knight in a coif, hauberk and surcoat, and holding in his upraised hands a heart: below is a defaced shield: the date of this brass c. 1280, is but little later than that of Sir John D'Aubernoun, 1277, the earliest remaining military brass in this country. The register dates from the year—baptisms and burials, 1760; marriages, 1762. The living is a rectory, annexed to Faldingworth, gross yearly value, £244, in the gift of Ernest Richard Charles Cust esq. of Arthingworth, Northants, and held since 1877 by the Rev. John Sansom B.A. of Queen's College, Oxford, who is non-resident. The family of De Buslingthorpe held this place from circa 1170 to the fifteenth century: it was afterwards possessed by the Tyrwhitts. The manor and lands now belong to the Charter House, London. The moat, which formerly surrounded the old manor house, still remains. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, clay. The area is 1,129 acres; rateable value, £1,198; the population in 1881 was 56.

BUTTERWICK is a village and parish, near the sea-shore, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Holland, wapentake of Skirbeck, Boston union and county court district, rural deanery of North Holland No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles east-by-north from Boston. The church of St. Andrew, a brick edifice with stone dressings (a very ancient structure), consists of chancel, nave, aisles and a low square tower with 5 bells: the porch, lately added, is entirely of stone, likewise the outer portions of the north and south aisles: in the nave are three Pointed arches: at the north-east end of the nave the stairs to the roof-loft still occupy their turret, and part of a perpendicular Gothic screen separates the nave and chancel: the font, in the south aisle, is of the Early English type, supported by eight circular pillars upon an octagonal base. In the churchyard is a sycamore tree of immense size: records state date of planting 1653. The register dates from the year 1697. The living is a vicarage, united in 1751 with that of Freiston, joint yearly value £274, in the gift of the Rev. Henry Linton M.A. of Oxford, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Samuel Staffurth M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, who resides at The Priory, Freiston. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here. Henry Rogers esq. is lord of the manor. The land is chiefly occupied by small freeholders. The chief crops are wheat and potatoes. The soil is rich arable; subsoil, stiff clay. The area is 1,018 acres of land and 3,050 of water; rateable value, £2,119; the population in 1881 was 533.

By a Local Government Board order, dated December 24th, 1880, a detached portion of this parish, containing 95 inhabitants, was transferred to Leake.

EAST BUTTERWICK is a village and township in the parishes of Bottesford and Messingham, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, east division of the wapentake of Manley, Glanford Brigg union and county court district, 3 miles from Althorpe railway station, on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, and 4 east from Epworth, on the east bank of the Trent. The Primitive and Wesleyan Methodists and Baptists have each a chapel here. The Hull and Gainsborough steamers pass the village, calling here when required. The river Trent is crossed by means of ferry boats. Edward Peacock esq. is lord of the manor of that portion which is in the parish of Bottesford, and William Smith esq. of Barnes Hall, Sheffield, of the portion that is in Messingham. The principal landowners are George Smith esq. and the Faber family. The chief crops are potatoes, wheat and beans. The soil is warp; subsoil, peat and sand. The area is 680 acres in Messingham parish, the remainder being returned with Bottesford; rateable value, £1,901; the population in 1881 was, in the former 220 and in the latter 96.

A School Board of 5 members was formed in 1878; John Outram, clerk to the board; Robert Benson, attendance officer

WEST BUTTERWICK is a large village, township and ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1845 from Owston civil parish, on the west bank of the river Trent, in the Isle of Axholme, Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, western division of Manley wapentake, union and county court district of Gainsborough, Axholme rural deanery, Stow archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles south from Althorpe railway station, 4½ east-by-north from Epworth and 12 north from Gainsborough. There is a ferry to East Butterwick, which is situated on the opposite side of the Trent. The Trent is navigated by the Hull and Gainsborough steam packets, which call here daily. The church of St. Mary, erected in 1841, is a plain structure of brick: it consists of nave and square tower, containing 3 bells, with pinnacles, which is ornamented with an octagonal turret continued by a brick spire: the appearance of this edifice, constructed wholly of brick with the exception of the roof, is unique: it has sittings for 300 persons: in 1879 the interior was refitted and reseated from designs furnished by the Rev. D. J. White M.A. vicar, at a cost of about £160. The separate register of this parish dates only from the year 1845; the earlier registers are included in those of Owston. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £300 and good residence, in the gift of the vicar of Owston; the Rev. Frederick John Moule M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, is curate in charge. A burial ground of about three-quarters of an acre, adjoining the churchyard, was given by Sir R. Sheffield bart. in 1875. The Wesleyan Primitive Methodist and General Baptists have each a chapel, the latter having an endowment of about £35 per year arising from land: part of the income is for the relief of the poor belonging to the chapel. The poor of the parish receive £15 yearly in fuel from rent of land, left in the hands of the churchwardens and overseers by sundry charitable individuals. Alfred Parkin esq. is lord of the manor; Sir Robert Sheffield bart. D.L., J.P. chief landowner. The chief crops are potatoes, wheat, oats and beans. The soil is deep loam; subsoil, peat. The area is 2,307 acres; rateable value, £4,129; the population in 1881 was 718. KELFIELD is a hamlet 3 miles south on the west bank of the Trent.

CASTLE BYTHAM is a considerable village and parish near the Great Northern railway, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, wapentake of Beltisloe, Bourn union and county court district, rural deanery of Beltisloe, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, picturesquely seated on a bold eminence, 2½ miles west-north-west from Little Bytham station, 94 from London, 9 north-west from Stamford and the like distance west-by-south from Bourn; it is on the border of the county of Rutland. A branch of the Witham flows through the parish. The church of St. James, situated on an eminence in the centre of the village, is an ancient stone edifice, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, transepts and a tower containing a clock and 3 bells; the chancel retains a good Norman doorway with beak-head ornament, and has a screen with painted panels, exhibiting figures of saints; on the north side are an easter sepulchre and aumbry, and on the south a piscina, some stone sedilia and brackets: the church was restored in 1857, and a south transept erected on the site of a former destroyed transept. The register dates from the year 1650. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly value £250, in the gift of the Bishop and Dean and Chapter of Lincoln alternately, and held since 1858 by the Rev. Charles Churchill Crakanthorp M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford.

LITTLE BYTHAM is a station on the Great Northern Railway, small village and parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, hundred of Beltisloe, Bourn union and county court district, rural deanery of Beltisloe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The village is pleasantly seated in a valley, 92 miles from London, 8 north-by-west from Stamford and 7 west-south-west from Bourn. The church of St. Medardus is a stone edifice, of Mixed styles, with a chancel, nave and south aisle, south porch and a tower surmounted by a spire, and was restored in 1875, at a cost of £800: the north door is a good specimen of Norman architecture. The register dates from the year 1859. Pursuant to a direction in the will of Enoch Millson esq. who lies buried in the churchyard, a handsome stained east window was placed in the church in 1882 in commemoration of the Nixon family. The living is a rectory, estimate gross income £359 with residence (the income is derived from 270 acres of glebe land which is farmed by the rector), in the alternate gift of the Bishop and the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and held since 1859 by the Rev. Joseph Clark M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. Brick making is extensively carried on here. Here are the adamantine clinker works. Remains of Roman pottery are frequently found here, showing that the clay had been worked in the time of the Romans. The Baroness Willoughby de Eresby is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans and barley. The area is 1,010 acres; rateable value, £4,302; the population in 1881 was 305.

CABOURN is a parish and small but pleasant village, situate in a valley, and on the turnpike road betwixt Caistor and Great Grimsby, in the Northern division of the county, north-east division of Bradley Haverstoe wapentake, parts of Lindsey, Caistor union and county court district, rural deanery of Grimsby No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, being rather more than a mile east-by-north from Caistor, 5¼ miles north-east from Holton or Moortown stations and 162 from London. The church of St. Nicholas is an Early Norman structure of stone, with Early English and Decorated insertions, consisting of a chancel and nave, south porch and a western tower containing 1 bell: the chancel retains a piscina and a low side window; the font consists of a cylindrical bowl, on a square base; and on this has been placed the bowl of a Norman font, discovered under the floor during the restoration; the tower, considered by Mr. Paley and others as a Saxon work, has been raised twelve feet, and baluster lights introduced: the church was restored in 1872, under the direction of Mr. A. W. Blomfield M.A., F.S.A. when the walls of the nave and chancel were rebuilt, the tower heightened, a porch added, several new windows inserted and the interior refitted; a low wooden screen of carved open work divides the chancel and nave. There is a chalice of the fifteenth century. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £240 from 250 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Yarborough, and held since 1854 by the Rev. Charles Hensley M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1853. The Pelham Column stands in a wood, on an eminence commanding extensive views of the surrounding country; it is a square stone building, 128 feet in height, and bears the following inscription:—"This pillar was erected to commemorate the planting of these woods by Charles Anderson Pelham, Lord Yarborough, who commenced planting in 1787, and between that year and 1823 placed on his property 12,552,700 trees: the foundation of this pillar was laid in the year 1840 by his son, and the building finished by his grandson in 1849." The Earl of Yarborough is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The soil is a dark sand; subsoil, chalk. The area is 2,860 acres; rateable value, £2,768; the population in 1881 was 174.

BADGER'S HILLS, about one mile south-east from the village, are well known as fox covers.

The church of All Saints is a stone building in the Norman style consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, chantry and western tower with 1 bell, it contains an oak screen beautifully carved and a Norman font: in 1865 a severe gale of wind carried away the roof of the chancel: a new roof was erected by the Earl of Yarborough: under the pulpit is a stone to the memory of the Pye family, bearing date 1699: there are also the remains of a stained window in the south aisle. The register with Howsham dates from the year 1564. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £365 including 13 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Earl of Yarborough, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Edgar Brown, of St. Bees. Here are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Earl of Yarborough is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The soil is clay; subsoil, peat. The area is 4,860 acres, including Newstead; rateable valne, £5,121; the population in 1881 was 449.

HOWSHAM is a hamlet, half a mile from the station and 2 miles east of Cadney. Here is a small chapel of ease, also chapels for the Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists.

NEWSTEAD, formerly extra-parochial, is now a parish in Glanford Brigg union, situate one mile and a half south from Brigg, on the river Ancholme: it consists of a farm of abont 465 acres and six cottages, the property of the Earl of Yarborough; rateable value, £544. Here was formerly a priory of which there is now only a chapter room remaining, which is in very good preservation. The population in 1881 was 59.

CAENBY is a parish, in the Northern division of the county, east division of the wapentake of Aslacoe, parts of Lindsey, Lincoln nnion, Market Rasen county court district, rural deanery of Aslacoe, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles west from Market Rasen station and 13 north from Lincoln. The church of St. Nicholas is a stone building in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel and nave and bell turret with 1 bell; a handsome stained window has been placed in the chancel in memory of the late rector, Rev. G. B. Pix, by whom the church was new roofed and during whose incumbency it was reseated. There was a church here prior to the Conquest. The register dates from the year 1713. The living is a rectory, yearly value £300 with residence, in the gift of Sir Arthur E. Middleton bart. and held by the Rev. Robert Courtenay, who also holds the vicarage of Saxby and Firsby rectory. Caenby Hall, formerly a seat of the Monck family, is now occupied as a farmhouse. J. T. Tweed, town clerk of Lincoln, is lord of the manor, and with Messrs. J. Copping and C. Cross, the chief landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans and turnips, and there is much land in pasture. The area is, 1,441 acres; rateable value, £1873; the population in 1881 was 129.

CAISTOR is a union and market town, head of a county court district, township and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, south division of Yarborough wapentake, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, situate on a commanding western acclivity of the Wolds, 3 miles north-east from the Moortown or Holton stations on the Hnll, Market Rasen and Lincoln railway, 160 miles from London, 23 north-east-by-north from Lincoln, 9 north from Market Rasen, 9 south-east from Brigg and 12 south-west from Great Grimsby: the township includes the hamlets of AUDLEBY, FONABY and HUNDON, which lie a short distance north and north-west of the town. The town is lighted with gas by the Caistor Gas and Coke Company Limited, and is well supplied with water from four springs issuing from a greystone rock, called Cypher-well, Pigeon-spring, Stottwell and the Spa. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, standing within the area of an ancient fortress, is a fine building of stone of the Norman, Early English and Decorated periods, consisting of chancel, with south or Maddison chapel, and north or Hundon chapel, nave, aisles, south transept and a western tower of three stages: the lower portion being Norman, the middle stage Early English, the upper which is fourteenth century Decorated, has now only four pinnacles, other four having been blown down by a storm in 1663, and contains 6 bells and a clock; in the lower part of the tower are remains of Saxon and Norman work, its arch, opening into the nave, is of a very early type and probably Saxon; and within is an equally early recess; the nave arcades are Early English, and the windows of the south aisle Decorated: several of the windows are stained: under a recessed arch in the wall of the north or Hundon chapel is a fine monument with effigy of Sir William de Hundon, of Hundon and Brocklesby (temp. Henry III. and Edward I.): the figure is that of a knight in chain mail, covered with a cyclas, or long surcoat, with sword and shield, and at his feet a dog; the monument of his supposed wife, with the effigy of a lady in a wimple, and hands upraised in prayer, was removed at the restoration of the church to the south chapel; within the Hundon choir is a third monument (temp. Edward III. or Richard II.), said to be that of Sir John de Hundon, this consists of a richly carved sepulchral recess, enclosing a knightly effigy of stone, in plate armour, with mutilated figures of angels at the head: in the Maddison chapel is a marble monument to Sir Edward Maddison, 1553, with his effigy in full armour, kneeling before a lectern; the figure is supported on a substructure of white marble, and overhead is a canopy, resting on columns: here also is a monument to Katherine (Bosvile), wife of Edward Maddison of Fonaby, grandson of the preceding; she died in 1591, and her husband in 1619: the church, with the exception of the tower, was restored in 1862, under the direction of Mr. Butterfield, when the roofs were reconstructed, new windows inserted and the interior reseated; the north porch was wholly rebuilt, the ancient doorways being retained; a reredos of stone and marble, designed by Mr. W. Butterfield F.S.A. architect, was presented in 1873 by the late Mrs. Skipworth, formerly lady of the manor. The register, including Clixby, dates from the year 1559, and incorporates those of Holton-le-Moor up to a certain period. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelries of Holton-le-Moor and Clixby, yearly value £320 with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1844 by the Rev. Hippisley Maclean B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, Canon (non-residential) of Lincoln, rural dean and surrogate. The vicarage of Caistor, with Holton-le-Moor and Clixby, formerly constituted the endowment of a prebend in Lincoln Cathedral: but at the last avoidance of the prebend, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners sold the prebendal lands in Caistor, still subject, however, to the repairs of the chancel of the parish church. Here is a Congregational chapel built in 1842, a Primitive Methodist chapel in 1878 and a Wesleyan chapel erected in 1842, at a cost of about £1,200; it contains sittings for 600 persons, about 150 of which are free. The market day is Saturday; and the fairs (for sheep, oxen and horses) are held on the Fridays and Saturdays before Palm Sunday and Whit Sunday, September 16th, and the Friday and Saturday after October 11th. A reading room was opened in High street in 1879, and has 70 members. The town has several good inns; the Red Lion is in the Market place, and has a large assembly room. Large quantities of iron ore of good quality are obtained in the neighbourhood. This place is noted for its springs, some of which are supposed to possess curative powers. The Britons here formed a stronghold, called Caer, according to Camden, Egarry; and here the Romans established a station comprising an area 900 by 300 feet in extent, which they surrounded with a massive wall, portions of which still exist. After the Romans had withdrawn from this country, Caistor continued to be an important town during the Saxon period, under the name of Tunnaceaster, as Bede calls it; this term may be derived from Thames-Ceaster, but more probably from Thing-Ceaster, or Council-town, afterwards corrupted into Thong-Caistor. Amongst the singular observances in this part of the country may be noticed the following ceremony, which formerly took place at the parish church of Caistor, every Palm Sunday, when the proprietor of the Broughton estate in this neighbourhood sent an agent to the north porch, where he was enjoined to crack what is here called a horse-gad (a peculiar kind of whip) three times before the reading of the first lesson; while the clergyman was reading the second lesson he knelt down; and then, after waving the whip over the clergyman's head, so held it till the lesson was finished, when he deposited it in the pew of the lord of the manor of Hundon: to the stock of the whip was appended a purse containing 30 silver pennies, and three pieces of wych-elm: after remaining in the church till the conclusion of the service, the agent proceeded to the Manor House, where the whip and purse were deposited: this custom, believed to have been originally a religious one, connected with the ceremonies of Palm Sunday, was discontinued in 1847. See "Archæological Journal," vol. vi. p. 239 and Assoc. Arch. Soc. Rep. vol. vi. p. 153. The latest and perhaps the most important advance made in Caistor during the last few years has been the erection of an establishment at Hundon, by Mr. Thomas Ford, for the incubation and rearing of large numbers of Salmonidæ. Mr. Ford has constructed a series of ponds fed by the purest springs, in some of which are very fine spawning fish: and in others are fry of English, Scotch and American trout, from some of the finest strains in the world. The hatching-houses are replete with every appliance for the incubation of some millions of eggs, and Mr. Ford has already met with a patronage which is the earnest of complete success. (For further particulars see advertisement). In 1681 there was a great fire here, which broke out at the house of one John Sheriff, and consumed more than half the place, leaving 45 families in poverty. In 1863, during the construction of a drain beneath the road on the west side of the churchyard, fragments of a square leaden vessel of Roman origin were found, stamped with the words "CVNOBARRVS FECIT VIVAS," and a scroll pattern; it is supposed to have been a "Vasadefrutaria," or vessel for thickening wine. Miss Skipworth is lady of the manor. The principal landowners are the Earl of Yarborough, the trustees of the late W. Lancaster esq. G. B. Skipworth esq. Benjamin Marshall, Walter Taylor and George Parker. The parish contains, with its hamlets, 6,490 acres of fertile and well-cultivated land; rateable value, £7,651; and a population in 1881 of 1,867 in Caistor township, 45 in Clixby chapelry and 178 in Holton-le-Moor chapelry; the two latter places will be found under separate headings.

Parish Clerk, Joshua Foster.

CAMMERINGHAM is a parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, west division of Aslacoe wapentake, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Aslacoe, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 7¼ miles north-north-west from Lincoln and 6 miles from Stow Park station on the G. N. & G. E. joint railway. The church of St. Michael, consisting of chancel and nave, with bell turret, is a stone building, in the Early English style, and contains an ancient monument of the Tyrwhitt family, who were ancestors of Lord Monson: the present church is a remnant of a much larger and ancient building erected in the Perpendicular style; it formerly had a south aisle, as shewn by the arches which are still clearly to be seen in the wall, which, filled in with materials of the old edifice, now forms the north side of the structure, in the churchyard graves have been discovered from time to time very skilfully fashioned in the rock, after the ancient form of the "Kyst Vaen." The old portion of the church was taken down at the instigation of a former archdeacon of the diocese, who pointed ont that the reduced fabric would be less expensive to maintain in good repair. The register now in the church dates from the year 1775. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value £152, in the gift of Lord Monson, and held by the Rev. David Lloyd Thomas M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who resides at Aisthorpe. A religious house was founded here in the reign of Henry II. by Richard de Hay and Maude his wife, and endowed with the manor, which, at the dissolution of religious houses, was granted to Robert Tyrwhitt esq. Lord Monson P.C. of Burton Hall, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 1,950 acres; rateable value, £1,794; the population in 1881 was 156.

CANDLESBY is a pleasant village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles east-by-north from Spilsby, one mile and a half north-west from the Burgh station on the East Lincolnshire railway and 126½ miles from London. The church of St. Benedict, having fallen into decay, was pulled down, and a new one erected in 1838 on the same site, at an expense of £700, raised by subscription: the new church is of brick, and consists of chancel and nave, and tower containing 3 bells. There are sittings for 234 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1753; marriage, 1755. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value, from 157 acres of glebe £200, with residence, in the gift of Magdalen College, Oxford, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Edwin Roberts M.A. of that college. Candlesby Hall, the residence of John Hodson esq. is a pleasant mansion, situated on an eminence. The President and Fellows of Magdalen College, Oxford, who are lords of the manor, and John Hodson esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is light loam and limestone; subsoil, limestone and clay lime is burnt here. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and potatoes. The area is 1,017 acres; rateable value, £1,455; the population in 1881 was 247.

CANWICK is a village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, county of the city of Lincoln, parts of Kesteven, second division of Langoe wapentake, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Longoboby, and diocese and archdeaconry of Lincoln, one mile and a half south-east from Lincoln. The church of All Saints is an ancient stone structure, in the Norman, Transitional, and Late Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, with north chapel, nave, north aisle, and a western tower with four pinnacles containing 2 bells: the church is chiefly interesting on account of its examples of Norman work, including the chancel arch, of three orders, and two arches in the nave springing from circular piers, with a high shallow base: it contains several monuments to the Sibthorp family; one to the memory of Coningsby Sibthorp esq. LL.D. who died August 13th, 1788; another to Gervaise Tottenham Waldo Sibthorp, who died October 13th, 1861; also one to his third son, Hugh Henry Sibthorp, who died January 1st. 1861; also another to the memory of the Rev. Humphrey Waldo Sibthorp, late rector of Washingboro, and son of Colonel Humphrey Waldo Sibthorp M.P. of Canwick Hall, who died November 4th, 1865; also to his widow Mary Esther, eldest daughter and co-heiress of the late Henry Ellison of Sudbrooke Holme, Lincoln, who died November 7th, 1875: also one to his second daughter, Caroline Susannah Waldo Sibthorp, who died June 10th, 1837; the church was partly restored in 1846 at the west end. The register dates from the year 1681. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £520, with 14 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Mercers' Company of London, and held since 1872 by the Rev. James Watney M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Canwick Hall, the seat of Coningsby Charles Sibthorp esq. M.A., J.P., D.L. is a stone mansion, erected in 1810-11, by the late Colonel Coningsby Waldo Sibthorp, who died in 1822: it stands partly on the site of the old hall, which had for many years been the seat of the Sibthorp family, many of whom have represented Lincoln in Parliament. This hall is most pleasantly situated in well-arranged and wooded grounds, and has a commanding view of Lincoln cathedral and city, and of the valley of the Witham. The corporation of Lincoln, who are lords of the manor, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the trustees of Garrett's charity, and C. C. Sibthorp esq. J.P., D.L. are the chief landowners. The soil is limestone; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are barley and wheat, the barley being considered excellent. The area is 1,999 acres; rateable value, £5,918; the population in 1881 was 246.

CAREBY is a parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Beltisloe wapentake, Bourn union and county court district, rural deanery of Beltisloe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The village is about a quarter of a mile south-east from Little Bytham station, 92 miles from London, 6 north from Stamford, and 6 south-west from Bourn. The church of St. Stephen is an edifice of stone, in the Early English style, and has a chancel, nave and south aisle, with a Norman tower, having a staircase built in the thickness of the walls: in the chancel are two very ancient monuments and stone statues of a knight and a knight and lady; the latter is draped from the waist, and the knights are in chain-armour: the church was re-seated and restored in 1855-6. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, with the curacy of Holywell-with-Aunby annexed, yearly value about £400, including 79 acres of glebe, in the gift of Charles Thomas Samuel Birch-Reynardson esq. of Holywell Hall, and held since 1844 by the Rev. John Birch-Reynardson M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. A school for boys and girls is supported by the rector. Here are some remains of the ancient mansion of the Hatchers. Charles Thomas Samuel Birch-Reynardson esq. D.L. of Holywell Hall, who is lord of the manor, and the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay and sandstone rock. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. The area is 1,454 acres; rateable value, £5,940; the population in 1881 was 168.

CASTLE CARLTON is a parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of Louth Eske hundred, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludburgh No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles south-east from Louth, and 2½ north from Authorpe station. The church of the Holy Cross is a small stuccoed structure, with chancel and nave, a turret with 1 bell and a western porch, and was built upon the site of the ancient church: the base of the old cross remains in the churchyard: the chalice is an ancient one of beaten silver. The register dates from the year 1571. The living is a discharged rectory, united with Little Carlton, joint yearly value £199, tithe rent-charge, with 100 acres of glebe and residence in the gift of Major Forster, and held since 1871 by the Rev. Samuel Cumming M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge. In the reign of Henry I. this parish was the head of the barony of Sir Hugh Barde, or Bardolph, whose castle is supposed to have stood on the three artificial hills near the church. A weekly market was formerly held here, and the inhabitants enjoyed many privileges, amongst which was the freedom of toll at Louth. Major Forster, who is lord of the manor, and the Governors of Leicester Hospital, are the chief owners of the land, which is farmed by Mr. Robert Needham of Great Carlton and Mr. W. G. North of Thoresby. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 436 acres; rateable value, £498; and the population in 1881 was 21.

GREAT CARLTON is a pleasant village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, Marsh division of the hundred of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludburgh No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles south-by-east from Louth, 3 east from Legbourne station, on the East Lincolnshire railway and about 2½ south-by-east from Grimoldby station on the Louth and East Coast railway. The church of St. John the Baptist, was, with the exception of the tower, entirely rebuilt in the year 1860, at the expense of the rector, in the Early English style: it consists of a chancel, nave, aisles, and tower at west end, which is in the Perpendicular style of architecture, terminating in battlements, and pinnacle and porch on south side; five bells were added in 1875, at a cost of £300, given by Major Forster, and an organ, at a cost of about £150, given by the rector, who in 1871 also placed an oak lychgate at the entrance to the churchyard: there is a very beautifully carved oak pulpit, and a stained window to the memory of the late rector, the Rev. George Pretyman M.A. 1850. The register dates from the year 1561. The living, originally a discharged vicarage, was endowed with the rectorial tithes by Herbert Thorndike, and in the year 1793 lands were laid out and apportioned by Commissioners in lieu of tithes and ancient glebe lands: the present yearly value is £507, including 322 acres of glebe lands with residence, it is in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and held since 1850 by the Rev. Frederic Pretyman B.D. late fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford. The Wesleyan Methodists have a place of worship, built 1869. Carlton Lodge, the residence of the Rev. Frederic Pretyman B.D., J.P. is a handsome mansion, in the Elizabethan style. Major Forster, who is lord of the manor, the Rev. F. Pretyman, and the trustees of Wyggeston's Hospital, Leicester, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and pasturage. The area is 2,297 acres; rateable value, £3,102; the population in 1881 was 261.

CARLTON-LE-MOORLAND is a village and parish situate on the rivers Witham and Brant, the former being the boundary of the parish on the west and the latter on the east, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Kesteven, lower division of the wapentake of Boothby Graffoe, Newark union and county court district, rural deanery of Graffoe and diocese and archdeaconry of Lincoln, 9 miles north-east from Newark, 10½ south-south-west from Lincoln and 6 west from Navenby station on the Great Northern railway. The church of St. Mary, formerly appropriated to the priory of Thornham, is an ancient stone structure, in the Elizabethan style, and consists of chancel, north chapel, nave, with square western tower containing 3 bells: in the church are two small brass tablets erected to the memory of the Disney family in 1595 and 1611. The register dates from the year 1562; on the same skin as one dated 1612 is one dated 1513, but it evidently has been altered from 1613. The living is a vicarage, united to the vicarage of Stapleford, joint yearly value £201, in the gift of Lord Middleton, and held since 1858 by the Rev. Richard Baldock B.A. of St John's College, Cambridge. The Baptists and Wesleyans have each a chapel here. Mrs. Brocklebank, in 1820, left the interest of £100 for the support of a Sunday school; and the Rev. Mr. Smith, vicar, by his will, bearing date January 8th, 1762, left the sum of £30, the interest amounting to £1 yearly, to be applied to the purchase of religious books for the use of the Sunday school. The charities consist of the interest on £100, bequeathed by different donors, for the benefit of the poor, and amounting to £3 12s. 6d. which is distributed in coal; also the rent of 3½ acres of land, let yearly on Easter Monday to the highest bidder, and now producing £3 10s. yearly, for the benefit of poor widows. Lord Middleton is impropriator of the rectorial tithes, lord of the manor, and principal landowner. The soil is various, being sand, clay, and strong soil; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 2,610 acres; rateable value, £3,576; the population in 1881 was 310.

NORTH CARLTON is a small village and parish, in the Mid division of the County, parts of Lindsey, Lawress wapentake, union and county court district of Lincoln, rural deanery of Lawress No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles north-west from Lincoln, and 3½ north-east from Saxelby station, situate near the Roman way. The church (name unknown), which was rebuilt in 1770, is a stone structure, in the Early English style, has apsidal chancel, nave, square tower and 3 bells. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, of the net yearly value of £150, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1871 by the Rev. Charles Thomas Johnson Baines M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, who resides in Lincoln. Lord Monson P.C. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is various, resting on the lime and ironstone, also on the clay. The chief crops are oats, wheat and barley. The area is 1,819 acres; rateable value, £2,435; the population in 1881 was 163.

CARLTON-SCROOP is a small village and parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Loveden wapentake, Grantham union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Loveden, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 1¼ miles north east from Honington station on the Great Northern railway, 6 north from Grantham, 9 west from Sleaford, and 19 south from Lincoln, situate on the Cliff range and the road from Grantham to Lincoln. The church of St. Nicholas is a building of stone, in the Norman, Early English and later styles, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, porch, and a western tower containing 3 bells; the lower stage of the tower is Norman, but the upper part was rebuilt in the Decorated period: in 1633, a part of the tower fell through the nave, doing much damage, which was repaired at the cost of John Palmer esq. of this place: the remainder of the church appears to have been rebuilt during the Early English period, of which portions of the chancel, the arcades of the nave and the porch are examples: the chancel has a sedile recess and a double piscina; the entrance to the rood loft also remains, but of the Perpendicular rood screen, only a fragment now exists; the aisles were rebuilt in the Decorated period, and their east and west windows of this date remain; the east end of each aisle once formed a chantry, indicated by the piscina and statue brackets still in the walls: the east window of the chancel, also Decorated, exhibits considerable portions of old stained glass, including figures of a knight in armour and his lady, each supporting a shield of arms; what should be the head of the lady, is, however, the head of an ecclesiastic, brought from a distant church: the canopied pulpit, of carved oak, is Jacobean: the font, a large example, is Decorated with traceried panels: there are inscribed floor slabs to Robert Palmer, 1653, who partly rebuilt the church, and his wife; and to the wife of Sir Lewis Palmer bart. of Carlton, Northants, 1649; two brasses and other inscriptions to this family have disappeared. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, with that of Normanton consolidated, yearly value £445, with residence and 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of Earl Brownlow, the Marquess of Bristol and the rector of Long Bennington, and held since 1875 by the Rev. William Andrews M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. The Wesleyans have a small chapel. There are charities of about £3 3s. yearly value, arising from £100 left in 1748, by Edith Tyndall, besides 6 acres of land, let in allotments to the poor. Earl Brownlow and William G. Lely esq. are the principal landowners, and the latter is lord of the manor. The soil is principally a strong loam; subsoil, stone and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips and seeds. The area is 1,342 acres; rateable value, £2,620; the population in 1881 was 227.

edifice was substantially renovated, at the joint cost of the incumbent, parishioners, and Ecclesiastical Commissioners, under the direction of S. S. Teulon esq. architect; the piers of the south aisle, which had been previously walled up, being reinstated and the chancel has been paved with Minton tiles, and adorned with elaborately carved oak communion rails, at the sole cost of the archdeacon: at the north-east end is a small chapel, beneath which is the burial-place of the family of Lords Monson: it contains a handsome monument in alabaster, containing two recumbent figures, intended to represent Sir John Monson, who died in 1593, and his lady, who died in 1625: a stained window is placed in the south aisle to the memory of the late William Brown esq. The name of this church is stated in the report of the Lincolnshire Architectural Society to be St. John the Baptist. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200 the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln; the Ecclesiastical Commissioners now hold the tithes, which were formerly annexed to one of the prebends in Lincoln Cathedral, and they have augmented the living therewith; the present incumbent is the Ven. Wm. Fredk. John Kaye M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford, archdeacon of Lincoln, who is also rector of and resides at Riseholme; the Rev. Richard Forster Dixon M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, is curate. Lord Monson is lord of the manor and sole landowner; his ancestors resided in the parish, but the mansion no longer stands. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,910 acres; rateable value, £2,236; the population in 1881 was 175

CAYTHORPE is a large village, parish, and station on the Honington and Lincoln branch of the Great Northern railway, on the Cliff road, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven, Grantham petty sessional division, Newark union and county court district, rural deanery of Loveden, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 9 miles west-by-north from Sleaford, 11 east-south-east from Newark and 10 north from Grantham. The church of St. Vincent is a cruciform edifice of Ancaster stone, in the Early and Late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, principally Early Decorated, and consists of chancel, transept, double nave, and a central tower with spire containing 8 very fine bells and a clock, presented by the late Col. George Hussey Packe; the most singular feature in this church is the nave, which is divided longitudinally by an arcade of tall light octagonal columns with well-moulded capitals, carrying plain wide arches, springing from between two handsome windows at the west end; a north aisle was added in 1860: the tower is surmounted by a pierced parapet and four pinnacles, attached by four flying buttresses to the crocketed spire, which is one of singular beauty, rising to the height of about 156 feet; both tower and spire are of good proportions and excellent effect; the latter was struck by lightning Dec. 30, 1859, when the upper portion fell through the roofs of the chancel and transepts; the spire, as now rebuilt, is somewhat shorter than previously, but its general outline is more graceful; the north aisle was added in 1860, from a design by the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A.; the font is Decorated; over the tower arch are remains of mural paintings of the Last Judgment, and of the Archangel Michael weighing souls; and on either side of this arch are marble monuments to Sir Charles Hussey, ob. 1698, and his wife, and Sir Edward Hussey, his son, M.P. for Lincoln, ob. 1724; both transepts have served as chapels, and retain aumbries, and one a statue bracket. The register, including Frieston, dates for baptisms from 1663; marriages, 1692; burials, 1673. The living is a rectory; the tithes are commuted for £1,095, with residence and 14 acres of glebe, in the gift of Hussey Packe, esq. J.P. and held since 1847 by the Rev. Charles Daniel Crofts B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The Wesleyans have a chapel here. The charities amount to about £16 yearly, arising from the Hussey charity, distributed in money to aged persons of the parish every Christmas. A fair is held at Caythorpe on the second Friday after Good Friday, and the feast on the last Sunday in May. Caythorpe Hall, the property of Hussey Packe esq. J.P. is a handsome modern mansion, built on the site of the old hall, formerly the residence of Sir Giles Hussey, who was with the Earl of Surrey at the sacking of Morlaix, in France, in 1552: it is surrounded by enclosed grounds and gardens, and is at present occupied by the Hon. Evelyn Cornwallis Anderson Pelham D.L., J.P. Hussey Packe esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner, but there are several smaller freeholders. The soil is peat, loam and clay; subsoil, limestone and ironstone. The soil abounds with ironstone; three mines have been sunk and are producing fine samples of ore. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and seeds. The area is 4,210 acres; rateable value, £7,302; the population in 1881 was 897.

Frieston is a hamlet to the parish, half a mile south. Here was the shaft of an ancient cross.

CHAPEL HILL is a hamlet in the Fen portion of the parish of Swineshead, from which it is distant about 12 miles, 1 mile south from Dogdyke station, 3 miles south from Tattershall, and 10 north-west from Boston, and on the west bank of the river Witham, in the South division of the county, union and county court district of Boston, rural deanery of North Holland, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The old chapel of ease to Swineshead, now demolished, was erected in 1826. On the 12th of June 1334, a new church, the Holy Trinity, was opened here near to the site of the old chapel of ease; it cost £650; it is a substantial building of brick in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisle, with a porch on the south side, and a bell-turret containing 1 bell. An addition has been made to the churchyard. The register dates from 1826. The living is a perpetual curacy, yearly value £40, in the gift of the vicar of Swineshead, who is also the sequestrator; the Rev. Canon Arthur Wright M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, rector of Coningsby, is the officiating minister. There are places of worship for Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists. The landowners are Mr. Johnson and Mrs. Mayfield. The area, including Pelham's Land, is 1,122, and the rateable value, including Pelham's Land, £1,685; population, 117.

CLAYPOLE is a village, parish, and station on the Great Northern railway, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kestoven, union and county court district of Newark, Loveden rural deanery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 115¼ miles from London, 20⅜ from Lincoln, 5 south-east from Newark, and 10 north-west from Grantham, situated on the east bank of the river Witham adjoining Nottinghamshire. The church of St. Peter is a very handsome edifice of stone, chiefly of the Decorated period, but with considerable remains of Early English work, consisting of chancel, with chantry chapel on the north-east, transepts, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles extending to the extreme western limit of the tower, south porch and a western embattled tower of two stages, with crocketed pinnacles at the angles, and an elegant octagonal crocketed spire with two tiers of spire lights; the tower which was struck by lightning, July 30, 1827, contains 5 bells; the lower stages of the tower and portions of the south transept date from the thirteenth century: the east window is Perpendicular, and has five lights, disposed in two tiers; the whole building, with the exception of the chancel, is embattled and enriched with crocketed pinnacles; the chancel is separated from the body of the church by an oaken screen, and retains a piscina, aumbry and four sedilia with finely crocketed canopies over each opening, and shields: there are triple sedilia, a double piscina, and doorway, all of Early English work in the south transept; the font is octagonal and has Decorated tracery on each face; the pulpit and its canopy are elaborately and delicately carved and form an extremely beautiful example of the Jacobean style; the canopy is partly supported by the staff of a brass processional cross; in the south transept, or St. Mary's chantry, is a fine altar slab marked with foliated crosses; there are also two modern marble monuments: in 1841 the church was repaired, at an expense of £200. The register dates from the year 1579. The living is a rectory, yearly value of £663; it formerly consisted of two medieties, North and South, but they are now united, of the yearly value of £600, arising from 475 acres, allotted at the enclosure in lieu of tithes, in the gift of J. Plumptre esq. and held since 1879 by the Rev. Charles Pemberton Plumptre M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. Here are also places of worship for Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists. The poor of the parish have about £2 10s. a year, arising from the rent of about two acres of land. The workhouse for the Newark union is situated here: it was erected in 1817, and enlarged for the union in 1838, and will hold 250 inmates. George Nevile esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is strong clay: subsoil, clay and stone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans and seeds. The area is 3,370 acres; rateable value, £8,020; the population in 1881 was 678, including 114 officers and inmates in Newark workhouse.

CLEE, with CLEETHORPES, and the Hamlets of THRUNSCOE and WEELSBY.

CLEE, with the township of Cleethorpes, and hamlets of THRUNSCOE and WEELSBY, with a station at Cleethorpes, on a branch of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway, constitutes a parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, parliamentary borough of Great Grimsby, Bradley Haverstoe wapentake, Caistor union, Great Grimsby county court district, rural deanery of Great Grimsby No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln. Clee is 2 miles south-east from the railway station at Great Grimsby, on the southern shore of the mouth of the Humber and German Ocean. The parish church of the Holy Trinity and St. Mary the Virgin is an interesting cruciform structure of the Saxon and Early Norman periods, and was consecrated, as appears from an ancient inscription on the western column of the south arcade, by the celebrated Hugh, Bishop of Lincoln, A.D. 1192, in the reign of Richard I.; the stone is small and the inscription, though deeply cut, remains almost perfect, and in its unabbreviated form, reads as follows: "Hæc ecclesia dedicata est in honore sanctæ trinitatis et sanctæ mariæ virginis a domino hygone Lincolniensi episcopo anno ab incarnatione domini. mo. co. xcii. tempore Ricardi regis." The stone has no coeval connection with the nave, and should rather have been inserted in one of the walls of the crossing, which seem to be undoubtedly of St. Hugh's time: the church consists of chancel, nave, north and south transepts, aisles and a western tower containing 3 bells: the arches of the arcades, two on one side and three on the other, are enriched with the cable, nail-head and other Norman mouldings: the tower is of earlier date, circa 1040, and remains almost as when first erected, the parapet being an addition of the fifteenth century; it was once the custom on Trinity Sunday to strew the floor of the church with rushes cut from a piece of ground called "The Bescars": the church was partially restored and reseated in 1859. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £510, with house, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1850 by the Rev. William Price Jones M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, and surrogate. A little to the north of Clee village are three artificial mounds, supposed to have been thrown up by the Romanised Britons, and to be the site of castellated towers, erected for the purpose of repelling the incursions of the Saxons.

Cleethorpes, formerly only a fishing hamlet, has, since the opening of railways connecting Grimsby with all parts of the kingdom and the extension of the line from Great Grimsby to Cleethorpes, made rapid progress, and is now much frequented as a watering-place, and has upwards of sixty machines for the use of bathers: a fine pier, 1,200 feet long, was erected in 1872, at a cost of £10,000: so late as the year 1800 there were no lodging-houses in the place, but there are now (1884) over three hundred. The Dolphin, Cliff and Victoria hotels are situated fronting the sea, with commanding views of the Humber, German Ocean and the opposite Yorkshire coast; they are commodious and comfortable and convenient. The Directors of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway Co. have built a substantial sea-wall, three-quarters of a mile in length and 20 feet in height, which is six feet above the level of high tides; the total width of the wall is 65 feet, of which 40 feet are devoted in the inner side to a carriage drive, divided from an asphalted promenade by a dwarf wall of Portland cement concrete. The church of St. Peter, a chapel of ease to the parish church of Clee, erected in 1866-7, at a cost of £3,300, is a building in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, porch and a tower: the church was built by voluntary contributions, £500 being given by the late Richard Thorold esq. of Weelsby, and £500 by the Master and Fellows of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge: there are sittings for about 500 persons. The Presbyterians, Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel.

A cemetery of 8 acres was formed for Clee parish in 1877, at a cost of £3,700; it is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members and is situated between Clee and Cleethorpes. The Odd Fellows have a hall, built in 1853. Cleethorpes is a coast-guard station, Government having purchased a number of houses near the beacon for the men. Weelsby House is the seat of Alexander William Thorold Grant-Thorold esq. D.L., J.P. The Earl of Yarborough is lord of the manor of Cleethorpes, and the principal landowners are Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, Alexander W. T. Grant-Thorold esq. D.L., J.P. and Edw. Heneage esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. of Hainton Hall. The soil is a rich loam; subsoil, clay. The area of the entire parish of Clee is 3,600 acres of land and 7,168 acres of tidal water; rateable value of Cleethorpes and Thrunscoe, £6,750; Clee and Weelsby, £9,244 10s.; the population in 1881 was 14,460 viz. Clee, with Weelsby township, 11,620, and Cleethorpes, with Thrunscoe township, 2,840.

CLIXBY is a parochial chapelry and township, in Caistor civil parish, in the Northern division of the county, Yarborough hundred, parts of Lindsey, Caistor union and county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles east from North Kelsey station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, 2 north-by-west from Caistor and 7 south-east from Brigg, on the road between those towns. The church, which is evidently the chancel of a former church, with bell-turret at west end, is a small edifice, and has long been in a dilapidated condition; it is now in ruins; the inhabitants attend Caistor and Grasby churches: this church forms part of the prebend of Caistor in Lincoln cathedral; the tithes are paid to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who pay the vicar of Caistor £13 6s. 8d. annually: on the floor of the church is a monumental slab to Robert Blanchard, a priest, with (an imperfect) inscription in Lombardic characters. The register is included in that of Caistor. The living is a chapelry, annexed to Caistor and Holton-le-Moor, joint yearly value £320, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1844 by the Rev. Hippisley Maclean, canon non-residentiary of Lincoln B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Edward Pegge Burnell esq. of Winkbourne, Notts, is lord of the manor and owner of most of the land. The Earl of Yarborough and John West esq. of Melton Ross are also landowners. The soil is partly sandy and light loam; subsoil, chalk and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats &c. The area is returned with Caistor parish; rateable value, £1809; the population in 1881 was 45.

COATES-BY-STOW is a small parish, watered by the river Till, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, West division of Aslacoe wapentake, union and county court district of Gainsborough, rural deanery of Lawress No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 9 miles south-east from Gainsborough and 4 east from Stow Park station on the loop line of the Great Northern railway, which joins the main line at Doncaster and Peterborough. The church of St. Edith is an ancient dilapidated stone fabric, in the Perpendicular style, with a Norman doorway: it has chancel and nave and a tiled gable roof, with 2 bells in a turret: the chancel is divided from the nave by a carved Perpendicular oak screen, above which is a rood-loft of wood: there is a mural marble monument, with a medallion, to Brian Cook, dated 1653; slabs, with brasses, to the Butler family; also an ancient font. The register dates from the year 1661. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Willingham annexed, joint yearly value £402, in the gift of Sir John W. Ramsden bart. M.P. and held since 1877 by the Rev. Canon Charles Nevile M.A. of Sturton. Sir John W. Ramsden bart. M.P. who is lord of the manor, and George Motley esq. are the sole landowners. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are cereals and turnips. The area is 950 acres; rateable value, £904; the population in 1881 was 51.

Blackthorn Hill, a fox cover, is 2 miles south-east.

Parish Clerk, William Bell.

GREAT COATES (or Great Cotes) is a parish and small village, and station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway to New Holland, within the parliamentary borough of Great Grimsby, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Bradley Haverstoe wapentake, Caistor union, Grimsby county court district, rural deanery of Grimsby No. 2, Stow archdeaconry and Lincoln diocese, 157 miles from London and 2 west from Grimsby: it is bounded on the north-east by the Humber, and on the south and south-east by the trout stream called the Freshney. The church of St. Nicholas is a structure of stone, of the Transitional, Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular periods, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower of Perpendicular date, with embattled parapet and eight crocketed pinnacles and containing 4 bells: there are several ancient brasses to the Barnardiston, or Barnardston family, one of which, in the chancel, exhibits a representation of the Resurrection, and below this an inscription to Sir Thomas Barnardiston kt. 1503, and Dame Elizabeth, his wife; in the same slab is another brass, with figures of Sir Thomas, his wife, 8 sons and 7 daughters, and two shields of arms: the church was well restored in 1865 under the direction of Mr. James Fowler of Louth, and the interior refitted: the two old bells were also recast into three by Warner and Sons of London: in the nave, another brass, set in a large slab, commemorates Isabella, daughter of William Kelke, of Barnetby and wife of Roger Barnardiston, about 1420: in the chancel window and in the east window of the north aisle there are shields of the arms of Barnardiston quartering Vavasour, Kelke of Barnethby, Newmarcke and Hawley: there was formerly an altar-tomb to one of the Barnadistons, a brass to Johanna Barnadiston, 1453, and one to John de Barnadiston, rector here, 1406; the slabs which contain the last two still remain. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £645, net yearly value £690, including residence and 76 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir Richard Francis Sutton bart. and held since 1875 by the Rev. William Walsh M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who resides at Grimblethorpe, and also holds the sinecure rectories of Great Tey, Essex, and Thorwell in the Isle of Wight. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here, erected in 1881, at a cost of £400. Great Cotes was for many centuries one of the seats of the baronial house of Barnardiston, of Kedington, in Suffolk; the moats formerly surrounding the residence may still be traced in a field known as the "Hall close," to the south-west of the church. The Barnardistons acquired the Great Cotes estate in the reign of Edward II. by marriage with Margery Wylegby, and it continued in uninterrupted succession in this family till about the middle of the seventeenth century, when it passed into the hands of the ancestors of the present owner, Sir R. F. Sutton bart. Sir Richard Francis Sutton bart. of Benham Park, Newbury, is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is rich alluvial; subsoil, chalk, marl and blue drift clay. The crops are wheat, turnips, barley, oats, beans and seeds; two-fifths of the land is pasture. The area is 2,559A. 1R. 38P. acres of land and 1,699 acres of water; rateable value, £5,581; the population in 1881 was 245.

LITTLE COATES is a parish and small village within the parliamentary borough of Great Grimsby, near the river Freshney, which separates this parish from Great Coates; it is in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Bradley Haverstoe wapentake, Caistor union, Grimsby county court district, rural deanery of Grimsby No. 2, Stow archdeaconry, Lincoln diocese, 3 miles west of Grimsby by road and 1 mile south from Great Coates station, on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway. The church of St. Michael is a small edifice of grey stone, chiefly of the Perpendicular period, and consisting of chancel and nave and a bell-turret containing one bell: the chancel arch is the earliest portion of the church, the rest being Perpendicular; after its erection, another bay was added to the nave, the north wall of which, though upright on the exterior, slopes within from the base to the roof. The register dates from the year 1726. The living is a vicarage tithe rent-charge (vicarial) £112, gross yearly value £124, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1843 by the Rev. Bartholomew Blenkiron M.A. of that college, who resides at 13 Macaulay buildings, Bath. Here are some natural springs, called "blow wells" supplying an abundance of very good water, which, by means of a 12-horse high-pressure steam engine, is forced to the reservoir at Scartho, belonging to the Grimsby Water Works Company, a distance of about one mile. William Angerstein esq. of Weeting Hall, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. There is only one farm, which is in the occupation of Mr. Charles F. Davy. A small portion of the soil is alluvial and the remainder loam; subsoil, drift clay, containing water-worn pebbles. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 1,119 acres; rateable value, £3,347; the population in 1881 was 60.

Parish Clerk, Charles Smith.

NORTH COCKERINGTON (or COCKERINGTON ST. MARY) is a village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludburgh No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles east-north-east from Louth. The river Ludd and the Louth navigation pass near the western boundary of the parish. The church went to decay several centuries ago, and no traces of it now remain: the inhabitants use the priory chapel of St. Mary, in the adjoining parish of Alvingham. The register dates from the year 1646. The living is a perpetual curacy, consolidated with that of Alvingham, joint gross yearly value about £358 with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Benjamin Curtis T.A.K.C.L. Here are Primitive and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. In 1670 Sir Jarvis Scrope founded an almshouse of six tenements for poor persons belonging to these parishes and endowed it with a yearly rent-charge of £20: at the enclosure, about 8 acres of land were allotted for the repairs of the two churches. The Middle Marsh Labourers' Provident Association holds its meetings in the school room here; the objects of this association are to provide medical advice and attendance, sick pay and payment at death of the members; the Rev. Benjamin Curtis, vicar, is secretary and treasurer. Simon Thomas Scrope esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loamy and clayey; and the subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. The area is 1,790 acres; rateable value, £2,249; the population in 1881 was 267.

Parish Clerk, William Graves.

SOUTH COCKERINGTON (or COCKERINGTON ST. LEONARD) is a village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, wold division of Louth Eske hundred, Louth union and county court district, Louth Eske and Ludburgh rural deanery No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles east-by-north from Louth, and about one mile north of Grimoldby station on the Louth and East Coast branch of the Great Northern railway. Monk's Dyke flows through and supplies the moats in this village. The church of St. Leonard is an ancient structure of the Late Perpendicular period, consisting of chancel, nave and a western tower containing 3 bells: the interior contains a beautiful alabaster tomb (date 1623), with the stone effigy of Sir Adrian Scrope, and the figures of his seven sons and two daughters in bas relief: the church was restored and a north porch added, in 1873, at a cost of about £600: there is a very fine carved oak screen: the chancel has a priest's door, now closed and a piscina: there is a stoup in the north wall of the nave: the church is fitted with pitch pine open benches and has seats for 96 persons. The register dates from about the year 1593. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £251, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Henry Greenham: the vicarage house was restored and enlarged in 1874, at a cost of about £700. At the enclosure 97 acres of land were allotted in lieu of tithes. Here is a Free Methodist chapel, erected in 1855. The principal landowners are Simon Thomas Scrope D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, William Allison and Robert Riggall Foster esqrs. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,970 acres; rateable value, £2,413; the population in 1881 was 216.

The church of All Saints, erected in 1861-62, from designs by Mr. Crofts, architect, of Islington, is a cruciform structure of stone, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, transept and a tower, with spire containing 1 bell, it was built at the sole expense of Commodore Peter Cracroft C.B. in memory of his father, the late Col. Amcotts: in the chancel is a stained window to the memory of P. Cracroft, placed there by his brother officers and friends. The register dates from the year 1725. The living is a rectory, now united with the vicarage of Hackthorn, joint yearly value £280 including 170 acres of glebe, in the gift of Edward Weston Cracroft-Amcotts D.L., J.P. of Hackthorn hall, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Charles Henry Fairfax M.A. St. John's College, Oxford, who resides at Hackthorn. Edward Weston Cracroft-Amcotts J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay and loam; the subsoil COLEBY is a village and parish on the Cliff range, extending westward to the river Brant and eastward to the Lincoln and Sleaford Heath road, and intersected by the Roman way Ermine Street, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Kesteven, high division of Boothby Graffoe wapentake, Lincoln union and county court district, Longoboby rural deanery, Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 6 miles south from Lincoln and 2 south from Harmston station. The church of All Saints is a small but handsome stone structure, mostly in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, but partly of the Norman and Transitional periods, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, modern vestry and a tower with embattled parapet and 8 crocketed pinnacles, from within which rises a ribbed and crocketed spire, relieved by two tiers of louvre lights; the tower contains 5 bells, the lower part of the tower is of very early date and may possibly be Saxon; the south doorway, an excellent and characteristic example with two orders of enriched arch mouldings and the font are also Norman, the latter is a cylinder, surrounded by an intersecting arcade and stands on a square base, with a shaft at each angle; the nave was furnished with open oak sittings and other repairs, executed principally at the expense of the late Charles Mainwaring esq.: further improvements, including a restoration of the chancel, were carried out in 1864, under the direction of F. C. Penrose esq. architect, mainly as a memorial to the Rev. T. T. Penrose, for 33 years vicar of the parish, and the circumstances of this restoration are set forth in an inscription on brass from the pen of the late Right Hon. Sir J. T. Coleridge. The register dates from the year 1563. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £205, in the gift of the Provost and fellows of Oriel College, Oxford, who are also the impropriators, and held since 1862 by the Rev. Henry Earle Tweed M.A. late fellow and tutor of that college. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, Lister's charity of £5 yearly, left by Miss Lister of Coleby Hall, is for fuel. Coleby Hall, the property of the representatives of the late Sir Charles Tempest bart. is in the occupation of Major Arthur Cecil Tempest J.P.: the mansion is of ancient date, but has received some modern alterations and additions: the grounds contain two temples (both designed by Sir William Chambers), one in the Doric style, erected to the memory of the great Earl of Chatham; the other on the model of the temple of Romulus and Remus at Rome. The representatives of the late Sir Charles Tempest bart. who are lords of the manor, and J. G. Sewell esq. J.P. and the trustees of B. H. Thorold, are the principal landowners. The soil consists of limestone, with a subsoil of clay on the lowlands. The chief crops are cereals. The area is about 2,673 acres: rateable value, £4,327; the population in 1881 was 435.

COLSTERWORTH is a parish in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Grantham wapentake, union, petty sessional division and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Beltisloe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The village is 102 miles from London, 13 north-west from Stamford, 4 west from the Corby station on the Great Northern railway and 8 south from Grantham, very pleasantly situated on the great North road and the river Witham. The church of St. John the Baptist is an old stone building, in the Early English style, with a portion of Norman, and has chancel, nave and aisles, south porch and a tower containing a clock and 4 bells: it is about to be restored and the old Newton aisle rebuilt. The register dates from the year 1572. The living is a rectory, yearly value £600, including about 418 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1864 by the Rev. John Mirehouse M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. The Wesleyans have a chapel here; there is also a Free Methodist chapel, erected in 1858. Here are almshouses for four widows of this parish, erected in 1861, at the expense of Christopher Turnor esq. There is a piece of land, of about 5 acres, which was left for the use of the church, and is applied towards the church expenses. Christopher Turnor esq. D.L., J.P. of Stoke Rochford, who is lord of the manor, the Earl of Dysart, the rector and Sir H. A. H. Cholmeley bart. D.L., J.P. are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel and clay. The style of farming is the four-course system. The area of the parish is 3,414 acres; rateable value, £4,955; the population in 1881 was—of the parish, 986; township, 607.

Woolsthorpe and Twyford are hamlets contiguous to Colsterworth: the former contains a farmhouse, the birthplace of Sir Isaac Newton, which fact is recorded by a tablet, placed in front of the building, bearing the following inscription:—

"In this manor-house
Sir ISAAC NEWTON, Knt.,
Was born 25th December, 1642."

The birth of this celebrated astronomer took place about three months after the death of his father, who was lord of the manor of Woolsthorpe: Sir Isaac received the rudiments of his education at the Free Grammar school at Grantham, and was admitted at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1660: it was at Woolsthorpe, in 1665, that he is said to have been led, from the fall of an apple, to consider the laws of gravitation. The manor of Woolsthorpe belongs to Christopher Turnor esq. D.L., J.P. and that of Twyford to the Earl of Dysart. The population of Twyford in 1881 was 142, and of Woolsthorpe, 237.

Parish Clerk, Joseph Dawson.

CONINGSBY is a large village and very scattered parish, in the Mid division of the county, soke, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Horncastle, parts of Lindsey, Gartree rural deanery, Lincoln diocese and archdeaconry of Stow, on the Horncastle navigation, about one mile and a half north-east from Tattershall station, 8 miles south from Horncastle and 12 north-west from Boston. The church of St. Michael is an ancient structure of sandstone, in the Early English style, with some Norman remains, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, of four bays, aisles, south porch with parvise and a lofty embattled tower containing clock and 6 bells: a portion of the old carved oak screen remains beneath the chancel arch, and west of the south door is a beautiful little old oak door, delicately ironed, and opening to a staircase leading to the parvise over the porch, which has a large stoup by the doorway; at the east end of the nave is a staircase turret, leading at one time to the rood loft, and the south side of the church bears a dial, with the date 1665; the font is octagonal and of Early English date; in the centre alley of the nave are two large sepulchral slabs, once containing brasses of civilians: the organ was erected by subscription. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, yearly value £406 from 500 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Aveland, and held since 1873 by the Rev. Canon Arthur Wright M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, prebendary of Lincoln J.P. The Wesleyans, Baptists and Primitive Methodists have each chapels here. The charities are as follows:—About £30 from buildings and half an acre of land at Wisbeech, left by George Metham in 1685 for poor widows: about £23 from a cottage and 12 acres of land at Leake, left by Robert Lawrence in 1721; and £2 from the Haltham estate, left by a Mr. Banks; £3 left by the Rev. R. Kelham in 1719 for the schoolmaster and as teacher of the Sunday school; the dividends of £100 £3 per Cent. Reduced Consols, purchased by the bequest of the Rev. Mr. Boawre, who was rector here in 1784: there are also other lands left for repairing and other church purposes, which let for about £17 per annum: there is a mineral spring called the Spa. The village is lighted with gas; there is also in the village a fire engine and shed. Lord Aveland, who is lord of the manor, Henry Rogers esq. Sir Henry James Hawley bart. and Robert Kelham esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is mostly light sand, but some clay; subsoil, sand and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area, including part of Haven Bank and Dogdyke, recently annexed, is 3,407 acres; rateable value, £5,160; the population in 1881 was 1,332.

By a Local Government Board Order, dated December 24th, 1880, a detached portion of the parish, with 129 inhabitants, was transferred to Thornton-le-Fen, and at the same date a detached part, with 66 inhabitants, was transferred to the new parish of Wildmore and a certain portion to Langriville.

CONISHOLME is a parish, in the Northern division of the county, Marsh division of the hundred of Louth Eske, Louth union and county court district, parts of Lindsey, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludburgh No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles north-east from Louth and 4 north-east from Saltfleet. The church of St. Peter, originally a cruciform building of the Early English period, without aisles, is a small building, consisting of chancel, formed from the remains of the central tower, nave and a turret containing 1 bell: it underwent considerable repair in 1853, when a new bell turret was erected; the chancel was thoroughly restored in 1876, at a cost of about £190: in the church is an ancient brass, with effigies of John Langham, 1550, his wife and their fourteen children. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, yearly value £296 with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1870 by the Rev. Leonard Harcourt Earle M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge. Here are places of worship for the Wesleyans, built in 1849, and for Free Methodists, built in 1856. W. and T. F. Allison esqrs. who are lords of the manor, the trustees of the late James Vere esq. and the Merrikin and Willows families are principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, blue clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 1,192 acres; rateable value, £1,829; the population in 1881 was 138.

CORBY is a small, ancient town and a station on the Great Northern railway, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Beltisloe wapentake, Bourn union, Grantham county court district, Beltisloe rural deanery and Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 8 miles north-west from Bourn, 11 south-east from Grantham, 14 north-by-west from Stamford and 97 from London, pleasantly situated on the river Glen, on a Roman road, traces of which are still perceptible, and on the road from Bourn to Colsterworth. The church of St. John the Evangelist is a large and ancient stone structure, in the Decorated style of the fourteenth century, with a chancel, nave, aisles and a square tower containing 4 bells: it was repewed and beautified in 1860: there is a handsome stained window in the chancel, placed there by the present vicar, to the memory of his deceased children. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a discharged vicarage, annexed to the rectory of Irnham, net yearly value £700, with residence, and including 82 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the late W. H. Woodhouse esq. of Irnham, and held since 1851 by the Rev. Charles Farebrother S.C.L. of Trinity College, Oxford. The vicarage house, in the Elizabethan style, is large and substantial. The Read grammar school founded here in 1669 by Charles Read esq. was formerly free for boys of the parish, but was in 1880 reconstituted by the Endowed Schools Commissioners and fees are now payable, the income is £48 15s. 4d. out of which sum the head master, Frederick Emiel Lloyd Dembski B.A. of London University, receives £25, the balance being expended upon repairs: the school is under the supervision of eight governors; A. H. Malim esq. of Grantham, clerk. There is a Catholic church, dedicated to our Lady of Mount Carmel, a handsome building of stone, in the Gothic style which prevailed in the reign of Edward III.: the windows throughout which are stained are by Hardman and Co. of Birmingham: adjoining is a residence for the priest. Corby had at one time a market, but it is obsolete; in the market place an old stone market cross is in good preservation. Here is a Wesleyan Chapel. Here are stone quarries and two flour mills. Three considerable fairs are held, one on the 26th of August for cattle, another on the Monday before the 11th of October, for sheep, cattle and horses; and on the Thursday before Easter: the last is the spring fair, established 1855: the October fair is one of the largest in the county, as many as 12,000 or 13,000 sheep being penned at it; and statutes for servants are held on the 13th of May and the 24th of November. The town is well supplied with excellent water. Near the church is an entrenchment, within which, it is said, a castle formerly stood, of which no traces now remain. Miss Isabel Hervey Woodhouse, who is lady of the manor, Lieut.-Col. C. B. Parker, of Grantham, and Richard Septimus Wilkinson esq. of Birkholme, are principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay and rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area of the parish is 2,726 acres; rateable value, £5,558; the population in 1881 was 783.

CORRINGHAM is a parish, comprising the villages of GREAT and LITTLE CORRINGHAM, with the hamlets of SOMERBY, AISBY, DUNSTALL and YAWTHORPE; it is a polling place in the Northern division of the county, wapentake of Corringham, parts of Lindsey, Gainsborough union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deaneryof Corringham, and archdeaconryof Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles north-east from Gainsborough, one mile and a half south from Blyton station and 154 miles from London, on the road from Gainsborough to Market Rasen. The church of St. Lawrence is an ancient structure of stone, in the Norman, Early English, Late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, supposed to have been rebuilt by Leofric in the time of Edward the Confessor, consisting of chancel with south chancery chapel, nave with clerestory aisles, north transeptal chapel, vestry and a western tower of Norman date, with an embattled parapet and pinnacles, added in 1696: the lower portion of a Perpendicular rood screen remains, and the chancel retains an aumbry, piscina and credence; in the tower is part of another screen; in the transept are two stained windows, one erected by F. Wells esq. and another, inserted as a memorial to him, in 1862: the lancet windows at the east end were filled with stained glass in 1874, as a memorial to Sir Thomas Beckett bart: the transept is now used as a baptistery and contains a font presented in 1849, by George Green, mason of Gainsborough, being a copy of that in Thorpe church, near Spilsby: beneath a bold segmental arch in the chancel is the altar tomb of William-de-la-Gare, archdeacon of Lincoln and prebendary of Corringham, who died at the Prebendary house, Corringham, December 21st, 1290; a brass plate in the chancel commemorates another prebendary of Corringham viz. Henry Clifford, who died February 16th, 1628: there are also some fine monuments to the Beckett family: the roofs were renewed and lowered in 1830: the church has been repaired at the cost of the late Sir Thomas Beckett bart. and was completely restored in 1882-84, at a cost of £12,000, the whole of which was defrayed by Miss Beckett: the restoration embraces a complete new south porch, repairs to windows and tower, new battlements and buttresses: new roofs of oak to the aisles and transept, an oak floor and a new chancel floor of Mansfield stone; the whole has been tastefully decorated with color and gilding, the old screen, a beautiful specimen of modern antique work, was restored in exact accordance with the original: the communion table is magnificently decorated, with reredos of painted panels and gilt scroll work, with paintings of the 'Natirity' or Adoration of the Wise Men, and angels holding shields with the sacred monograms: the prevailing colours are subdued reds and greens after the manner of the best fifteenth century work: it is also elaborately decorated with a handsome cross and candlesticks; the altar cloth is of silk with gold embroidery; there are also side hangings and two standards of candles: the organ front is coloured to match; the transept, nave and chancel roofs are also similarly decorated: some old choir stalls remain in the chancel and have been carefully refixed: the glass of the east window of the chancel has the Crucifixion subject, figures of S. Lawrence and S. Thomas, and is a memorial to the late Sir Thomas Beckett: the west window contains figures of David, Josiah and S. John the Baptist: the north transept forms a side chapel which is used for Early Communion: a most artistic window which of itself is a study has been placed at the end of the Beckett family pew, around which is a beautiful carved oak screen. The architects were G. F. Bodley esq. R.A., and T. Garner, of Gray's Inn, London: there are also stained memorial windows to the members of the Wells family. The register dates from the year 1643. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £300 with residence, in the gift of Major George Charles Uppleby J.P. and held since 1880 by the Rev. William Frederic Westbrooke, of Hertford College, Oxford. The Primitive and Wesleyan Methodists have each a chapel here. The feasts are held on the second Sunday in September, and the races follow on the Monday. The charities are £10 yearly, which are annually distributed in money among the labouring poor. There are several manors in this parish; Lady Bacon, of Thonock Hall, and Miss Beckett, of Somerby Hall, are joint owners. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, clay; the crops are cereals and roots, with a good proportion of pasturage. The area is 6,172 acres; rateable value, £7,342; and the population in 1871 was 790.

The Hamlet of SOMERBY is mentioned in Domesday Book as Sumerdebi. Somerby Hall, the residence of Miss Beckett, is an ancient mansion of brick, said to have been erected about the time of Queen Elizabeth, and was originally a farm-house, which, having received additions at various times, now forms a commodious mansion: it is situated in charming park-like grounds of about 80 acres, which are adorned with numerous groups of stately forest trees: the approach is by a carriage drive half a mile in length from the high road, through a plantation: in the grounds at the west side of the house is the site of an ancient Roman encampment.

THE RUDDOCKS, formerly extra-parochial, is now included in this parish, and is the property of Sir Hickman Beckett Bacon bart.

COVENHAM ST. BARTHOLOMEW is a village and parish adjoining that of Covenham St. Mary, in the Northern division of the county, wapentake of Ludborough, parts of Lindsey, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludburgh No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles north-by-east from Louth and 3½ south-east from Ludburgh station. The Louth Navigation forms the eastern boundary of the parish. The church of St. Bartholomew, originally cruciform, is a small edifice of the Early English period, consisting of 3 bells: the font, of octagonal form, is curiously sculptured with figures of the Virgin and Child and Joseph, the Twelve Apostles and the characteristic emblems: in the chancel is an ancient monumental slab, containing an effigy in brass of John Skipwith knt. and bearing date 15th July, 1415: five windows were inserted in 1854-5: at the enclosure 26 acres were allotted as church land, the rent of which is applied towards repairing the church, as far as necessary, and the surplus is given to the poor: in 1863 the church was repaired and re-seated from plans supplied by Messrs. Rogers and Marsden, architects. The register dates from the year 1566. The living is a rectory, of the yearly value of £250, including about 64 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Benson, of Utterby, and the trustees of the late Rev. Charles Dudding Holland, the latter of whom have two presentations out of three, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Robert Louis Cloquet. A vicarage was built in 1877 by the former rector (the Rev. Robert Haynes Cave M.A.), at a cost of £700. Here are places of worship for Wesleyan, Primitive and Free Methodists. The Primitive Methodist chapel was built 1853. Thomas Young esq. who is lord of the manor, and the trustees of the late Mr. John Hay and the mortgagees of the late Mr. Thomas Motley are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,340 acres; rateable value, £1,961; the population in 1881 was 278.

COVENHAM ST. MARY is a pleasant village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Ludborough wapentake and petty sessional division, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludburgh No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles north-north-east from Louth and 3½ south-east from the Ludborough station. The Louth Navigation runs through the parish. The church (St. Mary), which is an interesting edifice, displays characteristics of the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave and tower at the western end, with 3 bells: in the east end is a Flamboyant window, which, though now blocked up, must have been one of the most beautiful examples of flowing tracery in this part of the country: there is a fine lychnoscope also built up, and in the north wall of the chancel is a good sepulchral recess: a beautiful octagonal font, the sculpture and mouldings of which are in good preservation, stands near the north door, and is a fine specimen of the Perpendicular period; the sides of the bowl are ornamented with shields, five of which bear emblems of the Crucifixion, and the other three have crosses: this church in its original beauty, with its high-pitched roof, frescoed walls and traceried windows, must have been a perfect gem of its kind: the churchyard is well kept, and in it are two interesting tombs, one of which bears the following inscription:—"In piam memoriam Patris dilecti Johannis England Rudd, qui obiit anno salutis MDCCCLXV ætatis suæ LXXVII., Johannes England Rudd. Ecclesiæ Stæ Mariæ apud Covenham, Rector Hunc lapidem ponendum curavit. 'Quando Christus, vita nostra, patefietus fuerit tum et vos patefietis cum eo gloriosi.'" Col. iii. v. 6.: a tomb has also lately been erected at the east end of this church to the memory of the late Miss Mary Courthope Rudd: it consists of a large stone landing, upon which lies the chamfered stone which bears the following legend:—"In memoriam, Sororis fidissimæ, Mariæ Courthope Rudd, mœrens frater posuit, Nata vij. Kal. Aug. MDCCCXXI. Obiit prid. Kal. Aprs. MDCCCLXXXIII. DOMINOS dedit, DOMINUS abstulit: sit nomen DOMINI benedictum," Job 1, v. 21.: and it is surmounted by a cope stone, having on its upper surface an elongated cross cut in relief, at the junction of the arms of which is carved the sacred monogram: the work has been done in Ringby stone (which is a close, hard, Yorkshire sandstone), and the whole is enclosed with a very tasteful iron palisade in Gothic pattern: this churchyard was planted with choice and beautiful evergreens, by the present rector, in the year 1865, as a tribute of affection to his father. The register dates from the year 1597, and is studded here and there with notices of the clergy who have been connected with the parish. The living is a discharged rectory, valued in K.B. at £10, of the net yearly value of £150, including about 21 acres of glebe land, with house, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1848 by the Rev. John England Rudd B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The rectory house has been recently (1884) enlarged. The benefice was endowed in with £200 Royal bounty, of which £115 was expended in redeeming the glebe from land tax. At the enclosure 17 acres of land were allotted for the church. By an order of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, in the year 1868, the church lands so allotted were sold, and the proceeds arising therefrom invested in the name of the official trustees of charitable funds in trust for the said charity. The body of trustees have since been reconstituted, and a new scheme established for the future regulation of the charity: the trustees consist of the rector of Covenham St. Mary; the rector's churchwarden for the time being; the Rev. James Grenville Smyth M.A. Trinity College, Cambridge, rural dean and vicar of North and South Elkington; the Rev. Alexander Johnson, vicar of Fulstow and Mr. Thomas William Kent, farmer, of Covenham St. Mary. From the Domesday Book it is found that the lands belonging to the see of Lincoln, in Stow, consisted of four carucates of arable land and other possessions, to which were attached as much land, both in Brampton and Covenham. The trustees of the late William Thomas Kime esq. are lords of the manor, and own a great portion of the land, and Mrs. Benson of Utterby house, Mr. G. Motley, Mrs. Betsey Robinson and the trustees of the late Mr. T. Motley are also landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 950 acres; rateable value, £1,285, the population in 1881 was 128.

COWBIT is a small village and parish, with a station on the Spalding and March railway, in the southern division of the County, Elloe wapentake, parts of Holland, Spalding union and county court district, rural deanery of South Holland No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles south from Spalding and 96 from London, on the east side of the Deeping Fen. The church of St. Mary, a building of stone and brick, rebuilt in 1486, by Prior de Maulton of Spalding, is in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel and nave and a square tower containing 3 bells: the tower, which is its best feature, has a vaulted roof to the ground storey, and a good doorway: the church has lately been restored. The register dates from the year 1700. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £625, arising from 300 acres, with residence, in the gift of feoffees, and held since 1862 by the Rev. John Thomas Dove M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel, erected about 1842, rebuilt 1861. The charities for distribution amount to £40 yearly, which sum is distributed in cash to the village poor upon St. Thomas' day. In the garden of a house, upon the road to Peakhill, is a very ancient stone named after St. Guthlac; it marks the boundary of the possessions of Crowland Abbey as is stated by the monkish Latin hexameter inscribed upon it. The Wash, on the west side of the village, extends 20 miles from north to south, and is nearly a mile broad: it is formed by winter floods from the navigable river Welland, which flows through it; it is, in some years, as much as eight months under water. Charles Foster Bonner esq. is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are the Rev. J. T. Dove M.A. Mrs. Brady, Mrs. Laming and Messrs. D. Dalton and Benjamin Atkin. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans, roots, potatoes and pasturage. The parish contains 4,590 acres of land, including its fen allotments, and the hamlet of PEAKHILL, one mile farther south; rateable value, £3,137; the population of the parish in 1881 was 637.

CRANWELL is a parish in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven, Sleaford union, county court district and petty sessional division, rural deanery of Ashwardhurn-with-Lafford No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles north-west from Sleaford, near the high road to Lincoln. The church of St. Andrew is a small but ancient structure, in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a small western turret containing 1 bell: the font is Early English, having an octangular bowl, stem and base: there are sittings in church for about 110: the silver chalice dates from the time of Elizabeth and the silver paten is dated 1710. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value £300 with residence, in the gift of trustees and held since 1870, by the Rev. John Thorold M.A. late scholar and exhibitioner of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and surrogate for the diocese of Lincoln. Sir W. and Dame A. Thorold, in the year 1682, left £8 2s. yearly for distribution to the poor, and the parish receives £20 yearly, which the governors of Thorold's charity may apply in aid of any schools in Cranwell, conducted as a public elementary school; this has been done for the last five years, for educating poor children; and £15 a year for apprenticing poor boys, under the will of Lady Margaret Thorold. Here is a spring issuing from the cleft of a rock. Sir John Thorold bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor, and owns all the land, except one farm and the glebe belonging to St. John's College, Cambridge. The soil is part light and sandy and part clay; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 2,522 acres; rateable value, £2,302, the population in 1881 was 206.

CREETON with COUNTHORPE.

CREETON is a small village, township, and parish, pleasantly situated on the river Glen, in the Southern division of the county, Beltisloe wapentake, parts of Kesteven, Bourn union and county court district, Beltisloe rural deanery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, about 2 miles north from Little Bytham station, 10 north from Stamford and about 5 west from Bourn. The church of St. Peter, standing on an eminence, is a small and plain building of stone, in the late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south transept and a western tower with octagonal broach spire containing 2 bells: the transept appears to have been originally a chantry chapel, and retains a piscina: the west window is stained: the tower is of three stages, with a two-light window in each face of the belfry, and immediately above these, at the base of the spire, as many dormers: near the apex is a single tier of louvre lights: the church was newly-roofed, repewed and thoroughly restored, at a cost of £400, by the rector, assisted by contributions from the proprietors and parishioners: in the north wall, then rebuilt, the pillars and arcade of a formerly existing aisle were discovered, the materials of which had been used in the construction of the wall, the surface of which, when cleared of whitewash, disclosed traces of painting, consisting of grotesque figures: in the transept is a low side window: the font is large, but plain, in the churchyard are about 20 ancient coffin-shaped tombstones bearing sculptured crosses of different designs, and supposed to indicate the graves of monks of the Cistercian Abbey of De Vaudey in the adjoining village of Edenham: there are also here portions of the shaft of a Norman cross, elaborately carved on all four sides, and a stone of Runic character, both of which had been built into the walls of the church. The register dates from the year 1692. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £161, including 32 acres of glebe, with house, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Lindsey Neville Knox M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. Many of the fields surrounding the village contain remains which show that Creeton was at one time a much larger and more important place. Richard Hornsby esq. of Grantham, is lord of the manor; but the principal part of the land belongs to the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby and Charles T. S. Birch-Reynardson esq. D.L. of Holywell Hall. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay, sandstone and gravel. The chief crops are cereals. There are stone quarries in this parish. The area is 1,003 acres; rateable value, £2,677, the population in 1881 was 124 in the parish, and 51 in the township.

Counthorpe, formerly a hamlet to Castle Bytham, was, by Order in Council, annexed in 1860, to the parish of Creeton: it is the property of C. T. S. Birch-Reynardson esq. D.L. of Holywell Hall. Rateable value, £3,278; the population in 1881 was 73. Creeton and Counthorpe are included in Little Bytham United School Board District formed in 1874.

CROFT is a pleasant village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles north from Wainfleet, 10 east-by-south from Spilsby, 2½ south from Burgh and 126¼ from London. The Croft Bank station on the Firsby and Skegness branch of the Great Northern railway is 1½ miles south-east and Cow Bank station 2½ miles north-east from the village. The church of All Saints is a spacious building of freestone, in the Decorated and late Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, porch and a western embattled tower, restored in 1857, in which are 6 bells: the easternmost bays of the aisles are enclosed by fine Perpendicular screens, and form chapels, each of which retains a piscina; a similar screen separates the nave and chancel: the canopied pulpit and prayer desk are finely carved examples of Jacobean work; the former is dated 1615, and bears the name of William Worship D.D. incumbent 1599-1625; the nave door, 1633, is in much the same style: the font is Perpendicular, with an octangular bowl; the brass eagle lectern, is apparently of the fifteenth century, and in 1626 there is a record shewing that 2s. 6d. a year was charged for furbishing it: the church was repaired in 1838: it contains an organ, presented by Lord Monson; in a slab in the pavement of the nave is a very ancient and curious brass, with the demi-effigy of a knight c. 1300; and portions of a border legend in Norman French: at the west end is a slab with floriated cross and labelled stem; two other slabs have been dispoiled of their brasses; on the south side of the chancel arch is a monument to William Bond, father of Dr. Nicholas Bond, born here c. 1540, president of Magdalen College, Oxford, 1590-1608: on the north wall of the chancel are two monuments in alabaster, enriched with colour and gilding, the easternmost is inscribed to Sir Valentine Brown kt. and Elizabeth (Monson) his wife, sixteenth century, and has kneeling effigies of both; within a semi-circular recess, and on the panels of the base, smaller kneeling effigies of 8 sons and 7 daughters; over the whole is an achievement of arms: the other, and quite similar monument, is that of John Browne (second son of Sir Valentine), his first wife Cicely (Kirkman), 1614, and second wife Frances (Herbert): the west end of the church was restored in 1881 and reseated with oak benches. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £600, with residence, in the gift of Lord Monson, and held since 1865 by the Rev. the Hon. Evelyn John Monson M.A. of Merton College, Oxford, chaplain to Lord Monson. There is a chapel for Wesleyans. The poor have the interest of £56. left by S. Williams and R. Chantry, and some smaller donations. John Drope left in 1585 two cottages and about three acres of land vested in the minister and churchwardens of Croft, for the use of two poor families who are elected for life. Thomas Tyrwhitt Drake esq. of Shardeloes, Bucks, who is lord of the manor, Lord Monson P.C., D.L., J.P. and W. Everington esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is a rich loam, the marsh land within the sea bank is silty; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and beans, with a great portion of excellent pasture land. The parish contains 5,473 acres of land and 680 of water; rateable value, £8,525; the population in 1881 was 752.

CROWLAND (or Croyland) is a parish on the Cambridgeshire and Northamptonshire borders of the county, near the navigable river Welland, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Holland, Elloe wapentake, Peterborough union, Spalding county court district, rural deanery of South Holland No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles east from St. James Deeping and Peakirk stations on the Boston and Lincoln branch railway, and 4 west from Postland station on the March and Spalding branch of the Great Northern and Great Eastern Joint railway, 5 north from Eye and Thorney stations on the Peterborough and Wisbech branch of the Midland railway, 86 from London by rail viâ Peterborough, and 104 viâ Postland, 10 south from Spalding, and 10 north from Peterborough by road, situated on the east side of Deeping Fen. The town consists principally of four main streets: it is lighted with gas and paved. The church of SS. Bartholomew and Guthlac, formed out of a part of the celebrated abbey, consists of chancel, nave, and tower, with 5 bells and clock: it has a low spire: in 1843 an organ and gallery were erected. The Abbey, which was founded in 716 for Benedictine monks, is still a magnificent ruin; part of the ancient west front of the ruins has been taken down, under the superintendence of the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A. and re-erected after its original form; a portion of what appears to have been the nave is left; the west front of this portion has numerous stone carvings and monuments of the Apostles, saints, knights and ecclesiastics, founders and rebuilders, 29 in number; the grandeur of the original building can be deduced from the loftiness of this portion of the structure and the beauty of its remains: in 1688 the roof of nave fell in, since which the north aisle has been used as the church. The silver assay marks on chalice and paten give the date 1684. The register dates from the year 1639. The living is a rectory, yearly value £200, in the alternate gift of the Earl of Normanton and the present rector, the Rev. Thomas Henry Le Boeuf. The Primitive Methodists, built in 1862, Wesleyans, built in 1831, and United Methodists Free Church have chapels here; and the poor have several benefactions. There are charities amounting to £132 yearly, derived from land, for distribution to the poor on the 21st of December. A tablet is erected in east end of the church in memory of the late Mr. James Brown, who died October 25th 1684, and left eleven acres of land to the poor of Crowland, the rent to be distributed yearly upon St. James' day, now altered to St. Thomas' day. A fair is held on September 4th. There are breweries, brickfields, and corn mills; and the Stamford, Spalding, and Boston Banking Company have a branch at this town. There is a Police Station and offices, with dwelling attached. Here is a curious piece of antiquity, known as the Triangular Bridge, formed of three segments of a circle meeting at a point in the centre; it is situate near the centre of the town, and has a full-length stone statue representing the Saviour the King of Glory, which formerly stood on the apex of the west front. The Wash, formed by the Welland overflowing its banks, extends from Peakirk to Spalding; it varies from 50 yards to a mile in width, the widest part being near to Cowbit. There are many dykes; the land in this parish is well drained, and produces good crops. The Foresters Hall, situated in Hall street, was built in 1877, at a cost of £600: it contains large hall, anterooms and offices, capable of seating 550 persons and lighted with gas. The Earl of Normanton, who is lord of the manor, the Rector, the Whitsed family, William James Thompson and Mrs. Jackson are the principal landowners. The soil varies from a loamy turf to strong heavy clay; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, potatoes and oats. The area is 13,048 acres; rateable value, £25,144 the population in 1871 was 3,165; and in 1881 2,928; the town, 2,081; Postland, 393; Engine, 235; Deeping Common, 219; parish, 2,929.

ENGINE is a hamlet, 1 mile south, on the Cambridgeshire border. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel, built in 1868.

Parish Clerk & Sexton, John Hill.

CROWLE is a parish and township, small market town, and station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, pleasantly situated in the isle of Axholme, partly in Yorkshire, in the Northern division of the county, west division of the wapentake of Manley, union and county court district of Thorne, parts of Lindsey, rural deanery of Axholme, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, near the Staniforth and Keadby canal, 6 miles north-west from Epworth, 12 south from Goole, 16 north-east from Doncaster, 17 north-by-west from Gainsborough and 165 from London. The town adopted the local government act in 1865; the Board consists of 9 members. The town is lighted with gas and paved. The church of St. Oswald is a building of stone the earliest portions being Early English, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, north aisle, porch, and a tower containing 3 bells: historic evidences prove the early existence here of a church dedicated to St. Oswald, the christian King of Northumbria, slain 5th August, 642, although probably only a wooden structure: the shaft of a stone runic cross was used by the Norman masons as a lintel for the west-door, where it still remains, it tapers a little, and has on one side an interlaced ornament, and upon the other two rough figures, underneath being a man on horseback: in 1868 the Rev. J. F. Fowler discovered upon this stone the remains of an inscription: the south wall, of ashlar in small cubes, remains, with the inner jamb of one of the narrow Norman windows: the south door is a rich one, of three orders, and some stones of another door with zigzag moulding were found used in the walling on the north side; the chancel, rebuilt about 1850, is said to be upon the old foundation, and inclines towards the north; the porch of brick and stone was added in 1628, and there is a carved oak almsbox dated 1683: the tenor bell is tolled according to custom on weekdays, at 6 a.m. at noon, and at 6 p.m: several attempts at restoration were made at certain periods; the recent restoration in 1876, which included the re-roofing of the church, re-seating the interior, and other works, was completed under the direction of Mr. A. S. Ellis, architect of Westminster. The register, including Eastoft, dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value, from 500 acres of glebe, £800, with residence, and in the gift of the present rector, and held since 1868 by the Rev. Frederick William White B.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge, who is non-resident; the Rev. Charles Frederick Brotherton M.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham, is curate in charge. The Catholic church, dedicated to the Blessed Sacrament and St. Norbert, was erected in 1872: the ecclesiastical establishment consists of the church, which is a fine brick edifice, in the Early English style, from the designs of Mr. A. M. Hadfield, architect of Sheffield, and also of a Monastery of Præmonstratensians, or White Canons, following the rule of their founder, St. Norbert; the style of the Monastery is in keeping with that of the church; attached is a school, the area covered by these buildings is about two acres. The Very Rev. Martin Geudens C.R.P. is superior. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The cemetery, opened in 1862, covers about two acres of ground, and has two mortuary chapels; it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members. The Town Hall was erected in 1870 by a limited company, with a capital of £1,450, raised in £5 shares. Here is an Assembly room. The market for stock is held every Monday fortnight during the months of March, April and May: there are also three annual fairs for cattle, held on the last Monday in May, and on the 23rd of November; and a statute for the hiring of farm labourers and domestic servants is held on the 11th of November. A weekly market is held every Friday. The principal landowners are Earl Manvers, who is lord of the manor, Thomas Harsley Carnochan esq. S. C. Brunyee esq. T. C. Scholey esq. and the Rev. Frederick William White B.A. The soil is warp and silt; subsoil, peat and sand. The chief crops are wheat, oats, flax, beans and fluke potatoes. The area is 7,350 acres, inclusive of Eastoft; the population of the township in 1881 was 2,826, of which 28 were in Yorkshire: the population of the parish and Local Board district in 1881 was 3,353, which includes Eastoft, a township, which will be found under a separate heading.

EALAND is a hamlet 1 mile south-east.

CROXBY is a very small village and parish, situated on the Wolds, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, south division of Walshcroft wapentake, union and county court district of Caistor, rural deanery of Walshcroft, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 5½ miles south-east from Caistor, 8 west from North Thoresby station, on the East Lincolnshire railway, and 9 north-east from Market Rasen station, on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, and 10 south-west from Great Grimsby. The church of All Saints is a small building of stone, dating from about 1140, consisting of chancel, nave, and turret containing 1 bell: the font is very ancient, and bears Norman ornaments in good preservation. The register dates only from the year 1812. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £313, gross yearly value £329, with 12 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Arthur Mountjoy Platt LL.M. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Earl of Yarborough D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is light and chalky; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area of the parish is 1,628 acres; rateable value, £1,705; the population in 1881 was 127.

CROXTON is a small parish, with a considerable quantity of woodland, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, east division of Yarborough wapentake, Glanford Brigg union, Brigg county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 7 miles north-east from Brigg, 1½ north-west from Brocklesby station on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway and 165 from London. The church of St. John the Evangelist, is a stone building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave, and a tower containing 1 bell and was restored about 1880, at a cost of £900: the doorway on the south side was then built up, and a new porch erected on the north side. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £460, net £400, including 6 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1869 by the Rev. Watson King M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who is non-resident: the Rev. Richard Kyrke M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford, is curate in charge. Here is a lofty hill, called, from a large entrenchment on its summit, "Yarborough Camp." Roman coins have been found on the spot. The Earl of Yarborough D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is wold land; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,497 acres; rateable value, £3,370; the population in 1881 was 120.

DALBY is a small parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union and county court district, rural deanery of Hill No. 2, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3½ miles north from Spilsby railway station. The church, name unknown, situate in the park, and surrounded by fine trees, is a small but ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, and was rebuilt in 1862 on the site of the old church: it consists of chancel, nave, south porch, and a western turret containing 1 bell: in the church are memorials to the Rev. William Tyler, 26 years rector, 1808; Rev. Titus Bourn, 1734; John Bourn, gent. 1788, and others of this family, 1743-1816; there is also a marble monument with kneeling effigies and arms, erected by Sir Philip Llanden kt. and William Llanden esq. to their father and mother, William Llanden esq. and Alice his wife, who died in 1621: another marble monument with kneeling female effigies is inscribed to July (Juliana Maynwaring), wife of Sir Philip Llanden kt. 1617: there are sittings for 100 persons. The register dates from the year 1721. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £76, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1842 by the Rev. Thomas Owston M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge, who is also rector of Sutterby, and resides at Partney. The charities, amounting to £7 yearly, derived from the poor's land, are distributed in money at Christmas. Dalby Hall, the seat of Major John Wilby Preston M.A. J.P. is a handsome brick building, situated in a well-wooded park. The trustees of Beverley Minster, who are lords of the manor, and Major John Wilby Preston, are the principal landowners. The soil is various; there is chalk on the top of the hill, upon a green sand formation. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area of the parish is 1,312 acres; rateable value, £1,796; the population in 1881 was 152.

DEXTHORPE, ecclesiastically united with Wells, but for civil purposes a hamlet in this parish, half a mile north-by-east, contains but one farm-house and a few cottages. The trustees of Beverley Minster own nearly the whole of the land.

DEEPING ST. JAMES (or EAST DEEPING) is a parish and large scattered village, with a station on the Great Northern loop line of railway, about two miles east from the village, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Ness wapentake, Bourn union and county court district, Ness rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, forming an eastern suburb of Market Deeping, from which it extends into the Fen 3 miles north-east. The leading street is bounded on the western side by the navigable river Welland, over which is an ancient stone bridge of three arches, connecting this county with Northants: it is 8 miles east-by-north from Stamford, 8 south-east from Bourn, 8 north from Peterborough, 11 south-west from Spalding, and 89 from London by road and 83 by rail. The church of St. James is a magnificent structure of stone, in the Norman, Early English, Decorated, and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of seven bays, with triforium, south aisle, south porch, and a noble western tower with lofty spire, erected in 1717, in a modernised Gothic style, and containing 5 bells; both aisles retain piscinæ, and there are two lockers: the font is cylindrical, and is enriched with an interesting Norman arcading: the south porch, of Early English date, is very fine: a coffin slab lies outside the south wall of the nave: the transepts have been destroyed, and the openings into them built up. The register dates from the year 1674. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value gives £220, including 75 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir Thomas Whichcote bart. and held since 1841 by the Rev. John George M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist and Particular Baptist chapels. Robert Tygh, in the year 1553, and subsequently other benefactors, left land and tenements, which now produce about £230 yearly, for the repairs of highways, byeways, bridgeways and causeways, and for other charitable purposes. Deeping Waterton Hall, the residence of Edmund Waterton esq. J.P. D.L., F.S.A., is situated in a park adorned with some fine old trees. Mr. Waterton is the head and representative in the male line of one of the oldest families in the county. The Catholic chapel is a plain building of stone and brick, with stained windows, and is supported by Edmund Waterton esq.; services are held every Sunday and Holiday, by the Premonstratensian Canons of Spalding: the chapel contains a fine old font of the time of Edward II. and the crucifix on the rood beam came from an old church in Belgium, where it was first erected in 1339. The old house on the north side of the church, in the occupation of Edmund Pawlett esq. is built on the site of a Benedictine priory. The manorial rights of East and West Deeping have been sold, for particulars of which see Market Deeping. Sir Thomas Whichcote bart. D.L. of Aswarby Hall, Falkingham, William Thompson esq. Edmund Pawlett esq. Mr. Thomas Chesterfield and Mr. William Jackson, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are market garden produce and wheat. The area is 6,470 acres; rateable value, £9,649; the population in 1881 was 1,648.

DEEPING ST. NICHOLAS (or LITTLEWORTH) is an extensive village, and ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1846, and divided into north, middle and east townships, and has a station on the Great Northern loop line of railway, situate in the Fen, on the high road from Market Deeping to Spalding in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Ness and Elloe wapentake and petty sessional division, Spalding union, Bourn county court district, rural deanery of South Holland No. 1, Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 5 miles south-west from Spalding, about 8 north-east from Market Deeping, 14 north-east from Peterborough, 15 north-east from Stamford, and 87 from London by rail. The church of St. Nicholas, erected in 1845, from designs by the late Mr. Kirk, of Sleaford (William and Nicholas Clarke Stevenson having bequeathed funds for erecting and endowing it), is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle and a tower, with elegant and well-proportioned spire, containing 1 bell. The register dates from the year 1846. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £140, with good residence, in the gift of Col. C. G. Bellairs, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Henry Hemstock M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1867, the site for which was given by the late Mr. James Haynes, of West Deeping Fen; there is also a Wesleyan chapel at Tongue End. The principal landowners are Lord Carrington, of Wycombe Abbey, Bucks.; the Earl of Lindsey D.L. J.P. the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, Edmund Pawlett esq. of Deeping St. James, R. Everard and George Hill esqrs. and others. The soil is loam: subsoil, clay and silt. The chief crops are rape seed, wheat, barley, oats, peas and beans. The population in 1881 was 1,364; the area is 14,550 acres, being nearly the whole of Deeping Fen, which is drained by two powerful engines of 80 and 60 horse power, and is now in a high state of cultivation.

WEST DEEPING (or Deeping West) is a compact and well-built village, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Ness wapentake, Stamford union and county court district, Ness rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln: it is pleasantly situated a little south of the Stamford road, 1 mile from the Great Northern railway station at Tallington, 2 miles south west from Market Deeping and about 5 east from Stamford, on the banks of the Welland, which is here crossed by a bridge of one arch. The church of St. Michael is an ancient structure of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with spire and pinnacles containing 5 bells: the font is a finely executed work in the Early English style: in 1876 the chancel was restored, at the cost of the rector, and the nave, tower and spire were substantially repaired, the whole at a total cost of £2,800, under the direction of Mr. W. Butterfield, architect; an ancient stone screen divides the nave and chancel, the latter is elaborately decorated in colour by Mr. Townsend, and has a gilt and coloured reredos, enriched with mosaics; all the chancel windows are stained. The register dates from the year 1657. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £400, including 200 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Gilbert Vyvyan Heathcote, rural dean of Ness. A cemetery of a quarter of an acre was formed in 1883, at a cost of about £300; and is under the control of a Burial Board of 3 members. The charities amount to about £34 a year, left in house property and land, and divided between the school and the poor. The manorial rights have been sold, for particulars see Market Deeping. The Earl of Egmont, Boughton Addy and M. J. Tryon esqrs. and others, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are cereals. The area is 1,237 acres; rateable value, £2,590; the population in 1881 was 285.

DEMBLEBY is a parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Aveland wapentake, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Aveland No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3½ miles south-west from Aswarby station, 4 miles north-west from Falkingham and 9½ north-east from Grantham. The church of St. Lucy rebuilt on a new site given by the late T. R. Buckworth esq. of Cockley Cley Hall, and partly with the materials of the old church, and consecrated January, 1868, is an edifice in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry and a bell gable with 2 bells; of the old Norman and Early English church, all that now remains is the chancel arch; a gracefully ornamented Norman stoup, on a shaft, is used as a font. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a discharged rectory, tithe rent-charge £234, gross yearly value £254, including 16½ acres of glebe, with residence, erected 1863-64, in the gift of the trustees of the late T. R. Buckworth esq. and held since 1876 by the Rev. William Sadler, who is diocesan inspector of schools. In the parish is a quarry of limestone. The trustees of the late T. R. Buckworth esq. of Cockley Cley, Swaffham, who are lords of the manor, and John Archer Houblon esq. of Hallingbury, Bishop's Stortford, are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,071 acres; the population in 1882 was 72.

Parish Clerk, Edward Stanton.

DENTON is a parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Spittlegate petty sessional division, Grantham soke, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Grantham, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles south-west from Grantham and near the Grantham and Nottingham canal. The village is pleasantly situated in the vicinity of a small rivulet, on the borders of Leicestershire. The church of St. Andrew is a structure of stone, chiefly of the Perpendicular period, with some portion of Early Decorated work, and consists of chancel, with chantry chapel, nave, aisles and a fine embattled tower with pinnacles, and containing 5 bells: the windows of the north aisle retain some fragments of ancient glass, and some of the old bench ends remain; in the chancel are three sedilia and a piscina; an arcade of two arches opens into the chantry; there are several monuments to the Blyth, Welby and Williams families, including at the west end of the south aisle, a fine monument to John Blyth of Denton, 1602, his wife Margaret (Thorold) and six children; the altar-like base of the tomb supports a recumbent effigy of John Blyth, in the costume of the period, and below are smaller kneeling effigies of the others; nearly opposite is a remarkable monument to Richard Welby 1713, on the north side of the chancel is a grey slab formerly containing the canopied figure of an ecclesiastic, in brass. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £788, gross yearly value £895 including 59 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and held since 1840 by the Rev. George Thomas Potchett B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. A rectory house was built in 1841. Denton manor, the seat of Sir William Earle Welby-Gregory bart. D.L., J.P. in a fine mansion of stone, standing on a slight elevation, in a finely wooded park of 370 acres: the manor house which is situated about 200 yards to the south-west of the old hall (now pulled down) was built in 1879-83 from designs of A. W. Blomfield esq. M.A. and is in the Tudor style, the internal decorations being Jacobean: there are some good family portraits in the house and numerous works of art, many of the latter inherited under the will of the late Gregory Gregory, of Harlaxton manor: the gardens extend over 8 acres, and there is a spring flowing into the fish ponds known as "St. Christopher's Well," which is said to possess medicinal qualities: the rivulet below the park supplies a reservoir of 28 acres, belonging to the Grantham canal: in the park is an almshouse for six poor people, founded in 1653 by William Welby esq. who endowed it with a yearly rent-charge of £18 12s. out of the Denton estate. William Welby esq. who died in 1790, requested the succeeding lords of Denton to pay £12 yearly for the schooling of poor children. Rebecca Welby, in the year 1714, left for the six almspeople the interest of £10. Six cottages in the village are occupied by paupers: the donor is unknown. The poor parishioners have a cottage and 13A. 2R. of land at Harlaxton, purchased with £43 poor's money in 1696, and now worth £15 yearly. In the year 1727 a Roman tesselated pavement was found in Denton field, 30 feet square, and forming a pattern consisting of squares and lozenges, ornamented with chequer work: a drawing was made of this by the late Mr. Fowler, who also discovered part of another pavement, 8 feet square, and of a richer pattern: both of these were engraved in his "Collection of Roman Pavements." Here are quarries of good ironstone. Sir William Earle Welby-Gregory bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is various; subsoil, stony. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,600 acres; rateable value, £4,214; the population in 1881 was 547.

DIGBY is a parish with a station on the Great Northern and Great Eastern joint railway, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, rural deanery of Aswardhurn-with-Lafford No. 1, 9 miles west from Tattershall and 6 north-by-east from Sleaford. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is a building of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles; it has chancel, nave, aisles and porch, with a lofty spire rising from an embattled tower, in which are 3 bells, one of which is modern, the others bear the dates of 1656 and 1672: the font is of the Perpendicular period: in the south walls of the chancel are two piscinæ and a small recessed Early English sedile: the oldest feature is a late Norman doorway in the south aisle constituting the principal entrance: this is ornamented with reticulated work and the nail head, and was thought good enough to be incorporated into the Early English church, forming the basis of the present structure, in the front of this a modern porch has been built: the aisle for the most part is Early English: the north aisle is also Early English: the nave is surmounted by a Perpendicular clerestory, having six lights arranged in couples on each side, and an embattled parapet: the chancel walls are Early English: the lower stage of the tower is Early English, having a lancet in its western wall; above it is a decorated stage constituting the belfry: this is surmounted by a coarse but effective Perpendicular parapet and a well-proportioned spire: within the church both arcades, each of three bays, are excellent but of different periods, the northern one is Early English, the westernmost bay of the aisle is of the Decorated period and serves as a vestry: there was once a chapel on the east of both aisles as evidenced by an aumbry towards the east end of the north aisle wall: the chancel arch is Early English; in this arch is a Perpendicular oak screen in fair condition: the chalice is silver, with a paten dated 1569. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a discharged vicarage, united with the rectory of Bloxholme in 1717, joint yearly value £490, in the gift of Miss Constance Nisbet-Hamilton, and held since 1873 by the Rev. Charles Barnes M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Oxford, who resides at Bloxholme. Here is a Wesleyan chapel built in 1879. In 1761 Henry Young left nine acres of land, at Frieston, to this parish, the rents to be dispensed as follows: 20s. for four poor widows annually, and a house to live in, and the remainder for the education of 8 poor children. In 1802 the trustees received £146 9s. 6d. for part of the land taken for the Hobhole Drain, which remains at interest, and the remainder of the land is let for £17 10s. yearly; out of this income the schoolmaster is paid £20 16s. 9d. yearly for teaching 10 free scholars. There is an ancient cross, consisting of stone base, shaft and Latin cross and a stream called "Digby Beck" passes through the village. The Earl of Harrowby is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is a red loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley, turnips and seeds. The area is 2,382 acres; rateable value, £3,373; the population in 1881 was 304.

DONINGTON is an ancient market town, parish, with station on the Great Northern and Great Eastern joint railway, and polling place for the Southern division of the county, in the wapentake of Kirton, parts of Holland, Spalding union and county court district, rural deanery of North Holland No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 11 south-west from Boston, 10 north-by-west from Spalding. The town is situated at the junctions of the roads from Spalding and Grantham to Boston, and is lighted with gas by a limited company. The church of St. Mary and the Holy Rood is a fine stone structure, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five aisles, porch and on the south side a lofty embattled tower with spire relieved by three tiers of lights, and together 240 feet in height, and containing [ ] bells: the tower and spire form the principal feature of the church, the lower stage of the tower serves as a porch; the nave and south aisle are Decorated and the north aisle is of the same period, but later; the clerestory is lighted by seven windows on either side and is surmounted by an embattled parapet; both east and west windows are Perpendicular and have each five lights; on each side of the former is a doorway: the chancel retains piscina and sedilia, and on the north side of the chancel is an arched recess, with a series of rude steps eastward of it; the font is a fine example of Decorated work: the church was restored and re-seated in 1868 and a new vestry added: the late Rev. John Wilson, then patron, undertook the expense of the restoration of the chancel, and has left a legacy for the repair of the church: there is an organ, built by Nicholson, of Lincoln: a south window in chancel, the gift of the present vicar, and a west window, the gift of the late Enoch Millson; four stained windows have just been added (1884), one in the chancel, the gift of Mr. Freer; an east window in south aisle, also the gift of Mr. Freer. The churchyard was enlarged in 1865, with the consent of the Secretary of State, and a Burial Board of 5 members has been established. The register dates from the year 1642. The living is a vicarage and rectory, yearly value about £285, in the gift of Simeon's trustees, and held since 1851, by the Rev. John Doughty Grenside M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Here are Wesleyan, Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Rev. Anthony Barnes' charity is for clergymen's widows: the income is about £400, under four trustees viz. the vicars of Donington and Pinchbeck and rectors of Algarkirk and Wyberton. There are several small devises of land, which are managed by the churchwardens and overseers, and the income distributed yearly in money and kind. A sum of money has been left by the late Enoch Millson esq. producing an income of £300 yearly: it is in the management of four trustees; Richard Bothamley is managing trustee; it is distributed in weekly premiums in bread and clothing to the poor of Donington. The market day is on Thursday, and three annual fairs are held for horses and cattle viz. May 26th, September 4th and October 17th. A County Police Station was erected in 1859, and a new court-house is to be erected adjacent. Park House, the seat of Richard Gleed esq. is a noble mansion, beautifully situated in the centre of extensive grounds. There are three separate manors in this parish, namely, Wykes, of which Henry Smith esq. and Cowley's trustees are the lords; Monk's Hall, Henry Smith esq. is the lord; Cowley's trustees, Richard Gleed esq. and Henry Smith esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and silt; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans, peas and potatoes. The area is 6,180 acres; county rate, £15,906; the population in 1881 was 1,665.

NORTHORPE is a hamlet 1 mile north.

DONINGTON-UPON-BAIN (formerly DONNINGTON-ON-BAINE) is a pleasant village, parish and station on the Louth and Lincoln line of railway; it is in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, North division of the wapentake of Gartree, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Horncastle, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 7 miles west-south-west from Louth and 10 north from Horncastle. The church of St. Andrew is a stone structure in the Early English style, with a chancel, nave and small embattled tower at west end, containing 3 bells, and contains a Saxon font: the chancel was rebuilt by the late rector in 1855. The register dates from the year 1655; the earlier registers are in a very dilapidated condition. The living is a rectory, yearly value £300, including 213 acres of glebe, allotted in lieu of tithes in 1798, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1876 by the Rev. James William Ashe, of St. Bees. The church land amounts to about 8 acres. Here are places of worship for Baptists, Wesleyans, United Methodists and Primitive Methodists. At the Enclosure upwards of 34 acres were allotted to the poor, in lieu of land which had been purchased with £44 left by Elizabeth Lornen in 1669; the yearly income now derived from this charity is about £42 net, which sum is distributed on the first Thursday in December annually; one third is appropriated to the National school, and the remainder is distributed in coals and money to the poor. West John Rainey esq. who is lord of the manor, William Wood and William Grant Allison esqrs. and the rector are the chief landowners. The Foresters' Hall, built in 1879, is a plain red brick structure and is let for public meetings and concerts. The soil is wold, clay and sand. The crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 1,890 acres; rateable value, 2,312; the population in 1881 was 473.

WELSDALE BOTTOM is one mile and a half north-east.

DORRINGTON is a parish, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Lafford No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, and 1½ miles north from Ruskington station, on the Great Northern and Great Eastern joint line, 10 miles south-west from Tattershall and 5 north from Sleaford. The church of SS. James and John, situated on an eminence half a mile from the village, is an ancient structure, originally Early English, but now almost wholly in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles and a low tower containing 3 bells: the church was restored in 1867, at a cost of about £1,500, when the whole fabric was new roofed, a vestry added and the church reseated; these works being carried out under the supervision of Messrs. Kirk and Parry, architects: the stained east window was presented by Joseph Dent esq. of this parish; the small west window was inserted from subscriptions collected by Mr. Sykes: the clerestory is Late Perpendicular; the east wall appears to have been wholly rebuilt in 1330, in a very careful manner: the east window has reticulated tracery; above its arch is a piece of sculpture, representing the "Last Judgment," and over this is a small niche: the tower is a good specimen of Decorated work, and has a plain parapet without pinnacles, but it once had both pinnacles and a spire: both arcades are Early English; at the east end of the north aisle is a small piscina: there are inscribed stones to Anthony Oldfield 1668 and Elizabeth, his wife, 1686: in the church there is also a white marble tablet to Mrs. Elizabeth Farmer, 1786. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a discharged vicarage, tithe rent-charge (vicarial) £9, gross yearly value £120 including 115 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Aveland. The Rev. James Bell M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, is curate in charge, and resides at Ruskington. The Wesleyans have two chapels here. The poor allotments of 13 acres produce £20 yearly, which is applied to the use of the National school. Thomas Pears esq. who is lord of the manor, and Joseph Dent esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly heavy land; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley, turnips &c. The area is 1,881 acres; rateable value, £2,639; the population in 1881 was 398.

DOWSBY is a parish and village, near the Car dyke, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Aveland, union and county court district of Bourne, parts of Kesteven, rural deanery of Aveland No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4½ miles south-east from Falkingham, 1 mile north-by-east from Rippingale station and 7 miles north-by-east from Bourn. The church of St. Andrew, restored in 1864, is an ancient structure of stone in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel with chantry, nave, aisles, south porch and a tower containing 4 bells: the church has pulpit of carved oak on a stone base, which, with the other principal fittings, is new: there is also an ancient font, placed in 1876 upon a handsome stone octagon slab, the gift of Miss D. E. Ford, of Little Risington, Gloucestershire: brasses to members of the Scales and Dean families, besides several tablets and a life-sized recumbent effigy of Etheldreda Rigdon: there are also several brasses in the floor of the chancel to the Burrells, formerly of Dowsby Hall, including Redmayne Burrell, 1682, and others to 1763, and a brass to Judith, wife of Humfrey Hyde Clerk, 1700: the restoration of 1863-4, effected at a cost of £1,100, amounted almost to a rebuilding of the fabric, in the course of which several fragments of a former Norman church were discovered, and have been built into the new east wall of the south aisle: the north aisle is entirely new and wider than before, and both arcades, as well as the chancel and vestry roofs, have been reconstructed. The churchyard was at the same time enlarged by the throwing into it of a rood of land, presented by E. N. Conant esq. of Lyndon Hall, Oakham. The register dates from the year 1670. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £424 with residence, in the gift of J. Boyen esq. of Ringood, Norwood s.e. and held since 1867 by the Rev. Kingsman Baskett Foster B.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. £3 yearly was left in 1844 by James Hurst, of St. Martin's, Stamford Baron, to be distributed in meat. Close to a mill in this village are three tumuli. Dowsby Hall, a fine ancient Elizabethan stone mansion, is now the residence of Mr. Seth Ellis Dean, farmer. The principal landowners are Lord Aveland P.C., D.L., J.P. Richard Lucas esq. of Edith Weston, Stamford, and Edward Nathaniel Conant esq. of Lyndon Hall, Oakham, who is lord of the manor. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and pasturage. The parish contains, including part of the hamlet of GRABY, 1,809 acres; rateable value, £2,962; the population in 1881 was 186. Dowsby is situated on the western extremity of the Fen district, or low country.

DOWSBY DECOY is about one mile east. GRABY is about one mile to the north-west: and the portion of the hamlet in Dowsby parish is called EAST GRABY. WEST GRABY is in Aslackby parish.

and a tower at the west end containing 2 bells: the tower is of three stages, with gabled and crocketed buttresses, and on the second stage of the western face is a canopied niche enclosing a statue, probably of St. Matthew: the font is of late date, with a singular inscription on its panels, including monograms of our Lord and the Virgin Mary: the present Bishop of Lincoln, in a letter addressed to the Rev. G. W. Keightley, rector, July 18, 1869, suggests that it should be read as follows: "In Principio Jesus Christus, Maria (natus, est) baptista," i.e. "In the Beginning Jesus Christ: (born of) Mary (he is) the Baptist," and several of the windows are stained: the building was completely restored in 1857. The registers date from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £248, including 18½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Governors of the Charter House, London, to whom the land and tithes were sold in the year 1752, for the yearly payment of £180: the living has been held since 1880 by the Rev. Percival Hartley LL.B of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The Car dyke runs through the parish. The Governors of the Charter House, London, are lords of the manor and principal landowners. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, clay above the dyke, alluvial deposit below, with substratum of clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and green crops. The area is 2,695 acres; rateable value, £3,926; the population in 1881 was 223.

DUNSTON is a parish and village, with station on the Great Northern and Great Eastern joint railway, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Kesteven, second division of Langoe wapentake, Lincoln union and county court district, rural deanery of Longoboby, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles south-east from Lincoln. The church of St. Peter is a stone building, in the style of the thirteenth century, and consists of chancel, double nave, south aisle and square embattled tower containing 3 bells: the church has been rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, by Mr. R. Herbert Carpenter, at a cost of £4,700: of which sum £3,500 was given by the Marquess of Ripon, £500 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who receive the great tithes, and the remainder raised by the parishioners, and it was re-consecrated in February, 1876: there are sittings for 430. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £315 with residence, in the gift of Earl de Grey, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Richard Haworth Hart M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here. Three and a half miles west of the village, and at the extremity of Dunston heath, stands Dunston pillar, which was formerly a lighthouse used as a landmark for travellers across Lincoln heath, which up to 1750 was unenclosed: it bears this inscription:—

Columna Hæc Utilitati Publicæ D. D. D. J. Bushwood MDCCXL.

In 1810 the lantern was removed and a statue of George III. placed on the top to commemorate the 50th year of his reign by Robert, Duke of Buckingham. The Marquess of Ripon K.G. is lord of the manor and, with the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are the lay impropriators, principal landowner. The soil in the upper part of the parish is light land, enclosed from Lincoln heath; the lower part is reclaimed fen, while the centre, from the Sleaford road to Carr dyke, is a heavy loam; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 4,620 acres; rateable value, £4,582; the population in 1881 was 782.

EASTOFT is a pleasant village, township and ecclesiastical district, formed in 1855, out of the parishes of Adlingfleet, in Yorkshire, and Crowle, in Lincolnshire, partly in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, west division of Manley wapentake, Thorne union and county court district, and partly in the east division of the west Riding of York, Goole union and county court district, rural deanery of Snaith, archdeaconry and diocese of York, 3¼ miles north-east from Crowle and 9 south-east from Goole, situated on the banks of the old river Don, adjacent to and partly in the Isle of Axholme. The nearest railway station is at Crowle wharf, about 5 miles south-by-west. Eastoft, Yorkshire, and Eastoft, Lincolnshire, are separate parishes, although combined ecclesiastically. The church of St. Bartholomew, which stands in Yorkshire, is a building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1855, from designs by J. L. Pearson esq. R.A. at a cost of £5,000, and at the sole expense of Lady Strickland; it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, porch and a turret containing 3 bells; a new organ was erected in 1884 at a cost of £180, raised by subscription: there is one stained window. The separate register of this parish dates only from the year 1855; the earlier registers are included in those of Crowle, as relating to Eastoft, Lincolnshire, and in those of Adlingfleet as relating to Eastoft, Yorkshire. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, with residence, in the gift of Henry Strickland-Constable esq. J.P. of Wassand Hall, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Edmund Richard Manwaring-White B.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge. There are Primitive Methodist and Methodist New Connexion chapels here. The principal landowners are Earl Manvers, who is lord of the manor, Henry Strickland-Constable esq. B.A., J.P. The Rev. Thomas Lister, Thomas C. Scholey esq. William Brunyee esq. and William Burton esq. The soil is principally warp; subsoil, peat, sand and clay. Potatoes, wheat and beans are the staple produce of the parish. The area is 2,597 acres; rateable value, £4,895; the population in 1881 was 527 in Lincolnshire, and 85 in Yorkshire.

EDENHAM is a village and parish, with the hamlets of ELSTHORPE, GRIMSTHORPE and SCOTTLETHORPE, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Beltisloe wapentake, Bourn union and county court district, 3 miles north-west from Bourn, 96½ from London and 10¼ north-north-east from Stamford. The village is pleasantly situated on the road from Bourn to Colsterworth. The nearest railway stations are at Bourn, 3 miles, and Corby, 6 miles, on the Great Northern railway. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch, and a western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: in the chancel and other parts of the interior, are numerous monuments to various members of the Willoughby de Eresby family, including Robert Bertie, first Earl of Lindsey (1626), lord high admiral K.G. who fell at Edgehill, 23rd October, 1642, and his son Montagu Bertie, second Earl K.G. 1666; Robert Bertie, fourth Earl of Lindsey and first Duke of Ancaster and Kesteven (1715), who died in 1723; Peregrine, second Duke, 1742; the third Duke of the same name, 1778; and Robert, fourth Duke, 1779: there are several stained windows and an ancient circular font with an arcaded exterior. The register dates from the year 1706. The living is a donative, gross yearly value £52 and residence, in the gift of the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, and held since 1867 by the Rev. John Prior Sharp M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, and domestic chaplain to the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby. Here are charities of about £8 yearly value, left by Anthony Barnes and John Pell for the benefit of the poor; the amount is distributed in money and kind at the discretion of the incumbent and churchwardens. Here was once a Cistercian Abbey called "De Vaudey" (Valle Dei), founded in 1147 by the Earl of Albemarle and translated from Bytham: it was colonized from Fountains Abbey in Yorkshire, and had thirteen monks, the yearly revenue being £124: some remains may still be seen in the park not far from the lake. Grimsthorpe Castle, the seat of the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, is a large massive and stately pile, quadrangular in form, and is built on the summit of a considerable hill, from which there are extensive views on all sides: the original structure, erected in the early part of the thirteenth century, was irregular in plan and surrounded by a moat; one of the towers, situated at the south-east angle and called King John's tower, is still in excellent preservation and has walls of great thickness: Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, partially rebuilt and greatly embellished the castle, and early in the eighteenth century the north front was rebuilt, after the design of Sir John Vanbrugh, and with its lofty towered wings, bold columns, double tiers of windows and groups of statuary, constitutes a fine example of his style: the chapel occupies the western wing, the corresponding eastern wing including the state dining room, erected in 1810 to contain the splendid Gobelins tapestry brought here by Mary, widow of Louis XII. of France, on her marriage with the Duke of Suffolk: between them is a vast hall, rising to the full height of the roof and having at each end double flights of stone staircases behind ranges of pillars and arches: in front of this entrance is a spacious courtyard having an ornamental iron railing across the front, which opens directly upon the great avenue: beyond the state dining-room, on the first floor of the eastern front, is the suite of state drawing-rooms, three in number, lighted by fine oriel windows: in these rooms are a large number of the family portraits and also of the portraits of the Kings and Queens of England from an early period, that were presented by the reigning Sovereigns to the Lords Great Chamberlains: the largest and one of the best of the Royal pictures is Vandyck's Charles I. with his Queen and children: the original thickly-padded dress in which King James I. is depicted is still preserved at Grimsthorpe, with many other interesting curiosities: two portraits represent Peregrine Bertie, "the brave Lord Willoughby" of the famous ballad, who so distinguished himself in Flanders, fighting against the Spaniards, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; he was born at Wesel on the Rhine, under very romantic circumstances, and, eventually inheriting his mother's estate, was summoned to Parliament by the title of Lord Willoughby de Eresby: portraits of his parents are also at Grimsthorpe: the castle contains a large number of other fine paintings, both ancient and modern, together with miniatures, statuary, rare marbles, Sèvres china, several coronation chairs and royal canopies and gold plate of great value and historical interest, once belonging to various kings and queens of England and Scotland through several centuries, and which afterwards became the perquisite of successive Lords Great Chamberlains of England: on the western side are the Chinese drawing-room, the German dining-room, Lady Willoughby's room and other rooms: the views from this western front—where there is a long and wide terrace—are exceedingly fine looking down the hill across the large lake to the richly-wooded opposite hills: the park, in this direction, extends from the Castle to the lodge at Little Bytham for a distance of four miles: it has an area of 1992 acres, of which 1190 acres constitute the deer park: here are not only, in addition to Highland cattle, many hundreds of the ordinary deer, but also a large number of fine red deer of the original race that has been preserved in Grimsthorpe Park for many centuries: the carriage drive from Bytham passes through some fine avenues of oaks and a chestnut avenue which rivals that of Hampton Court: in the western portion of the Park are numerous hawthorns of great age, the remnant of the ancient forest and great bearers of mistletoe: Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, on the death of his wife the Dowager Queen of France, married Katherine Willoughby, the heiress of the Eresbys; the duchess afterwards became the wife of Richard Bertie, and their descendants were Dukes of Ancaster: the ancient barony of Eresby is now held by the Baroness Willoughby de Eresby, widow of the first Lord Aveland, who succeeded her brother, the twentieth Baron Willoughby de Eresby, in 1870, assuming by royal license the principal and additional surname and arms of Drummond, and in 1872 the surname of Willoughby in addition to and after those of Heathcote-Drummond; Lady de Eresby is Joint Hereditary Great Chamberlain of England (her son, Lord Aveland, acting as her deputy) and is also lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 6,844 acres; rateable value, £8,317; the population in 1881 was 563.

ELSTHORPE is one mile and a quarter north; and SCOTTLETHORPE, a mile south-west.

Parish Clerk, John Barnes.

The living is a vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of Moorby, joint net yearly value £250, with 14 acres of glebe allotment in Wildmoor Fen, and house, in the gift of the Bishop of Manchester, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Francis Smith, of St. Bees, who resides at Moorby rectory. The Wesleyans have a chapel here. Here is an Infant school, built in 1868, for 30 children, with an average attendance of 13, supported by W. H. Trafford esq.; the elder children attend the school at Moorby. There is a small barrow at the south end of the village. W. H. Trafford esq. who is lord of the manor and J. B. Stanhope esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is heavy loam; subsoil, white clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, seeds and turnips. The area is 749 acres; rateable value, £836; the population in 1881 was 168. By the Act 44 Vic. c. xvii. the Fen allotment was transferred to the new parish of Wildmore.

Parish Clerk, Edmund Boucher.

EPWORTH is a parish and small market town, situated in the centre of the Isle of Axholme, of which it is the capital; it is a polling place for the Northern division of the county, in the parts of Lindsey, West division of the wapentake of Manley, Thorne union and county court district, rural deanery of Axholme, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; it is 3½ miles west from the navigable river Trent, 4½ north from Haxey station of the Great Northern and Great Eastern joint railway, 5½ south from Crowle station on the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire railway, 13 north-east from Bawtry, 12 north-west from Gainsborough, 16 east from Doncaster, 30 north-north-west from Lincoln and 165 from London. The Hull and Gainsborough steam packets run on the Trent, which is 3½ miles east. The church of St. Andrew, situated on an eminence, is a building of stone and consists of chancel, nave and aisles, and a fine western embattled tower with pinnacles, containing a peal of 6 bells: the entrance to the rood loft remains and portions of the screen may be seen in the reading desk; a part of its panelling, found during the repairs, bears the white hart lodged, the badge of Richard II. and the arms of Mowbray, Earl of Norfolk: the approach to the church is by a broad flagged causeway, flanked on each side by a row of trees: in 1869 the aisles were new roofed and the interior reseated, the work being generally a reproduction of ancient benches still remaining in the church: the fittings of the church were also renewed and other works carried out at a cost of £700, under the direction of Mr. James Fowler, of Louth. The registers of the parish were burnt, with the rectory-house, in the year 1709, with the exception of a book containing baptisms, marriages and burials from December 1539 to August 1601, discovered a few years since in an old chest in the church: also part of a burial register, from 1538 to 1593, found some years ago in the house of a parishioner and a further portion of an old marriage register, commencing with the year 1564 and continuing to 1592: the registers from 1710 to the present period are perfect. The living is a rectory, yearly value £691, with a good residence and 34 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1883 by the Rev. John Henry Overton M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford, canon of Lincoln cathedral and rural dean of Axholme. Here are chapels for Wesleyan New Connexion, Primitive Methodists and Baptists. The New Connexion chapel was erected to the memory of the Rev. Alexander Kilham; it was opened for divine service on Wednesday, the 25th of July, 1860: it is a handsome building, in the Decorated or the best period of Gothic: adjoining is the school for boys and girls, of similar design: the total cost, including land, chapel and school, was about £1,600: a commodious house for the minister has lately (1884) been erected adjacent to the chapel. The Wesleyan chapel is a large and commodious building of red brick, erected in the year 1821: the Primitive Methodist chapel was erected in 1821: the Baptist chapel is of red and white brick, erected in 1857: the above places of worship have Sunday schools attached. A Cemetery of 3 acres was formed in 1881, at a cost of £1,000; it is under the control of a burial board of 5 members. The charities left in the hands of the churchwardens amount to about £68, which is annually distributed, chiefly in clothing. Epworth has a market place, but the markets having declined for many years are now almost disused. The privilege of holding a market and two annual fairs was procured for this place by Thomas de Mowbray. The Court House, re-erected in 1806, is situated in the Market place: the manor courts are held here twice a year. The Police Station was erected in 1848, with residence for the inspector. The Epworth Agricultural Society and Flower Show hold its meetings here annually. The ISLE of AXHOLME contains the parishes of Epworth, Haxey, Belton, Owston, West Butterwick, Althorpe, Crowle, Luddington and Wroot, with their respective hamlets, viz.: In Haxey—Eastlound, Craiselound, Low Burnham, Westwood-side, Newbigg, Upperthorpe, Nethergate and Park; in Belton—Sandtoft and Beltoft; in Owston —West Kinnard's Ferry, Gunthorpe, Heckdyke, and a small portion of East Kinnard's Ferry; in West Butterwick —Kelfield; in Althorpe—Amcotts, Keadby and Derrythorpe; in Crowle—Eastoft and Ealand; in Luddington—Garthorpe. The above places constitute that part of the hundred of Manley which is west of the Trent, and the parishes are comprised in a district measuring about 19 miles long and about 9 broad, containing about 50,000 acres of land, highly productive in corn, potatoes, rye-grass and seeds, for which the Trent and the Stainforth and Keadby canal, together with the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire and Great Northern railways, afford a cheap and ready transit to distant markets. The Rev. John Wesley M.A. fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford, and founder of the Methodist Connexion, was born here, 17th June, 1703, being the second son of the Rev. Samuel Wesley, then rector of Epworth. The manor of Epworth, comprises the parishes of Epworth, Haxey, Owston and Belton; the manorial rights belong to Alfred Parkin esq. The principal landowners are Mrs. Lee, J. W. D. Johnson esq. and trustees of the Rev. — Mottram. The soil is loamy, stiff clay and sandy; subsoil, clay and sand. The chief crops are wheat, potatoes and line. The area is 8,140 acres; rateable value, £10,780; the population in 1881 was 2,178.

EVEDON is a small parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, wapentake of Ashwardhurn, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Ashwardhurn No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2½ miles north-east-by-east from Sleaford, the nearest railway station. The church of St. Mary is a small building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, porch, and a low tower with embattled parapet and angle pinnacles, and containing 3 bells, a Decorated chantry chapel formerly existed on the south side of the nave, of which the arch still remains partly filled in with masonry: in 1809 the aisle was pulled down, and its arcade of two bays filled in with masonry, to serve as an outer wall: the font is octangular and of Perpendicular date. The register dates from the year 1599. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £300, gross yearly value £360, including 56 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Hon. Murray Edward Gordon Finch-Hatton, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Maynard Edward Jenour B.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. This parish is entitled to send children to Sleaford Grammar school, and two to the Free school at Ewerby. The Hon. Murray Edward Gordon Finch-Hatton D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is chiefly heavy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, turnips and seeds. The area is 1,333 acres, in three farms; rateable value, £1,891; the population in 1881 was 73.

Parish Clerk, William Gadd.

EWERBY, formerly a market town, called "Ywarby" and "Iwardby," is now a village and parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, hundred of Aswardhurn, Sleaford union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Ashwardhurn-with-Lafford No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4 miles east-by-north from Sleaford. The church of St. Andrew is a stately building, entirely of the Geometrical Decorated period, consisting of chancel and nave under a single roof, aisles, south porch and a massive and lofty tower surmounted by a broach spire, relieved by two tiers of spire lights, and containing 4 bells: the spire was struck by lightning and repaired in 1810: internally there is no chancel arch, nor any other separation between the nave and chancel than a noble screen of the same date and character as that in Sleaford church: in the chantry chapel at the east end of the north aisle, enclosed by Early screen work, an altar slab and piscina remain, but its chief feature is a fine arched tomb, with the recumbent effigy of a knight in chain mail, said to represent Sir Alexander Aunsell: the east window displays two shields, with the Threkingham and other coats: in the chancel is a fragment of an incised slab, of the date 1420: the top of the old Norman font forms the base for another of the Decorated period: the base of a churchyard cross remains under the tower: in the south wall of the chancel are three canopied sedilia and a piscina, and behind the altar is an aumbry. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly value £170, including 6 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Hon. Murray E. G. Finch-Hatton, and held since 1871 by the Rev. William Grayson B.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. Rothwell's charity of £14 is for fuel. The late Thomas Plumpton Tindale esq. of Ewerby, left in 1875 a sum of £2,000, the interest of which is given in food annually to the deserving poor of the parish; and Mrs. Ann Burcham and W. Burcham esq. of Ewerby Thorpe, each left £100 in 1866, the interest of which is distributed in like manner. Henry Pell, of this parish, left in 1667 the sum of £10 yearly towards the maintenance of a school master to teach the poor children of Ewerby and Evedon. The Hon. Murray E. G. Finch-Hatton D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, and Joseph Barnes esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is strong clay and heavy loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley, turnips and seeds. The area is 2,607 acres; rateable value, £4,435; the population in 1881 was 451. Part of Haverholme Priory Park is in this parish.

EWERBY THORPE is a hamlet in this parish, a mile east.

FALDINGWORTH is a village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, wapentake of Lawress, Lincoln union, Market Rasen county court district, rural deanery of Lawress No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles north-west from Wickenby station, 5 south-west from Market Rasen and 11 north-east from Lincoln. The church of All Saints was, with the exception of the tower, rebuilt in 1818: it is of stone, and consists of chancel, nave and western tower with 4 bells. The 1831 return gives the date of the register as 1560: no further particulars can be obtained. The living is a rectory, yearly value £306, in the gift of Ernest Richard Charles Cust esq. of Arthingworth, Northants, and held since 1877 by the Rev. John Sansom B.A. Queen's College, Oxford, who is non-resident; the Rev. Oscar Aslachson is curate. Here are Wesleyan Methodist and Free Methodist chapels. Earl Brownlow's charity of £6 12s. yearly, is given to the Market Rasen Hospital for the benefit of the parishioners of this parish. E. R. C. Cust esq. D.L. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 1,820 acres; rateable value, £2,796; the population in 1881 was 310.

FALKINGHAM (or FOLKINGHAM-CUM-LAUGHTON) is a pleasant and healthy village on the old road from London to Lincoln, on the Southern acclivity of a picturesque valley, in the Southern division of the county, Aveland wapentake, Bourn union and county court district, parts of Kesteven, rural deanery of Aveland No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles west from Billingborough station, 9 north from Bourn, 12 south-east from Grantham, 9 south from Sleaford, 20 south-west from Boston and 107 from London. The church of St. Andrew is a large building of stone, in the Late Transitional, Early Decorated, and Perpendicular styles, with some remains of Norman work, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and a western embattled tower with eight pinnacles, stone groined and containing a clock and 5 bells: in 1857 the fabric underwent extensive alterations and repairs by Messrs. Kirk and Parry, at an expense of £2,000: the stained east window was erected by Mr. John Ward, to the memory of his family; the stained west window is a memorial to E. Morris esq.: there is an ancient rood screen of dark oak, richly carved, and in good preservation: during the progress of the restoration, two richly carved and coloured niches of the Decorated period were discovered, and between them, carved in high relief, a lily in a vase; there were also found fragments of statues once standing in the niches, the robes of these figures being enriched with small squares of wax, stamped in relief and gilt; under the modern font portions of a richly carved font of the Late Transition period were met with; the doorway and stairs to the rood loft also remain; fine Decorated sedilia, several aumbries, and some Perpendicular bench ends: on either side the porch are the arms of Ranulph, Earl of Chester, and of Beaumont: in 1859 further repairs were carried out, owing to the yielding of the columns of the nave arcades, by Mr. Edward Browning. The register, including Laughton Dunsby, dates from the year 1539. The living is a rectory, united with the vicarage of Laughton, joint gross yearly value £511 with residence, in the gift of Thomas A. R. Heathcote esq. and held since 1861 by the Rev. George Carter LL.M. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel. There are charities for the poor, bequeathed by Lot Maile and others—viz., the rent of 14 acres of land, situated in the parish of Osbournby, which are distributed on St. Thomas' Day. Fairs are held annually on Ash Wednesday, Palm Monday, May 12th, Thursday after Old Michaelmas, and the 22nd of November. The castle, supposed to have been built by Henry de Beaumont, on the summit of the hill immediately above the town, in the reign of Edward II. is said to have been destroyed by the Parliamentary forces during the civil wars: scarcely any vestige of it now remains, except the inner moat, and some traces of the outer one: part of the outer wall foundation (about seven feet wide) of the ancient castle was discovered on removing some soil from a close at the Castle Hills. There are several springs here, one of which is highly chalybeate. Thomas A.R. Heathcote esq. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is strong and light loam; subsoil, chiefly clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 1,861 acres; rateable value, £3,434; the population in 1881 was 576.

Parish Clerk, Robert George.

FARFORTH with MAIDENWELL is a parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Hill No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles south from Louth. The church of St. Peter was rebuilt in 1861, in the Early English style, chiefly of sandstone, through the liberality of the family of the late William and Frances Osiear, and the Corporation of Basingstoke: on the north side of the chancel is a brass plate, engraved, to the memory of William and Francis Osiear. The register dates from the year 1784. The living is a rectory, united with Ruckland, joint yearly value £400 with house, in the gift of the Earl of Yarborough, and held since 1855 by the Rev. Benjamin Jesse Wood B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who resides at the Rectory, Ruckland. The poor have the interest of £15, left by Mr. Charles Humphrey in 1719. Measburn Staniland esq. J.P. of Harrington Hall, Spilsby, is lord of the manor and owner of Farforth, and the Corporation of Basingstoke are owners of Maidenwell. The soil is limestone; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 1,902 acres; rateable value, £2,271; the population in 1881 was 143.

MAIDENWELL is a hamlet, and contains 1,375 acres; and Farforth 527 acres.

FENTON is a small village and parish, situate near the river Witham and the Notts border, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, wapentake of Lovedon, Newark union, county court district, rural deanery of Loveden, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles north-east from Claypole station on the Great Northern railway, and 6 east-by-south from Newark. The church of All Saints is a structure of stone, chiefly in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, with some Norman remains, and consists of chancel, with chantry chapel on the north, nave, aisles and a tower, with crocketed spire and pinnacles, and containing 3 bells: the north aisle of two bays is Norman, and a fragment of Norman work remains beneath the pulpit, which is of Jacobean date: the south aisle arcade is Decorated work of the late thirteenth century, but the windows in this aisle are Perpendicular, and to this period belong also the tower and spire: the chancel was rebuilt in an inferior style in 1830: in the chantry adjoining it is an aumbry, and screen work of debased character partly encloses both: some old bench ends remain, and there is a plain octangular font on a shafted pedestal. The register dates from the year 1537. The living is 'a chapelry, united together with that of Stragglesthorpe, to the rectory of Beckingham, joint yearly value £697, in the gift of the Rev. Frederick Fitzgerald M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, who is the present rector, and held by him since SOUTH FERRIBY is a pretty and well-built village, on the south bank of the Humber, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, north division of Yarborough wapentake, Glanford Brigg union, Barton-upon-Humber petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles west from Barton, the nearest railway station and 7 west from New Holland. The church of St. Nicholas, which is but the mutilated remnant of a much larger church, is a singular structure, consisting of chancel, nave, porch and a tower erected over the chancel and containing 3 bells: embedded in the walls are portions of fine monumental slabs, with five crosses, and over the porch is an ancient semi-circular stone, on which is sculptured a representation of our Saviour as theGood Shepherd, and on each side of His head symbolical figures of the sun and moon: the church in 1869 was re-pewed and restored at a cost of £350, and has sittings for 400 persons. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £320, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1862 by the Rev. Andrew Veitch B.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. There is a church estate, consisting of 15 acres and 6 cottages, held in trust by the rector and churchwardens and The Rev. Robert Sutton M.A. of Scawby Hall, Rowland Winn esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. of Appleby Hall and Mr. John Wilson. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Temperance Hall, erected in 1882, at a cost of £130, is a building of brick. There is also a large reading room, erected by Major Sutton, at a cost of £200. Brick and tile making is extensively carried on here. There is a quarry of chalk and stone. From ecclesiastical records the parish appears to have been formerly divided into North and South Ferriby. Ferriby Hall is a brick mansion, in the occupation of Henry Edward Meggitt esq. who is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Major Robert Nassau Sutton J.P. of Scawby Hall, and the Rev. Andrew Veitch B.A. The soil is chalky; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, turnips and barley. The area is 1,555 acres, 21 perch of land and 1,495 of water; rateable value, £3,745; the population in 1881 was 733.

FERRIBY SLUICE, 1 mile west, is a hamlet in this parish, on the bank of the Humber and the Wear Dyke. A lecture hall has been erected here by M. Clark esq. of Muteringham Hall, at a cost of £100.

FILLINGHAM is a parish and pleasant village, charmingly situated at the western declivity of the cliffs, in the Northern division of the county, western division of the wapentake of Aslacoe, parts of Lindsey, Gainsborough union and county court district, rural deanery of Aslacoe, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 151 miles from London, 10 north-by-west from Lincoln, 10 south-east from Gainsborough, and 7 west from Lee station on the loop line of the Great Northern railway, which joins the main line at Doncaster and Peterborough. St. Andrew's church, previously a structure of the Early English and Early Decorated periods, was partly reconstructed in 1777, when the present tower and the greater portion of the whole fabric was rebuilt; the date of this renovation being marked on the tower: the building consists of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles and a western tower, with four richly carved pinnacles, western porch, containing a clock and 1 bell: good features of both the original styles have been incorporated in the more recent masonry; but the earliest existing feature is a small semi-circular headed doorway beneath the tower, circ. 1200: the chancel is entirely modern; on the north wall is a mural monument of marble, to Jane, daughter of Denzil Hollis, of Ormsby, and wife of Thomas Saunderson: in 1866 the church was again restored: the churchyard contains a handsome monumental cross, upwards of 30 feet in height, erected in memory of Major Thomas N. Dalton (49th Regiment), who was killed at the battle of Inkerman, Nov. 5th, 1854. The register dates from the year 1661. The living is a rectory, yearly value £709 with residence (restored by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. in 1853), in the gift of the Master and Fellows of Balliol College, Oxford, who have been owners of the advowson for upwards of five centuries, and held by the Rev. William Wilton Smith M.A. Emmanuel College, Cambridge. In the year 1361 the living was presented by the college to John de Wycliffe, the great reformer, then one of the fellows of the college. The fairs were long since removed to Spital by Sir Cecil Wray. The village is beautified by a magnificent lake, a sheet of about 40 acres of water, making it one of the prettiest spots in the county; it is the head of a feeder of the Till. Fillingham Castle, an embattled edifice, built by Sir Cecil Wray in 1760, is the property of John Dalton esq.; it is at present occupied by James Jardine esq.; in the grounds are vestiges of a Roman camp, where coins, spear-heads and fragments of armour have been discovered; the river Ancholme takes its rise in the park. FIRSBY is a parish and small village with station on the East Lincolnshire railway, situated on a small stream, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 122½ miles from London, 5 east-south-east from Spilsby, 4 south-west from Burgh and 5 north-west from Wainfleet. This station is the junction of the branches from Spilsby and Skegness. The church of St. Andrew, rebuilt in 1856, at a cost of £850, under the direction of the late Mr. J. E. Street R.A. is an edifice of Lincoln stone with Ancaster stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of aspidal chancel, nave and a bell gable containing 2 bells: there are two stained windows. The register dates from the year 1717. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Great Steeping annexed; tithe rent-charge (Firsby) £185, joint gross yearly value £342, including 11 acres of glebe at Firsby, in the gift of and held since 1844 by the Rev. Richard George Walls M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, who resides at Boothby Hall. The celebrated Dr. William Warburton, Bishop of Gloucester (1760-79) was rector here from 1730 to 1756. There is a Wesleyan chapel here. The poor have the interest of five acres of land, left by W. Cheales, and producing £12 a year. The Rev. Richard George Walls M.A. rector, who is lord of the manor, Charles Thomas Samuel Birch-Reynardson esq. D.L. of Holywell Hall, Stamford, and the trustees of the late John Ashlin are the principal landowners. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and beans. The area is 1,063 acres; rateable value, £2,347; the population in 1881 was 235.

FIRSBY EAST AND WEST.

EAST FIRSBY is a township and parish, 6½ miles west-by-south from Market Rasen and 7 north-west from Wickenby station, in the Northern division of the county, east division of Aslacoe wapentake, Lincoln union and county court district. There is no church. The register dates from the year 1717. The living is a rectory, annexed to the vicarage of Saxby, joint gross yearly value £94, in the gift of the Earl of Scarbrough, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Robert Courtenay, of St. Bees, who is also rector of and resides at Caenby. Mrs. Moore is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans and potatoes. The area of the parish is 507 acres; rateable value, £638; the population in 1881 was—of the parish 74, and of the township 33.

WEST FIRSBY is a township in this parish, and contained in 1881 a population of 41; the area is 674 acres, the property of Sinclair Frankland Hood esq. B.A., J.P. of Nettleham Hall; rateable value, £1,266.

FISHTOFT is a parish in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Skirbeck, parts of Holland and Lindsey, Boston union and county court district, rural deanery of North Holland No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles east-south-east from Boston, bounded on the south by the navigable river Witham and the sea. The Hob Hole drain passes through it. The church of St. Guthlac, the patron saint of Crowland Abbey, is a structure of stone, in the Norman, Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower containing 5 bells, and was restored in 1853, when a small vestry was added and some remains of Norman work were discovered: by far the most interesting portion of the church is its Norman chancel, which is unusually wide, and retains many of its original features; the greater part of the remainder of the fabric is Perpendicular: the tower is plain and has, over the west doorway, a small statuette of St. Guthlac in a canopied niche: the clerestory has five windows on either side: a most beautifully carved oak screen of Perpendicular date separates the nave and chancel, and at the north-east angle is an octagonal turret, with staircase, which gave access to the rood loft and nave roof: in the north aisle are portions of another screen, formerly belonging to Frieston church: the font is Perpendicular and consists of an octagonal-panelled basin on an elevated base: the pulpit and prayer desk are both constructed from some earlier fittings: in the chancel are two Norman and Early English aumbries and a piscina, and the east window retains some fragments of ancient glass: two coped slabs of grey marble also remain; these bear crosses only, and appear to be of the thirteenth century. The register dates from the year 1696. The living is a rectory, yearly value £800 with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Lushington Edwards, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Charles Dudding Holland B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. The rectory house, a substantial brick residence, is west of the church. The Wesleyans have a chapel near the village. There are several charities, amounting to £67 yearly, which are distributed to the poor of the parish on St. Thomas' Day, the most important being the Briggs' charity and the gift of Charles Johnson. The coast-guard station is at Hob Hole Sluice, at the mouth of the Witham. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the trustees of the Rev. Edward Brown and the trustees of John J. Jebb esq. are the principal landowners. In 1872 there were about 150 acres of marsh land enclosed. The sea bank is 1¼ miles in length. The soil is in most parts heavy; subsoil, sandy. The chief crops are wheat, beans and potatoes. The area is 4,473 acres of land and 1,845 of water; rateable value, £6,255; the population in 1881 was 916 in the civil parish, and 826 in the ecclesiastical, which includes part of Frithville parish. By a Local Government order, dated December 24th, 1880, a detached portion of Boston, known as "Boston East," or "Long Hedges," containing a population of 193, was added to Fishtoft: at the same date detached parts of Fishtoft Fen Allotment, with 183 inhabitants, were transferred to Frithville.

FISKERTON is a village and parish, in the vale of Witham, Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Lawress wapentake, union and county court district of Lincoln, rural deanery of Lawress No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles east from Lincoln. The Five Mile House station on the Great Northern railway is in this parish. The church of St. Clement is a large and handsome structure of stone, of the Norman, Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower containing 3 bells: part of the building is probably of the date of the latter part of the twelfth century, and the masonry of the Perpendicular tower is much admired: there is a brass of a priest, probably the restorer of the church in the fifteenth century, when it was almost rebuilt: it was again restored in 1863, at a cost of more than £1,000, of which the late Archdeacon Davys, then rector, gave £500, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are lords of the manor, £350: the work was carried out under the direction of Mr. Ewan Christian, architect, and included the rebuilding of part of the chancel and south aisle, re-roofing both chancel and aisles and repairing that of the nave; the windows and doors were also renewed, the interior re-seated and the floors laid afresh. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a rectory, yearly value £470, including 250 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Thomas Hotchkin Vines M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here, built in 1839. The poor have about £24 (derived from 10 acres of land) annually distributed amongst them, left by Robert Hodgson esq. and other donors during the years 1676, 1701 and 1819. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the rector and Henry Silvester esq. The soil is various; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,681 acres; rateable value, £3,398; the population in 1881 was 440.

FLEET is a village, station on the Spalding and Norwich railway, and parish, on the road from Holbeach to Wisbech, 2 miles east from the former and 12 north-west from the latter, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Holland, wapentake of Elloe, Holbeach union and county court district, rural deanery of East Elloe, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is an ancient stone structure in the Earlier English, Early and Late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and a detached south-west tower, with embattled parapet and pinnacles, a polygonal staircase, turret and a spire with three tiers of pierced quatrefoils on its alternate faces, the whole height being about 114 feet: the tower contains 6 bells, and there is a Perpendicular font and piscina and sedilia of Early Decorated work (1245-1315); the church was restored during the years 1860-2, the chancel being entirely rebuilt, the nave windows repaired, and the interior reseated, under the direction of Mr. C. Bennett, architect, of Lynn: there are sittings for 340 persons. The register dates from the year 1652. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £1,214, net yearly value £1,086, including 87 acres of glebe, with residence, built in 1854, in the gift of the trustees of the Rev. James Jerram M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Walter Hill James M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford. Here is a General Baptist chapel, founded in 1690. Here is the Workhouse for Holbeach union; particulars are given under Holbeach. The charities amount to about £130 yearly, mostly derived from the poor's land of about 26 acres, and are distributed in money on St. Thomas' Day and Good Friday. There are three manors—Fleet Dominorum, Fleet Harrington and Fleet Fitzwalter; Thomas Augustus Seawell esq. is lord of the first two and Sturton Johnson esq. of the last. The principal landowners are T. A. Seawell esq. Robert Bellamy Clifton esq. M.A. professor of experimental philosophy at Oxford, W. C. Christie esq. Miss Charinton and the representatives of John Massey. The soil is light loam; subsoil, silt. The chief crops are wheat, beans, peas and roots. The area of the parish is 6,667 acres; rateable value, £11,930; the population in 1881 was 1,331, including 167 officers and inmates in Holbeach workhouse.

FLIXBOROUGH is a parish and pleasant village, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, north division of Manley wapentake, Glandford Brigg union, Brigg county court district, rural deanery of Manlake, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 7 miles east from Crowle, 3½ north-west from Frodingham railway station and 25 north from Gainsborough. Here is a ferry over the Trent to Amcotts, and the Gainsborough and Hull steam packets call here on Tuesdays and Fridays. The present church of All Saints is a very plain edifice of stone, erected in the year 1789: it is proposed to erect another church on the same site, and plans have been prepared by C. Hodgson Fowler esq. of Durham: the new church, estimated to cost £1,500, will be of the simple Late Decorated style with a wooden belfry and lead-covered spire: the chancel, screen and ancient font will be removed to the new building. The register dates from the year 1573. The living is a rectory united with the vicarage of Burton-upon-Stathern, joint gross yearly value £750, in the gift of Sir R. Sheffield bart. and held since 1882 by the Rev. Francis Amcotts Jarvis M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge and Wells Theological College J.P. There are 11 acres of glebe and a corn rent in lieu of tithes. A new rectory house has lately (1884) been built by the present rector, and is occupied by the Rev. Arthur Hutchinson Lamb M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, curate. About half a mile from the village traces of an old church and the moat of a hall are still visible, formerly, it is believed, the seat of the Anderson family: this place is believed to have been the birth-place of Sir Edmund Anderson, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; he died in 1605, and was interred in the church in the neighbouring village of Broughton. The place was formerly a Roman settlement. Sir Robert Sheffield bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loam, clay, sand and warp; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips, potatoes and beans, and some land is in pasture. The area of the parish is 2,650 acres; rateable value, £2,517 5s.; the population in 1881 was—of the township, 229; of the parish 245.

CROSBY is a township, partly in Flixborough, but principally in Frodingham parish, and will be found under a separate heading.

FOSDYKE is a scattered parish, in the Southern division of the county, Kirton wapentake, parts of Holland, Boston union and county court district, rural deanery of North Holland No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles north-west from Holbeach, 2 east from Algarkirk station, 99 from London and 8½ south from Boston, bounded on the south by the river Welland and east by the Wash. The church of All Saints was erected in 1871-2 on the old site, at the sole cost of the late Rev. Basil Beridge M.A. then rector of Algarkirk: the main body of the structure is in red brick with stone facings, in the Early English style: it has chancel, nave, aisles, tower and tall spire: the chancel window is richly stained; in the interior is an ancient carved stone font with carved cover: the church is situated in a commanding situation. The register dates from the year 1630. The living is consolidated with the rectory of Algarkirk, gross joint yearly value £2,000, in the gift of and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Beridge Sparrow M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge; the Rev. Edward Singleton B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, is the curate-in-charge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Sir Thomas Middlecott's almshouse, founded 100 years, is for the poor of this parish and Algarkirk, and is endowed with 98 acres, producing £204 yearly: the building will hold 12 inmates of both sexes, each of whom receives about £15 yearly. Charities left by various donors and producing £70 yearly are distributed. Here is a coastguard station. The principal landowners are the representatives of the late Rev. Basil Beridge, William Bett, Samuel Smeeton and William Munton Lawrance esqrs. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans and potatoes. The area is 1,101 acres of land and 755 of water; rateable value, £2,759; the population in 1881 was 477. By a Local Government Board order, dated December 24th, 1880, Fos-

FOSTON is a parish and village, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Loveden wapentake, Newark union, Spittlegate petty sessional division, Grantham county court district, rural deanery of North Grantham, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles west-by-south from Hougham station and 3 north from Sedgebrook station and 6 north-west from Grantham, on the road from Grantham to Newark. The church of St. Peter is an ancient structure in the Norman and Perpendicular styles, having chancel with south chapel, nave, porch, aisles and a tower surmounted by four pinnacles and containing 3 bells: in 1858 the north side of the church was rebuilt, a porch added, the interior re-seated and a new pulpit set up. There are sittings for 300 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1623 to 1799, and that of marriages till 1766 is included in those of Long Bennington: the separate registers of this parish begin from these dates. The living is a chapelry annexed to the vicarage of Bennington, joint net yearly value £356, including corn rent £349, glebe and residence, but subject to a pension of £120 to the late vicar, in the gift of the Duchy of Lancaster, and held since 1878 by the Rev. William Barker, of King's College, London, who resides at Long Bennington. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Andrew Macdonald Grote esq. is lord of the manor. The Earl of Dysart is the principal landowner, but there are several freeholders. The soil is a strong loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans and oats. The area is 2,180 acres; rateable value, £2,941; the population in 1881 was 357.

FOTHERBY is a village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, wapentake of Ludborough, union and county court district of Louth, rural deanery of Louth Esk and Ludborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles north from Louth, and situated on the road from Louth to Great Grimsby. The East Lincolnshire railway passes through the parish. The church of St. Mary, entirely rebuilt in 1863, under the direction of Mr. James Fowler, of Louth, is an edifice of dressed chalk, with dressings of freestone and other portions of green sandstone, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower, with broach spire, containing 3 bells, all cast in 1608, and bearing rhymed inscriptions: the interior walls are lined with the best faced red brick and stone bands, and there is a very effective altar-screen of plain and glazed tiles: the stone pulpit was given by Henry Isaac Fotherby esq. M.D. of 3 Finsbury square, London, in memory of his wife: the chancel was restored at the cost of the late Mr. Everitt Allenby, of Glenmore House, Surbiton, Surrey, then lay impropriator. The register dates from 1568, but the earlier portion is barely eligible. The register of Brackenborough is included with that of Fotherby. The living is a discharged vicarage, consolidated with Brackenborough, joint yearly value £110 including 77 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, by whom it is vendible, under the Augmentation of Benefices Act, and held since 1857 by the Rev. Thomas Jacob Freeth M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, and senior LL.D. of the University of London. The inhabitants of Brackenborough, which has no church, use that of Fotherby. Here are places of worship for Wesleyan, Primitive and Free Methodists. There is a charity of £250 left by the will of the late Everitt Allenby esq. who died in 1868, the interest of which is laid out in coals and flannel; this £250 is now invested in £260 11s. £3 per Cents. in the names of the vicar and Mr. Joseph Bratley, churchwarden. Six almshouses were erected in 1866 on the site of the old glebe house by the late Everitt Allenby esq.: they are for six poor people, who receive nine shillings weekly from an endowment left by the above; they also receive beef, flour and coals, from the interest on endowment left by the late John Allenby esq. The view from the top of the wold towards the east, disclosing the German Ocean, the Humber, the Middle Marsh, the Yorkshire coast abutting on the Humber, the Spurn Light and the Grimsby Tower, is very fine. Mrs. Hall, wife of the Rev. E. Hall, of Myland Rectory, near Colchester, is a lady of the manor. Miss Gertrude Allenby, a minor, of Louth, is also said to be a lady of another manor in this parish. The trustees of the late Everitt Allenby, John Lewis ffytche M.A., D.L., J.P. and J. S. Foster esqrs. and the vicars of Fotherby, Little Grimsby and North Elkington are the principal landowners. Part of the soil is clayey and loamy, and part chalky; the subsoil is clay, gravel and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips, seeds and beans. The area is 1,400 acres; rateable value, £1,920; the population in 1881 was 237.

deanery and diocese of Lincoln, 1 mile north-east from Kirton station to the church, 3¼ miles south from Boston and 104 from London. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south transept, south porch and a tower of Early English date, with lofty broach spire and containing 5 bells, four of which date from 1620 and the fifth from 1801: the chancel is Decorated, and has two windows of that style; and a very beautiful doorway, with crocketed wood moulding in the south wall, and on the opposite side another, now leading to the vestry, and near it a richly carved sepulchral recess, enclosing a slab, from which a canopied brass with the figure of an ecclesiastic has been removed; one sedile remains, and a lofty screen of Perpendicular date spans the chancel arch: there is also now in the chancel, but formerly in the south transept, a stone recumbent effigy of a civilian, of the fourteenth century; in the transept opposite wall statue brackets and traces of altars remain: the aisle arcades are Early Decorated and have lofty shafted piers: the coeval oak roof is simply, but very substantially, constructed, and is supported in part on bold stone corbels: the font is an interesting example of the Early English style, arcaded and enriched with the nail-head ornament: on the buttress of the north-east angle of the north aisle is a grotesque head and below the following singular inscription: "Wot ye whi I stond her for, I forswor my fath; Ego Ricardus in Angulo." The register dates from the year 1538 and is in good preservation. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value £109, in the gift of and held since 1878 by the Rev. Irvin Thorold Eller B.A. of Trinity College, Oxford. St. Michael's, situated near the road leading to Kirton Holme, at the west end of the parish and about 1½ miles west of the parish church, licensed as a chapel of ease, but unconsecrated, was erected in 1863, from designs by Mr. James Fowler, of Louth, and is a building of Ancaster stone, lined within with brick and terra cotta, in the Early English style and consists of chancel with semi-octangular apse, nave, south porch, vestry and a bell turret with spirelet: there are five stained windows: the pulpit is of Caen stone and the other principal fittings of oak. There is a Wesleyan chapel seating 200. There are 92A. 3R. 17P. of charity land, producing a rental of £234 14s. 6d. which is expended in coals, money and schools for the benefit of the poor inhabitants. Frampton Hall, the seat of Col. Charles Thomas John Tunnard-Moore J.P., D.L., F.S.A. is an ancient mansion, erected by his ancestor, Coney Tunnard, about the reign of Queen Anne; it is situated in a well-wooded park, with extensive pleasure grounds. Frampton House, the residence of Charles Thomas Tunnard esq. J.P. is a square red brick mansion, situated about one mile west from the church, and is surrounded by pleasure grounds. The lords of the manors are—Lord Willoughby de Broke, of Stoue Hale; Rev. H. G. Jebb, of Earls Hall; and Magdalen College, Oxford, of Multon Hall. The principal landowners are Col. Charles Thomas John Tunnard-Moore D.L., J.P. Lord Willoughby de Broke, Magdalen College, Oxford, and a few smaller owners. The Tunnard family have been seated here for many generations. The soil is a rich loam; subsoil, loam and clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, potatoes with a great portion of excellent feeding pasture land. About 1,000 acres of land have been enclosed from the sea by a bank extending three miles in length. The area is 5,189 acres of land, including 1,301 acres of the Fen allotments, which lie from 6 to 12 miles north-west of the church, and 1,700 of water; rateable value, £9,279; the population in 1881 was 886.

FREISTON (or FRIESTON) is a parish and village near the sea, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Skirbeck, parts of Holland, Boston union and county court district, rural deanery of North Holland No. 2, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles east from Boston. Butterwick and parts of Leake and West Fen civil parishes are ecclesiastically annexed to this parish. The church of St. James, formerly attached to the priory founded here by Alan de Creon, is a large and ancient structure of stone, in the Norman, Early English and Later styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles and a western tower containing 5 bells: the chancel and roof were restored in 1763, an organ erected in 1869 and the entire church restored in 1871: it was originally cruciform, with a central tower, the western part of which remains at the east end of the church, and transepts: the present fine clerestory has eight windows on either side, with a Norman corbel table and an embattled parapet, with roof of the same date; the tower is similarly finished and had once 8 pinnacles: the octagonal font, a work of the Perpendicular period, has an elaborately carved spiral cover, surmounted by a little figure of the Virgin crowned: the fine Perpendicular oak screen once in this church may now be seen, in a mutilated condition, in Fishtoft church, to which it was sold: there is an oak chest in the vestry, dated 1590, brasses in the north aisle, 1607: over the west window is a niche with projecting canopy, containing a figure of St. James: there are some stained windows. The register dates from the year 1681. The living is a discharged vicarage, united with that of Butterwick in 1751, joint yearly value £270, in the gift of the Rev. Henry Linton M.A. of Oxford, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Samuel Staffurth M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, J.P. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here. The charities produce £150 yearly for distribution in the united parishes. The priory of St. James, founded here after 1114 by Alan de Creon or the Crown, Dapifer of Henry I. for monks of the Benedictine order, was valued at the Dissolution at £165 10s. 9d.; after being long held by the Crown, it was granted in 1687 to the Dryden family, and is now the residence of the Rev. Samuel Staffurth M.A., J.P. Henry Rogers esq. is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Colonel Linton and Thomas Plummer. The soil is light and rich; subsoil, sandy. The chief crops are wheat and potatoes, with a good deal of pasturage. The area is 2,961 acres, and rateable value, £4,250; the population in 1881 was 1,106 of the civil parish, and 1867 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By a Local Government provisional order, dated December 14th, 1880, and confirmed by the Act Vic. 44 c. xvii. Freiston fen allotment was transferred to the new parish of West Fen.

HALLTOFT END is about 1 mile north of the church and Crane End about 1 mile south.

FREISTON SHORE, 1½ miles south from the church, is a sea-bathing place, formerly much frequented by invalids during the summer months, and has two good hotels. Plummer's Hotel, facing the sea, commands in the distance views of Sandringham Hall and Hunstanton, on the Norfolk coast. The Marine Hotel also faces the sea. Soles, shrimps, sprats and shell-fish are taken off this coast.

Parish Clerk, Ealey Wydell.

FRIESTHORPE is a parish, in the Mid division of the county, wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, union of Lincoln, Market Rasen county court district, rural deanery of Lawress No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles south-south-west from Market Rasen, and one mile north-west from the Wickenby station of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway. The church of St. Peter is a stone building, rebuilt 1841, except the tower, which is old; it consists of chancel, nave, and western tower, with 3 bells. The register dates from the year 1620. The living is a discharged rectory, annexed to Snarford rectory, joint gross yearly value £357, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1875 by the Rev. John Charles Kitching Saunders M.A. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford. E. R. C. Cust esq. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, peas and beans. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The area is 586 acres; rateable value, £651; the population in 1881 was 61.

FRISKNEY is a village widely scattered, and extensive parish on the sea coast, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of Candleshoe wapentake, Spilsby union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Candleshoe No. 2, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 14 miles north-east from Boston, 4 from the Eastville station of the East Lincolnshire railway, 4 south-west from Wainfleet station, on the Skegness branch line and 120 from London. The church of All Saints is an ancient fabric of the Early Norman, Early English, and later periods, consisting of spacious chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, south porch, and a western embattled tower containing 5 bells and a clock: of the twelfth century church, nothing now remains but the lower part of the tower, some fragments of Early Norman capitals, and two arches of the same date embedded in the north aisle wall: to the Early English period belongs the middle portion of the tower, and the doorway of the north aisle; the remainder of the building was erected in the fifteenth century: in 1847 the chancel was restored by the daughter of the Rev. Edward Booth, formerly lay impropriator, and the east window reopened: the whole church was restored in 1879, under the direction of Mr. W. Butterfield, architect, at a cost of more than £3,500, when the aisles and south porch were rebuilt, the tower arch opened, new flooring laid down, the doors renewed in oak, with hammered iron work, and the chancel refitted at the cost of Lieut.-Col. J. C. Salkeld D.L., J.P., F.R.G.S.: a dossal, designed by the architect, was presented by Mrs. Giles Alington, and Mrs. C. Booth, candlesticks by Lord Rodney, vases by Col. Smyth, and the communion cloth by Mrs. Herbert Booth, and a handsome lectern was presented by the pupils of the present vicar: some very interesting mural paintings have been brought to light by the present vicar (the Rev. H. J. Cheales): they extend along the clerestories on each side of the nave, filling the spaces contained in the spandrels of the arcade: the subjects (as far as they have yet been discovered) are the "Nativity," the "Ascension," the "Assumption of the Blessed Virgin," the "Last Supper," and the "Gathering of the Manna"; in the south wall of the chancel are three finely sculptured stalls and a piscina: the font is old, and there is a richly carved pulpit, date 1659: the churchyard was also enlarged in 1879, by the removal of some old cottages, and in the new wall enclosing it are placed fragments of coffin slabs, and of a cross of the twelfth or thirteenth century. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £760 with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Rev. T. W. Booth M.A. and held since 1869 by the Rev. Henry John Cheales M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and rural dean of Candleshoe No. 1 and 2. There are two Wesleyan chapels here, one of which was built in 1804 and enlarged in 1820. The charities amount to about £112 yearly, of these the most important are 40 acres of parochial land, producing £70 yearly, applied to educational purposes, and £500 left by the late Rev. Henry Butler Pacey, and invested in government funds, producing £20 yearly, which is distributed to the poor in coals. Shaw's charity, consisting of 4 cottages, produces £7 10s. which is distributed to widows and sick poor on Plough Monday: the National school receives upwards of £100 per year from the charities, and £20 is distributed in fuel yearly. Bricks are made here, and large quantities of shrimps and cockles are caught. In the early part of the present century a large proportion of the land in this parish consisted of swamp, when there were decoys for the catching of wild fowl, but by an act for embanking, enclosing, and draining the lands in the parish, passed 27th May, 1809, 620 acres were rescued from the sea, 813 acres of fen land enclosed, and 137 acres of common brought under cultivation. The site of an old religious house, connected no doubt with Bolington priory, is still discernible at a spot called the "Abbey hills," about half a mile west of the church, between which and the monastic building a causeway ran in nearly a straight line. Charles Thomas Samuel Birch-Reynardson esq. D.L. of Holywell Hall, Stamford, is lord of the manor, as lessee under the Duchy of Lancaster. Rev. Henry Gladwyn Jebb M.A., F.S.A. of Firbeck Hall, Rotherham; the Rev. Vernon Avery Jebb and Robert Hammond, and trustees of the late Rev. H. B. Pacey D.D. are the chief landowners. The soil is loam and sand; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, potatoes and beans. The area is 7,003 acres of land and 6,080 of water; rateable value, £10,190 12s.; the population in 1881 was 1,477.

Parish Clerk, John Wakelin.

FRODINGHAM is a parish, village, township and station, on the Trent and Ancholme railway, 9 miles west-north-west from Brigg, pleasantly situated on a bold declivity overlooking the vale of the Trent: the parish includes BROMBY, SCUNTHORPE, and parts of CROSBY and GUNHOUSE townships, in the northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, east division of Manley wapentake, Glanford Brigg union, Brigg county court district, petty sessional division of Winterton, rural deanery of Manlake, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln. The church of St. Lawrence is a stone building, in the Transitional style, consisting of a chancel, nave and aisles: the tower is battlemented and square, and stands at the west end and contains 3 bells: it was rebuilt (with the exception of the tower) in 1841: the porch on the south side has some fine dog-toothed carving: the sacrarium was raised and paved with encaustic tiles and furnished with brass communion rails in 1883: it contains several memorials to the Healey family, and two stained windows were placed in the church, 1883, by Miss Healey, to the memory of her brother; several of the other windows are to the Healey family. The register dates from 1653. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £900, in the gift of Rowland Winn esq. M.P. and held since 1859 by the Rev. Edward Mitford Weigall M.A. late fellow of Pembroke College, Oxford. The poor widows of the parish have £3 annually, from £100 left by Thomas Williamson, in 1775. A large temperance hall was built 1871, in which is a reading room where the daily papers are taken in; there is also a library in connection with it; Joseph Cliff esq. J.P. is treasurer. Rowland Winn esq. M.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. Ironstone of excellent quality abounds in this parish, and is worked by Messrs. Cliff and R. Winn M.P. and supplied to the various furnaces for smelting. The soil is sand; subsoil, lime and sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and potatoes. The area of the entire parish is 5,770 acres: rateable value, £34,835 15s.; the population in 1871 was—of the township 577, of the parish 1,753; in 1881, of the former 1,633, and of the latter 4,270.

Parish Clerk, Joseph Bainton.

BROMBY township and village is one mile south from Frodingham. Here is a Wesleyan chapel; a new Wesleyan chapel was built in 1884. A cemetery, of 4 acres, for Frodingham and Bromby, was formed in 1884, at a cost of £2,000: the chapel and lodges were built in 1884, and the grounds laid out from plans by Messrs. Bellamy and Hardy, of Lincoln; it is under the control of a burial board of 7 members. Rowland Winn esq. M.P. is lord of the manor. The Earl Beauchamp is a large landowner. The population in 1881 was 203.

GUNHOUSE, a township partly in this parish and SCUNTHORPE, will be found under separate headings.

FULBECK is a village and parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Loveden wapentake, Newark union and county court district, rural deanery of Loveden, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 1½ miles north from Caythorpe and south from Leadenham stations on the Lincoln and Grantham branch of the Great Northern railway, 117 from London, 10 west-north-west from Sleaford, 11 north from Grantham and 11 east-south-east from Newark, situated on an acclivity called the "Cliff row," and extending eastward to the Roman road, Ermine street. The church of St. Nicholas is a handsome structure, in the Norman, Transitional, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with rich panelled battlements and eight crocketed pinnacles, and containing 6 bells and clock: the chancel retains piscina and sedilia, and the nave has a pinnacled clerestory: there are seven stained windows in the chancel and several others in the body of the church; most of which have been inserted at the expense of the Fane family: in the church are some monuments of the Fane family and a few others: also a very fine old Norman font, consisting of a cylinder standing on a square base, with a shaft at each angle and surrounded with intersecting arches. The register dates from 1565. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £470 yearly and 50 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lt.-Col Mildmay W. Willson, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Vere Francis Willson M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels here. The poor have charities amounting to £15 10s. yearly, arising from the rents of land left by Frances, Dowager Countess of Rutland, Sir Francis Fane and others. In the village is an ancient cross, which has been restored at the expense of the parish. Fulbeck Hall is the seat of Lieut.-Col. Henry Fane, in whose family it has been since the year 1632: Sir Henry Fane, who died 1840, was commander of the British forces in India, and was a descendant of the Earls of Westmorland: the mansion is spacious and beautifully situated, commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country: the grounds are tastefully laid out and shaded by some fine old trees. The principal landowners are Lieut.-Col. Fane, who is lord of the manor, Edward G. R. Fane esq. William Grinfield Lely esq. J.P. Lieut.-Col. John Reeve D.L., J.P. Lt.-Col. Mildmay W. Willson, of Rauceby hall, and Sir W. E. Welby-Gregory bart. D.L., J.P. The soil is a strong fine loam, heath and stiff clay; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, seeds and turnips. The area is 3,900 acres; rateable value, £6,014; the population in 1881 was 645.

FULLETBY is a parish and village, situate near the southern termination of the Wolds, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Hill hundred, Horncastle union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Hill No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 3½ miles north-east from Horncastle. The church of St. Andrew was rebuilt in 1705, and again restored in 1857, under the direction of Messrs. Maughan and Fowler, of Louth, when the chancel and porch were rebuilt, and the whole structure was new roofed and reseated: the original building was very plain, with aisles, and a western tower in which were 5 bells: the tower fell in 1799: the church, which is constructed of green sandstone, in the Early English style, now consists of chancel, nave and a belfry containing 2 bells: in the chancel is a sedile; this was restored at the same time as the other portions of the church: all the windows in the chancel, including the east window, of three lights, are stained: there are 130 sittings, 96 of which are free. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1750; marriages, 1756. The living is a rectory, yearly value £460, the gift of Frederick Charsley esq. of Iver, Bucks, with residence, and including 290 acres of glebe, and held since 1876 by the Rev. George Ernest Frewer M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. In 1849 six unbaked Roman urns were found in Mr. Robson's brickfields; they contained calcined bones, cinders, and in the bottom of one a Roman coin: in 1844 an entire urn was found near the same spot. Here are several barrows and tumuli. The Rev. R. Elmhirst, who is lord of the manor, Thomas Booth esq. Miss Elmhirst and Mr. George Green are the chief landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, white clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The parish contains 1,940 acres of land, two-thirds of which are arable, and the remainder pasture and meadow; rateable value, £2,067; the population in 1881 was 257.

miles from London. The church of St. Lawrence, rebuilt in 1868, at a cost of £500, raised by subscription, is a small building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave, and a turret containing 1 bell: there are effigies of a knight and lady, supposed to represent Robert de Hilton and his wife: there are sittings for 160 persons. The register dates from the year 1589. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £174 with residence, in the gift of Capt. Samuel Hynman Allenby J.P. of Tathwell, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Alexander Johnson. The lay rector has 230 acres, and the vicar 125 acres, allotted in lieu of tithes. Here are places of worship for Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists and Wesleyan Reformers. At the enclosure of the commons, in 1819, upwards of 4 acres of land were allotted to the overseers of the poor, and the rent, now amounting to £24, is applied in reduction of the parish rates. George Marmaduke Alington esq. D.L., J.P. of Swinhope, and James Banks Stanhope esq. D.L., J.P. of Revesby abbey, are lords of the manor; the later sold his estates here some years ago, but not his manorial rights. The ancient family of Marmion has estates here. The principal landowners are Capt. Samuel Hynman Allenby J.P. Jol Bourne, Alfred and Charles Campion, Thomas Motley, a John Topliss esqrs. The soil and subsoil are clay. The chi crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area 2,840 acres; rateable value, £3,717; the population in 18 was 565. FULSTOW is bounded on the east by the Lou navigation, where there is a small hamlet called FIRE BEACO partly in this and partly in Marshchapel parish.

GAINSBOROUGH.

GAINSBOROUGH is a parish and market town, giving name to a petty sessional division, a county court district and poor law union, situated in a valley on the eastern bank of the river Trent, which here separates this county from Nottinghamshire: it is a polling place for the Northern division of the county, in the wapentake of Corringham, parts of Lindsey, diocese of Lincoln, archdeaconry of Stow, and rural deanery of Corringham, 15½ miles north-west-by north from Lincoln per Great Northern railway, 21 from Doncaster, 35 south-west from Hull, 35½ from Grimsby, 39 from Nottingham, and 144 from London. The Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, and the Great Northern railway, have each a station here: the latter railway has the direct route to Lincoln; the station is situate one mile south from the town, on the loop line which joins the main line at Doncaster and Peterborough. The Trent is crossed by a handsome stone toll-bridge of three arches, erected in 1791.

In 868 Alfred the Great celebrated at this place his marriage with Ealswitha, the daughter of Ethelred, chief of the Ganii, and here the Danes in 1013 landed, under the command of their king Sweyn, and commenced their devastations, which terminated in the subjection of the kingdom. Historians differ as to the place and manner of Sweyn's death, some thinking it occurred at Thetford; but it seems more probable that it happened at Gainsborough. A tumulus, near the remains of an ancient encampment adjoining the town, called the Castle Hills, is supposed to be the tomb of Sweyn, whose encampment was known to be at Thonock, immediately adjacent.

Early in 1643, at the commencement of the war between Charles I. and the Parliament, the town was placed by the King under the government of the Earl of Kingston: on the 16th July the town was surprised and captured by Lord Willoughby; and the Earl of Kingston, having been made a prisoner, was accidentally killed by a party of Royalists firing into the vessel in which he was being conveyed down the Trent to Hull: two days after, an unsuccessful attempt was made by Lieut.-General King, governor of Newark, who had been reinforced by a body of dragoons under Lieut.-Gen. Cavendish, to regain possession, and early on the morning of the 28th July the besieging forces were routed by a detachment of troops under the command of Cromwell (then a colonel in the Parliamentary army), Cavendish, who had become entangled in a quagmire, being amongst the killed; owing to the unexpected appearance of the Duke of Newcastle with a strong force, Cromwell was in return obliged to retreat, with some loss, towards Lincol abandoning the baggage, arms and ammunition, and Lo Willoughby was compelled to surrender the town to t Royalists, in whose possession, with Col. St. George governor, it continued until the 21st December, when it w stormed and taken by the Parliamentary forces under S John Meldrum, aided by a number of armed pinnaces the river, commanded by Sir John Constable, and Sir Jo Meldrum, after its capture, was constituted governor, a the inhabitants were heavily taxed for the maintenance the war.

The Burgess Constable was formerly the first civil a thority: the duties were probably formerly more extensiv being at present nominal, except so far as the calling as presiding at public meetings is concerned.

The town is under the management of a Local Board Health of twelve members, who have the control of th paving, lighting and sanitary arrangements. The stree are well paved and lighted with gas supplied by a privat company: the Gas Works are in Church street. The tow has an excellent water supply from works purchased in 187 from a private company by the Local Board, at a cost about £11,000.

The church of All Saints was founded and endowed by th Knights Templars in 1209, but between the years 1740-5 the whole structure, with the exception of the tower, wa taken down and rebuilt in the Classic style, at a cost £5,230, raised by a parochial assessment and by a duty o coals brought to the town, levied pursuant to the Act fo rebuilding the church; it consists now of an apsidal chancel with nave forming an unbroken parallelogram, of th Tuscan order, the side walls being relieved by seven pilaster supporting an entablature and balustraded parapet, and lighted by a double range of windows; the interior is fa better than the exterior, and the Corinthian pillars betwee the body of the building and the aisles, and the vaulte ceiling, are fine features: the embattled tower, of Late Perpendicular date, and formerly surmounted by a lofty spire, is about 90 feet high, surmounted by eight elegant pinnacles, and contains 8 bells; in 1864 the church was remodelled internally, the galleries being lowered and entirely re-seated with open seats thrown back, and the nave renovated; the chancel was also re-seated with open benches, and paved with encaustic tiles, the expense being defrayed by subscriptions raised in the town: in 1869, it was raised two steps, fitted with richly carved oak stalls these with other alterations were effected under the direction of Mr. W. White F.S.A. architect, at a cost of about £500, and the chancel was re-opened on July 15, 1869, by the bishop of the diocese: in 1871 a new oak screen and pulpit, from designs by Mr. John Pearson R.A., F.S.A. of London, were set up, and the chancel lengthened into the nave; it was further decorated in 1875-6, at a cost of £140, raised by subscription: in the centre of the apse and serving as an altar-piece, is a well-executed Florentine copy of Leonardo da Vinci's celebrated painting of the Last Supper: there are several stained windows, one of which in the Thonock choir is a memorial to Sir Hickman Bacon, bart.; the pulpit is a somewhat elaborate structure of stone, Devonshire marble, and gilt iron scroll work: the eagle lectern is elaborately carved in oak; the church will seat 1,100 people: the bells were re-fitted and re-hung, and the 6th and 7th were re-cast by Messrs. Taylor of Loughborough, at a cost of £200, on the 18th of April, 1883. The register dates from October, 1564. The living is a vicarage, the gross value of which is about £500, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1874 by the Rev. William John Williams M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, who is also Prebendary of Corringham, in Lincoln Cathedral, and rural dean.

Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed from the civil parish of All Saints in 1843; the church, situate in Trinity street, is a cruciform stone edifice, consisting of chancel with organ, transepts, nave, western gallery, and a lofty square tower, with an octagonal spire rising from the intersection: the church was erected at the above date; cost, upwards of £3,000: in 1864 the east end of the church was enlarged, and the chancel extended, by subscription: there are several memorial stained lancets: the church is seated with open benches to hold 900. The register dates from the year 1843. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £340, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1867 by the Rev. George Langton Hodgkinson M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford, who is also Prebendary of "Decem Librarum," in Lincoln Cathedral.

St. John the Divine is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1882; the church which has been built to meet the requirements of that part of the town known as "New Gainsborough," was opened for public worship on Thursday, the 4th of May, 1882: the present church forms only a small part of the chancel and nave of what, when completed, will be a magnificent cathedral, consisting of a nave six bays in length, with north and south aisles, a chancel of two bays, with north and south aisles and sanctuary; preparation is also made for a western tower: the vestries will stand at the east end of the north aisle of the chancel: the total length of the nave is 113 feet divided into 6 bays, with a width of 30 feet in the clear: the nave arcade is surmounted by a clerestory of two-light windows in each bay, the total height to the wall plate being 51 feet: the aisles of 33 feet in height, and 17 feet 6 inches in width are covered with a flat roof of the fifteenth century type; the nave with a pitched roof, boarded and panelled, with moulded ribs: the chancel and nave are of the same internal section, not separated by a chancel arch: the roof-truss, taking the place of the chancel arch, is more richly decorated than the trusses of the nave roof: the clerestory is continuous throughout the length of the church, having two-light windows, with tracery in the heads: the sill of the east window is raised 27 feet above the floor-line, and has seven lights with flowing tracery in the heads: the total internal length of the church will be, without the tower, 169 feet, viz., 113 feet in the nave, and 56 feet in the chancel; the height, to the ridge of roof, internally, about 70 feet: the columns, arcades, and all other stone-work are of Ancaster stone: a passage is arranged at the level of the clerestory string, 33 feet 9 inches from the floor, to give access to the windows: this is also carried across the sill of the east windows: externally the church is built of red brick, with Ancaster dressings. The work now commenced consists of three bays of the nave, and the whole length of the chancel up to the clerestory string, the arcades being filled in with temporary walls. The builder is Mr. Johnson, of Doncaster. The architects are Mr. Somers Clarke, jun. and Mr. J. T. Micklewaite, of 6, Delahay street, S.W. The sculptor is Mr. W. S. Gillman, of Intake road, Sheffield. The register dates from the year 1882. The living is a vicarage in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, yearly value £110, and held by the Rev. Charles Edward Laing.

The Catholic church, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, situate in Cross street, was erected in 1866, at a cost of about £1,250 (exclusive of land purchase money), the expense being defrayed by Thomas Arthur Young esq. of Middle Rasen: it is a Gothic structure of red brick, and has residence for the officiating priest annexed.

The Convent of the Sisters of Mercy is in Spital terrace: it was formerly the Old Rectory of Gainsborough; attached to the Convent is an iron church, erected by Mr. Humphreys, of London.

Here are Wesleyan, Baptist, Congregational, Primitive and Free Methodist, and Unitarian chapels; also a meeting-house belonging to the Society of Friends, with a burial ground attached.

In 1874 the Burial Board, which consists of 9 members, purchased 3A. 1R. of land (cost £650) at the east side of the town, the site being known as Cox's hill, to form a public cemetery: about an acre of the land has been consecrated, and a portion of it reserved for the interment of those from whom the land was purchased and their successors: there is an acre allotted for Nonconformists, also a portion for Catholics: two mortuary chapels have been erected, and a cemetery lodge, with a room for the use of the Board; both buildings are of white brick: the cost of erecting the cemetery house and mortuary chapels, and draining, laying out, and enclosing the ground, was £2,350.

Here is a Grammar School, constituted by a charter of Queen Elizabeth in the year 1589: the building was erected by tontine about 1805, and is under the direction of twelve governors, by whom the head master is appointed: the school has no endowment (save that mentioned below), the charter merely empowering the governors to receive endowment. The object is to provide a sound practical education for the middle classes. The school-house, with house for head master attached, is a brick building, standing in its own grounds, at the east end of the town: a portion of the grounds belonging to the school was taken by the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway Company for the construction of their line, and the compensation paid by the company was invested by the governors in lands, now producing about £40 yearly, which sum forms an endowment, and is applied in augmenting the salaries of the masters.

There are schools for boys, girls and infants in both parishes in connexion with the Church of England, which are supported by voluntary contributions, the managing trustees being appointed by the deed of trust, which is dated 1872.

There are also large Wesleyan day and Sunday schools, and Sunday schools for the Primitive Methodists and Congregationalists.

The Town Hall is a plain brick building with clock tower, situated in the Market place. Vestry meetings and meetings on town business are generally held here, by permission of the lord of the manor, to whom the building belongs. Mounted on a carriage in the centre of the Market place is a Russian gun.

The police station is in Spring gardens. Here are held weekly the petty sessions, and special sessions. The police staff is composed of superintendent, sergeants and thirty constables. One superintendent, one inspector, and two sergeants, and seven constables are stationed at Gainsborough, and there is a constable at each of the following places:— Morton, Marton, Corringham, Willoughton, Scottar, East Stockwith, and there is a sergeant at Kirton-Lindsey.

The Gainsborough Working Men's Club, founded in 1870, is held in a large house: it is a flourishing institution, and has a reading-room well supplied with newspapers and periodicals: also a bagatelle and smoking room, besides a room for refreshments in Bridge street.

The Temperance Hall, erected by subscription in 1871, at a cost of £1,500, is a substantial red brick building, situate in Spital terrace: it is a commodious and well-arranged structure, and has two large rooms, one of which, the Hall, will seat 750 people; it has a gallery, also a stage with retiring rooms, to which a private entrance gives access: at the front of the building, over the principal entrance, is a lecture room (wherein the Good Templars hold their meetings), capable of accommodating 750 people: during the winter session courses of lectures are given in the Hall: it is also for general public meetings, musical and other entertainments.

There is a Savings Bank in Beaumont street, established in 1819, conducted by trustees and managers.

The Dispensary, situate in Church lane, was founded in the year 1828: it is under a committee of management, and is supported by members' contributions, and partly by annual subscriptions. In 1872 this establishment was remodelled, and is now on the basis of a Provident Dispensary; the average number of patients are about 5,000 yearly; the members having the advantage of the choice of medical men in the town.

There are various charities, producing £200 yearly, for distribution in money and kind, the most important being Wharton's, Mott's, Sandars, John Smith's, Wilberfoss', Heaton's & Cox's.

Although the carrying trade by vessels formerly existing at Gainsborough has been affected by the greater facilities offered by railways, Gainsborough still has, besides the river traffic, a considerable coasting trade. In October, 1840, Gainsborough was constituted by the Lords of the Treasury a port for the importation and warehousing of foreign goods: the first two foreign vessels consigned direct to the port, arrived in April, 1841, from Bordeaux, but a few years ago the privilege of Gainsborough as a port was annulled and the Custom house there closed. Vessels drawing from twelve to thirteen feet of water can lie and discharge alongside the wharfs at the town. The "Eagre" (or Ægir) a tidal wave (or bore) from the mouth of the Trent, rising to the height of several feet at spring tides on the surface of the river, passes considerably above Gainsborough bridge: on account of the obstructions it meets with before reaching Gainsborough, the Eagre is there diminished in size, but a few miles below the town has a fine appearance when rolling in a mass up the river. The steamers belonging to the Gainsborough United Steam Packet Company run daily from Gainsborough to Hull, calling at the various ferries on the river Trent. There are extensive malt-kilns, and the seed-crushing business is carried on very largely here. Vessels of considerable burden have been launched from the shipyards, and in 1864 two fine iron screw steamers, the "Lincolnshire" and "Yorkshire," built for the trade between Hull and the Baltic, were constructed and launched at this place; but the business is at present confined to the construction and repair of vessels of a class suitable to the trade of the place. There are brass and iron foundries; and an extensive steam boiler, engine, and agricultural implement manufactory, known as the "Britannia Works," giving employment to about 2,000 hands, is carried on by the firm of Marshall, Sons & Co. Limited. There is also the firm of Farmer, Robey, Brown & Co. Limited, who carry on extensive engineering works; together with breweries and malt-kilns.

The market is on Tuesday. There are two fairs, or marts, one commencing on Easter Monday, and the other on the Tuesday following the 20th October, unless the 20th October itself falls upon Tuesday, in which event the mart commences upon the 20th. The legal duration (according to the charter) of each mart is nine days, but the actual business of the fair is transacted on the first two or three days, in which the horse, sheep, cattle, and cheese fairs are held. A cattle market was established in 1841, to be held every alternate Tuesday. There are two statutes for the hiring of servants held here annually: one is holden about the end of April or the beginning of May; this is termed the May Day Statute: the second is held in November, and is called the Michaelmas Statute.

Since 1871 numerous dwellings have been erected at the south-east of the town, called the New Town, and there are others now in course of construction.

The Old Hall or Manor House, a curious and interesting structure, is one of the most extensive and perfect examples of those ancient mansions which combined the castle with the dwelling house, and retains, almost in its original form, the shell of a baronial residence of the first class: the structure forms three sides of a quadrangle, occupying nearly half an acre of ground; and part of it is said to have been built by John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster; the western wing was erected by a member of the Burgh family, about 1490; and the eastern wing about 1600, by one of the Hickmans: it consists of a grand hall with butteries and kitchens, a staircase, and two wings, one containing the principal living rooms and the other the offices and sleeping apartments; it is principally constructed of large oak timber framing, and the back part of brick, but on the north side is a beautiful annexe of stone, in the Gothic style of the fifteenth century, probably originally intended as a chapel; and at the north-east end is a handsome brick tower, similar in character to that of Tattershall Castle; it is about 80 feet high, ascended by a winding stone staircase, and commands extensive views down the Trent, nearly to the junction with the Humber. The hall has undergone various vicissitudes, having been on one occasion lent to John Wesley to preach in during one of his migratory tours; and it has also served as a theatre. The Hickmans resided here until the beginning of the last century, when they bought Thonock of the Godfrey family, and the estates have since passed into the hands of the Bacons of Raveningham, Norfolk, in whose possession they remain. The building is now (1884) in course of restoration at the cost of the present lord of the manor, Sir Hickman Beckett Bacon bart. The lower portion of the east side is appropriated to the Literary and Scientific Institute, which has an excellent news room and billiard room for the use of subscribers, besides a library of about 5,000 volumes. Above the Institute is a spacious room, used as a ball room. There is also in the building the Stock Library, possessing about 600 volumes, belonging to a few private subscribers.

Gainsborough gives the title of Earl to the Noel family.

This was the birthplace of William de Gainsborough, the firm defender of the doctrine of the Pope's infallibility, who was advanced by Boniface VIII. to the see of Worcester, at which place he died in 1308. Simon Patrick, Bishop of Ely, was born here in 1626, as was also his brother, John Patrick, one of the translators of Plutarch.

Thonock Hall, the seat of Sir Hickman Beckett Bacon, premier baronet of England and lord of the manor, is a noble brick mansion, with porticos over the principal entrances: it is situate about 2 miles north-north-east from the town, and stands in a well-timbered park of about 500 acres: in the grounds is a very perfect Danish encampment.

The area of the parish is 7,210 acres (including Morton, East Stockwith and Walkerith); rateable value, £44,389; the population in 1881 was—of Gainsborough township, 10,979, which includes 173 officers and inmates in the workhouse; local board district, 10,873; of the entire parish, 12,307. The ecclesiastical parish of Holy Trinity contained a population in 1881 of 6,245.

WALKERITH is a township in the parish of Gainsborough, but included in the ecclesiastical parish of East Stockwith, which see. Morton will also be found under a separate heading.

GARTHORPE is a township and village, in the parish of Luddington, in the aisle of Axholme, Northern division of the county, western division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, and Goole union and county court district, situated near the river Trent, and on the old river Don, which here divides Lincolnshire from Yorkshire, 2 miles north-east from Luddington, 6 north from Keadby (the nearest railway station), 7 north-east from Crowle, and 12 south-east from Goole. The Hull and Gainsborough steamers pass on the Trent, over which there is a ferry to Burton. The inhabitants attend the parish church at Luddington. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels here. Worsop's charity consists of a charge upon property belonging to Miss Foster, of Goole, and amounts to £1 6s. per annum. Pocklington's charity is also a charge upon property owned by the same lady, and amounts to £1 4s. per annum, the total amount, viz. £2 10s. is distributed in bread to the poor of Garthorpe. Earl Manvers is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are A. Percy esq. Mrs. Dudding, Mr. A. Kelsey and Mr. W. Kelsey. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, sand and peat. The chief crops are wheat, potatoes and beans. The area is 1,367 acres; rateable value, £3,593; the population in 1881 was 529.

POST OFFICE.—John Butler, receiver. Letters through Goole arrive at 8 a.m. & dispatched at 4.25 p.m. The nearest money order office is at Luddington; the telegraph office at Crowle

GATE BURTON (or BURTON GATE) is a parish and small village near the navigable Trent, in the Mid division of the county, Well wapentake, parts of Lindsey, Gainsborough union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Lawress No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 4½ miles south-by-east from Gainsborough, one mile south from Lea station, and one mile north-west from Stow Park station on the Great Northern railway. The church of St. Helen, which has taken the place of a small edifice in the pseudo-Classic style, is a building of stone lined with brick, in the modern geometrical Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and tower containing 3 steel bells: it was erected in 1866, at a cost, including organ and bells, of £2,000, and chiefly at the expense of William Hutton esq. The register dates from the year 1613. The living is a rectory, yearly value £160, with 10A. OR. 17P. of glebe, in the gift of Lieut.-Col. George Morland Hutton, and held by the Rev. John Robert Underwood Elliott M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. Burton Hall, the seat of Lieut.-Col. George Morland Hutton J.P. lord of the manor and chief landowner, is a noble white brick mansion, pleasantly situated on an acclivity, commanding some fine views, in charming park-like grounds, near the eastern bank of the navigable river Trent The soil is sandy loam and clay; subsoil, clay. The land is worked on the four-course system, and there is much land used for grazing. The area is 1,108 acres; rateable value, £2,111; the population in 1881 was 97.

Parish Clerk, William Merrills.

GAUTBY is a parish, in the Mid division of the county, southern division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey, Horncastle union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Gartree, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 6½ miles west-north-west from Horncastle and 6 north-east from the Bardney station of the Great Northern railway. The church of All Saints, a small brick structure, consists of chancel, nave and square tower, with extremely disproportioned spire; there is 1 bell: in the chancel are several monuments to the Vyner family, one of which records the murder of Frederick G. Vyner esq. by brigands in Greece in 1870. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1571; marriages, 1755; other entries relating to this parish from 1695 to 1779 are incorporated with those of Baumber. The living is a rectory, yearly value £205, including 25 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor; the tithes have been commuted for a yearly rent-charge of £90, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Arthur Henry Cooper M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Moat House is occupied by Capt. Robert Charles Vyner during the shooting season. On an island in the middle of the fishpond is an equestrian statue, supposed to be Charles the First, represented as trampling on a prostrate foe. The principal landowners are Captain Robert Charles Vyner, lord of the manor, Richard Prior, and — Brown esqrs. The soil is clay; subsoil, same. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 1,444 acres; rateable value, £959: the population in 1881 was 100.

This parish is included in Minting United School Board District, formed in 1876, of 5 members; the children attend the school there

GAYTON-LE-MARSH is a village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of the hundred of Calceworth, union and county court district of Louth, rural deanery of Calceworth No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles north from Alford, 138 from London, 2½ north-east from Authorpe station, and about equidistant, say 2½ miles, from Claythorpe station on the East Lincolnshire Line and Grimoldby and Theddlethorpe stations on the Louth and East Coast Line, and 8 east-south-east from Lonth; the Withern Eau brook forms the eastern boundary of the parish. The church of St. George is a structure partly brick and partly stone, in the Early English style, consisting of a chancel, nave, with arcade of 3 bays, north aisle, south porch, and a square embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the body of the church was rebuilt and the tower restored in 1847, at a cost of about £670: the church has sittings for 201 persons, 79 of which are free: £70 was expended upon warming apparatus about 1879 and in 1873 a new organ was put into the church. The register dates from the year 1687. The living is a rectory, commuted at £457 10s. with residence and nearly 73 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1876 by the Rev. John Edward Alexander Inge B.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge: the rectory house is a handsome modern building. The Wesleyans have a place of worship here. At the enclosure 32 acres were allotted to the poor, which have since been put into the hands of the Charity Commissioners, who issued a scheme for the distribution of the rent by the trustees; half of the rent (about £28) is given for the support of the GAYTON-LE-WOLD is a small village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske, Louth union and county court district, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludborough No. 3, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles west-by-south from Louth and about 3 north from the Donington-upon-Bain station of the Louth and Lincoln railway. The church of St. Peter is a brick structure, with a small turret containing 1 bell: it is expected that a new church will be shortly built here. The register dates from the year 1777. The living is a discharged rectory, consolidated with the rectory of Biscathorpe, joint yearly value £400, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held by the Rev. Denis Prittie O'Connor M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, who resides at Biscathorpe. The Free Methodists and Wesleyans each have a chapel here: the former chapel was built 1854 and the latter 1869. The trustees of the late William Whitlam esq. are lord of the manor. The trustees of the late William Whitlam esq. Jabez Riggall and Thomas Rhodes esq. and the Rev. Dionysius Prittie O'Connor are the landowners. The soil is chalky; subsoil, chalk and white clay. The chief crops are turnips and barley. The area is 1,139 acres; rateable value, £1,307; the population in 1881 was 151.

GEDNEY is a parish and station on the Bourn and Lynn railway, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Holland, Elloe wapentake, Holbeach union and county court district, East Elloe rural deanery and Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese, 2½ miles west-by-north from Long Sutton and 3 east from Holbeach. The houses are scattered, some standing upon the high road, the greater number to the east of the church, and many in the fen and in the marshes of this extensive parish, which reaches to the shore of the Wash. The church of St. Mary is a fine and ancient structure, of the Earlier English, Late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, south porch, aisles, and a western tower 86 feet in height to the top of the parapet, crowned with a short octagonal spire and containing 5 large bells: the character of the church is due chiefly to its very handsome Perpendicular clerestory and excellently proportioned western tower, the lower part of which is the only portion of the original church of the Lancet period; the south porch has a parvise, reached by a turret stair, and in the chancel a low side-window of Late Perpendicular date; the south door is inscribed "Pax xti. sit hvic domvi et omnibvs habitantibvs in ea. hic reqvies nostra."; on the lock are the names of "Botware Bemrose," and "John Page Avysetn": in the north aisle is a mutilated altar tomb, on which is the broken cross-legged effigy of a knight of the thirteenth century, conjectured by Holler to represent Falco D'Oyry: there is also here an alabaster monument to Adlard Welby, 1570, and Cassandra (Aprice) his wife, 1590, and other monuments to five of their children: the chancel was new roofed about 1872, by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and is separated from the nave by a carved oak screen. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from tithe rent-charge £1,000, glebe, £1,040, including 14 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1857 by the Rev. George Rogers M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. John Boyfield Millington esq. resident at Boston some years, made a purchase of the Earl of Yarborough's moiety of the rectorial tithe of Gedney, and has since sold that property to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who have transferred it to the Dean and Chapter of Ely; during the period of his proprietary of tithe in Gedney he expended considerable sums in repairing and decorating the chancel. The rectorial tithe, amounting to about £1,148 a year, as well as the rectorial glebe of 105½ acres, is now wholly in the hands of the Dean and Chapter of Ely. Here is also a sinecure rectory, now the property of the Dean and Chapter of Ely. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels and a meeting-house for the Society of Friends. The Rev. James Bellamy D.D. president of St. John's College, Oxford, is lord of Abbot's manor and the manor of Pawlet; the Burgh Lion manor is held by R. Mossop esq. and there is also the manor of Welby: the Welbys left land and houses for the relief of the poor, as also did the Rev. Augustine Fish, formerly vicar of this parish; the proceeds are distributed yearly on St. Thomas' day and Good Friday, and are called "the dole"; the total amount is now about £60, but it originally exceeded £80 a year. Abbots manor belonged to Crowland Abbey and the Abbot had a mansion near the church. The principal landowners are the Crown, the Right Hon. Viscount Cardwell P.C., D.C.L. Charles Cardwell esq. Rev. James Bellamy D.D. Robert Bellamy Clifton esq. M.A. professor of experimental philosophy at Oxford and Thomas Somers Cocks esq. D.L. of Thames Bank, Great Marlow. The soil is a light loam; subsoil, silt. The chief crops are wheat, beans, peas, mustard and roots. The area of the parish is 12,377 acres in land and 12,880 acres of water; rateable value, £18,111; the population in 1881 was 2,228 in the parish and 1,884 in the township.

Church End, near the church; Broadgate, 1 mile south; Chapelgate, ½ mile east; Dawsmere, 5 north-east; Drove End, 5 north-east, on the Wash; and Gedney Dyke, 1½ north-by-east, are hamlets within the parish.

Parish Clerk, John Marshall.

Drove End, including Dawsmere, was made an ecclesiastical parish in 1856. Christ Church, built in 1870, is a small building of brick, in the Early English style, consisting of nave with apse and south porch. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1856; burials and marriages, 1870. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £350 with residence, in the gift of the Crown and the Bishop of Lincoln alternately, and held since 1871 by the Rev. George Frederick Hardman Foxton M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Services are held once every Sunday in an old Wesleyan chapel at Drove End, by the vicar of Christ Church. The area is 5,513 acres; the population in 1881 was 851.

GEDNEY HILL is a straggling village and hamlet in the Fens, on the Cambridgeshire borders of the country, 10 miles south from Holbeach, 13 to 14 south-east from Spalding, 14 north-east from Peterborough, 10 north-west from Wisbech and 104 from London by rail, in Gedney civil parish, Southern division of the county, parts of Holland, wapentake of Elloe, Holbeach union and county court district, rural deanery of South Holland, No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The French Drove railway station, on the March and Spalding line, is about one mile and a half south from the church. The Old South Holland drain skirts the parish on the south. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient structure, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower, 52 feet in height, containing 5 bells; the nave roof is supported by massive octagonal pillars of oak: it was thoroughly restored, and the chancel, nave, aisles and porch entirely rebuilt in 1875, at a cost of £1,840: a stained window was also placed in the chancel to the family of the vicar: during the restoration, the remains of two ancient doorways and an east window of the fourteenth century were found built up in the chancel walls: the churchyard is on high ground. The register dates from the year 1693; the dates are illegible previous to this. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £120, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1870 by the Rev. George Clark B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Here is a chapel for General Baptists. A fair is held on the second Monday in June. Miss Charinton is the principal landowner. The soil, part clay and part fine loam, is very rich and fertile; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, potatoes and beans. The area is 1,995 acres; rateable value, about £3,000; the population in 1881 was 328 in the ecclesiastical parish and 344 in the hamlet.

Parish Clerk, James Dixon.

GLENTHAM is a parish and village, in the Northern division of the county, eastern division of the wapentake of Aslacoe, parts of Lindsey, Caistor union, Market Rasen county court district, Aslacoe rural deanery, Stow archdeaconry, and diocese of Lincoln, 8 miles west from Market Rasen station and 12 east from Gainsborough, on the road from the former to the latter place. This parish is bounded on the east by the river Ancholme, which separates it from Kingerby, and was formerly navigable northward to the Humber. The church of St. Paul is a handsome Gothic edifice of stone, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, with south porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells: it was repaired in 1855, and has four stained windows. The register dates from the year 1690. The living is a vicarage (annexed to Normanby-by-Spital), gross yearly value £212, including 100 acres of glebe with residence, in the patronage and peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and held since 1858 by the Rev. John Fardell Bassett B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Here are a Wesleyan and a Primitive Methodist chapel. Near Glentham is a barrow. John Sharp esq. is lord of the manor. The principal landowner is Sir Hugh A. H. Cholmeley bart. D.L., J.P. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans, and much land is in pasture. The area is 2,704 acres; rateable value, £3,231; the population in 1881 was 410.

BISHOP BRIDGE is a small village and hamlet, 2 miles east: it is situated at the head of the Ancholme navigation, now fallen into disuse. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Part of the hamlet of SPITTAL is in this parish.

GLENTWORTH is a parish and picturesque village, situate at the western declivity of the cliffs, in the Northern division of the county, Western division of the wapentake of Aslacoe, parts of Lindsey, Gainsborough union and county court district, rural deanery of Aslacoe, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 154 miles from London, 11½ north-by-west from Lincoln, 10 east from Gainsborough, and 7 east from Lea station on the loop line of the Great Northern railway, which joins the main line at Doncaster and Peterborough. St Michael's church is an ancient stone fabric of the Norman and Early English periods, the nave being modern debased Classic work: the building consists of chancel, nave and a tower with plain parapet, containing 2 bells: the interior of the church was restored by the Rev. S. Sanderson in 1882: the tower, which dates from the first half of the eleventh century, has a Perpendicular window in its western front, and in the south wall of the chancel is an Early English doorway: the nave was rebuilt in 1782 by Archdeacon Illingworth: the communion table is Elizabethan, the work being very delicately and beautifully executed: against the north wall of the chancel stands a stately monument of alabaster and marbles to the memory of Sir Christopher Wray knt. Lord Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench in the reign of Elizabeth, ob. May 7, 1592: it bears a Latin inscription: in front of the marble base are the effigies of Sir Christopher's four daughters in a kneeling posture, and above is that of Ann Girlington, Lady Wray, in a recumbent position, with her hands upraised in prayer, whilst the head rests on two richly wrought pillows: above the effigy, within an arched recess, flanked by two Corinthian pillars, lies that of Sir Christopher, representing him in his judge's robes, with the collar of SS. cap and hat, and in the same posture as his wife: there is a richly ornamented panelled cove to the recess, above the cornice of which is another smaller one, like a doorway, in which appears the figure of Sir Christopher's eldest son, clad in armour, and kneeling before a faukl-stool, with the date 1592 cut upon the surmounting pediment; on either side of this are roundels, on which the Wray armorial bearings are emblazoned; there is some fine old ironwork, forming a screen in front of the monument, and opposite is another monument, erected to Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Wray bart. first grandson of Sir Christopher, and widow of the Hon. Nicholas Saunderson. The register dates from the year 1586, and up to 1690 is a transcript of an earlier volume. There are parish accounts dating from 1742. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £350, including 7 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Earl of Scarbrough, and held since 1876 by the Rev. John Sanderson M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Here is a place of worship for Free Methodists. Near the churchyard are almshouses for three poor women, founded by Lord Chief Justice Wray, to each of whom the Earl of Scarbrough allows £4 a year; there is also another almshouse for one poor man and two poor women, who each receive 13s. a quarter. Close to the village stands part of the ruins of the old mansion built by Sir Christopher Wray, and inhabited by himself and four generations of his descendants; a portion of the old fabric has, with additions, been converted into a farmhouse. The Earl of Scarbrough is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans, turnips and pasture. The area is 3,042A. OR. 34P.; rateable value, £3,197; the population in 1881 was 368.

BLYTH CLOSE, a fox cover, is half a mile north-west.

Parish Clerk, John Key.

LITTLE GONERBY, see GRANTHAM.

GOSBERTON is a parish and large village, and a station on the Spalding and Lincoln (Great Northern and Great Eastern joint) railway, in the Southern division of the county, wapentake of Kirton, parts of Holland, Spalding union and county court district, rural deanery of North Holland No. 1, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 2½ miles north-west from Surfleet station, 100 from London, 6 north-by-west from Spalding, and 4 south-east from Donington, situated on the road from Spalding to Donington. This parish comprises the hamlets of CHEAL, RIGBOLT, WESTTHORPE and part of RISEGATE, which stands on the navigable cut called Risegate Eau. The village is lighted with gas by a limited liability company. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a large, cruciform building of stone, chiefly in the Decorated style, consisting of nave and porches, with a tower and spire in the centre containing 5 bells, and surmounted by a richly crocketed spire: in 1866-7 the church was extensively repaired at a cost of about £3,000: the chancel was rebuilt and extended eastward, and the roofs of the nave and aisles renewed: the stained east window was the gift of Samuel Everard esq. and there are two others in the north aisle to members of the Dodd family: a new organ, purchased by subscription at a cost of £250, and choir seats were added to this church in 1882. The register (continuous) dates from the year 1656. The living is a discharged vicarage, with residence, gross yearly value £236 in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Sparks Bellett Sealy M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge. The Rev. G. F. Burnaby is impropriator of the rectorial tithes. The Wesleyans, Baptists and Free Methodists have each a chapel. The charities for distribution amount to £120 yearly, arising from grants of land left by sundry persons, and there are almshouses for 12 widows. Gosberton Public Hall was built by subscription in 1872, at a cost of nearly £1,000, on a site given by Earl Brownlow: the hall will seat about 350 persons, and is well adapted for concerts or meetings; there is a reading room and lodge room. Gosberton House, a modern building, is the seat of GOULCEBY, or GOULSBY, is a village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, North division of the wapentake of Gartree, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Horncastle, rural deanery of Horncastle, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 2 miles south from the Donington-on-Bain station of the Louth and Lincoln railway, 7 north from Horncastle and 7½ south-west from Louth. A bridge has been erected over the river Bain, which separates this parish from that of Ranby. The church of All Saints, is a plain structure built of brick and stone, with chancel, nave and turret containing 1 bell: the chancel was restored in 1855: it is proposed to erect a new church at a cost of about £1,500. The register dates from the year 1686. The living is a vicarage, yearly value about £200 including 72 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, and held by the Rev. Walter Tyrrell, of St. Bees. Here are chapels for Primitive and Free Methodists: the latter was built in 1854. The poor have an annual rent-charge of £2 10s. derived from the manor of Osterby, left by the late Anthony Acham, which is spent in bread and distributed once every two months. Major Bagnell is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Earl Manvers and the trustees of the late Mr. Robert Tomlinson. The land is sandy and loamy; subsoil, clay. The principal crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,124 acres; rateable value, £1,249; the population in 1881 was 250.

GOXHILL is a parish, extending to the Humber, and an irregularly built village, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, North division of Yarborough wapentake, Barton-upon-Humber county court district, union of Glanford Brigg, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 1, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles east from Barton and 2 south-east from New Holland. The Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway has a station here. The church of All Saints is an imposing edifice of stone, mainly of the fifteenth century, with some earlier portions, and consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north and south porches and a tower 72 feet in height with eight pinnacles, and containing 4 bells and a clock, placed at a cost of £120, raised by subscription: in the church is the cross-legged effigy of a knight in chain armour, covered with a long-flowing surcoat and bearing a mutilated shield: the church has been restored at a cost of £3,300, and was finished and reopened October, 1879, by the Right Rev. Edward Trollope, Suffragan Bishop of Nottingham: the plate is 200 years old, and consists of a paten and 2 chalices of silver and a flagon of pewter. There are sittings for 400 persons. The register dates from the year 1574. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £245, net £214, including 117 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Charles Hugh Hardingham B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The Rev. William Seed B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, is curate. Several of the Wentworth family are buried here, they having been lords of the manor, and there is an interesting monument on the chancel wall, to a brother and sister of that family, the sister having died of grief for her brother within a week, age 15 and 14. There are Calvinistic, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels here; also a Primitive Methodist at Goxhill Haven. In 1733 Richard Embrough left the interest of £20 for the education of two poor children: the poor widows of the parish receive £14 a year, being the rent of a plot of ground left by an unknown donor. On the north, about 2 miles from the village, is a ferry to Hull. George Bradley esq. of Castleford, in the county of York, is lord of the manor of Goxhill. The principal landowners are the Rev. Frederick Hildyard M.A. rector of Swanington, Norfolk, Horatio Samuel Hildyard esq. and the Corporation of the Trinity House. The soil is clay and marsh land. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 5,860 acres of land and 2,930 of water; rateable value, £8,242; the population in 1881 was 1,181, entirely agricultural, comprising a great number of small freeholders, scattered over more than 9 square miles.

At LITTLEWORTH, one mile south-east, are remains of a Cistercian nunnery, founded by William de Alta Ripa before 1185, and valued at the Dissolution at about £16 net: the site was granted in 30 Henry VIII. (1538-9) to Sir William Tyrwhitt: the remains of the fabric are now used as a dairy, by Mr. Robert Fulstow, whose house it adjoins.

GRAINSBY is a small village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, Louth union, county court district of Grimsby and rural deanery of Grimsby No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 3 miles north-west from North Thoresby station and 7 south from Grimsby. The church of St. Nicholas is a plain building of brick and stone, with an embattled Norman tower containing 3 bells: there is a stained window in the chancel, erected by the present rector in memory of his mother. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £269, gross yearly value £350 including 47 acres of glebe and a good rectory house, built in the year 1847, at a cost of £1,000, in the gift of Mrs. Sands, and held since 1844 by the Rev. Woodthorpe Johnson M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who is also vicar of Waithe. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, erected by Mrs. Sands and the late Francis Burnham esq. in the year 1860. George Henry Haigh esq. D.L., J.P. who is the principal landowner, resides at Grainsby Hall, which has attached to it extensive gardens and ornamental grounds, and stands in a well-wooded park of about 300 acres. Mrs. Sands is lady of the manor. The soil is chiefly strong and stiff; subsoil, clay. This parish is farmed on the four-course field system. The area is 1,167 acres; rateable value, £1,633; the population in 1881 was 148.

GRAINTHORPE is a scattered village and parish, extending to the sea coast, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Marsh division of the wapentake of Louth Eske, union and county court district of Louth, rural deanery of Louth Eske and Ludborough No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 6 miles from Ludborough station, 12 miles south from Grimsby and 8 north-east from Louth. The Louth navigation passes on the western side of the parish. The church of St. Clement is a building, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of a chancel, nave, aisles and a tower at the west end, surmounted by eight crocketed pinnacles and containing 3 bells, two of which are of pre-Reformation date, the third cast in 1761: the chancel was formerly longer, and there are traces of a side chapel in the north aisle; there is a fine brass, with a floriated cross, on a pedestal, date about 1480: the chancel was restored in 1876, at a cost of about £600. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, of the yearly value of £210 with residence, in the gift of Magdalene College, Cambridge, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Thomas Longley M.A. of that college. Here are chapels for the Wesleyan, Primitive and Free Methodists. In 1819 George Lill esq. bequeathed £740; the interest of £450 was appropriated to the endowment of a school for teaching 20 poor boys, interest of £216 to the yearly distribution of bread amongst the poor, and the remaining £74 was paid in legacy duty. The poor have 16 acres of meadow land in the Fen, which is held by the minister, churchwardens and overseers, who sell the produce and distribute the proceeds; they also receive the benefit of 5¾ acres of land and a cottage, left by several donors. A Mutual Improvement Society was established in 1853; its library consists of 759 useful volumes; the members, over 40 in number, pay an annual subscription of 2s. and an entrance fee of 1s. S. T. Scrope esq. is lord of the manor, and the principal landowners are the Rev. Beaty-Pownall and Messieurs Livesey, Merrikin, Atkinson and Sharpley. The soil is generally free and of a silty nature on the east side of the parish; on the west side stiff, but generally good; subsoil, silt and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and turnips; there is also good grazing land. The area is 4,280 acres of land and 675 of water; rateable value, £7,643; the population in 1881 was 712.

LUDNEY and WRAGHOLME are hamlets belonging to this parish.

GRANTHAM.

GRANTHAM is a municipal and parliamentary borough, head of a union and county court district, and polling place for the Southern division of the county, market town, in the parts of Kesteven and soke of Grantham, rural deanery of Grantham No. 1, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 105½ miles from London, 25 south from Lincoln, 21 north from Stamford, 32 south-by-west from Boston, 39 south from Gainsborough, 47 south-west from Horncastle, 14 south-east from Newark and 24 east from Nottingham. The town was connected with Nottingham by a railway in 1850, and the Great Northern line, affording direct communication between Grantham and London, was opened in 1852.

The corporation is of high antiquity and was originally a popular corporation, elected out of the commonalty. In the Patent rolls there are recorded to have been 100 burgesses in the time of the Confessor, and reference is made to an alderman of Grantham in the fourteenth century; the extant charter of 1377, moreover, is but a confirmation of an earlier charter, now lost. These early charters, however, granted special privileges only, and were not charters of incorporation. Grantham was first made a corporate town by a charter of Edward IV. dated 1463, and appointing that it should be governed by an alderman, with 12 senior and 12 junior comburgesses; and the first 12 were made justices of the peace by letters patent of Richard III. in 1483: the office of alderman had, however, previously existed, and more anciently still, the town was governed by a bailiff appointed by the lord of the manor; successive sovereigns confirmed and enlarged the privileges thus granted, and in 1664 the charter was renewed, at a cost to the town of £170: in 1685 James II. granted a new charter appointing a mayor and six aldermen, but this grant appears to have been subsequently reversed, and the corporation resumed its ancient order. Under the Municipal Reform Act of 1835, the town is governed by a mayor, four aldermen and 12 councillors, and is divided into east and west wards. By the Grantham Borough Extension Act, 1879, the Municipal limits were extended and now include Grantham Grange and the adjoining and populous parts of the following townships, viz.:—Harrowby, Manthorpe-cum-Little Gonerby, Somerby and Spittlegate, Houghton and Walton. The corporation act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. The borough has commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions. The records of the corporation are perfect from the year 1633, and in the crypt of the church still exists the common hutch with three locks in which the archives were anciently kept. The right to the use of maces as symbols of authority dates from 1464; the existing maces, which are of handsome design, were presented by Brownlow Cust esq. afterwards first Baron Brownlow, on the occasion of his receiving the freedom of the borough in 1766. The statute seal of the corporation, described in the charter of 1632, is double, and bears on one half the arms of the borough, confirmed in 1562: there are other seals for the aldermen and chamberlain, and one for the mayor, given for the use of the aldermen by Arthur Hall, in 1581. With slight exceptions, the borough has returned two members to Parliament since the year 1467. The parliamentary borough includes, in addition to the municipal borough, all the remaining portions of the above named townships and returns two members to Parliament.

Grantham stands on the river Witham which in early times formed a small lake at this point and was shallow and fordable. The Ermine Street of the Romans passes within a short distance of the town eastwards.

The town is lighted with gas first used October 30th, 1833, and has been supplied, since 1850, with water from springs which rise in the parishes of Stoke, Stroxton and the Pontons; there is a reservoir at Spittlegate, capable of containing 700,000 gallons of water, and a pumping station at Salter's ford.

The canal 30 miles long, first opened 1793 under an Act passed in 1792, runs from Grantham to the river Trent and is now the property of the Great Northern Railway Company.

The earliest record of the town is found in the Domesday survey, which shows it to have been royal property anterior to the Conquest, having been held by Editha, queen of Edward the Confessor; and it subsequently belonged to the Empress Matilda. In 1301, the town was required to furnish King Edward I. then at Berwick-on-Tweed, with horses and arms for the expedition against the Scots, and in 1318, Grantham and the soke were requisitioned for 15 able-bodied footmen, armed, for the same purpose, a similar number being also demanded in 1324, to serve abroad against the Flemings: the body of Queen Eleanor, who died at Herdeby, near Clifton, in Nottinghamshire, passed through and rested at Grantham in November, 1290, on its way to London: the cross erected in commemoration of this event was destroyed by the soldiers of the Parliament in or about 1645. King John was here in August, 1209, and again on February 23rd, 1213, and held his court at the present Angel inn. In 1503, Margaret, eldest daughter of Henry VII. who had been betrothed to James IV. of Scotland, remained here one night on her journey into Scotland, and left the town July 10th, 1503, escorted by the aldermen and burgesses. Charles I. was at Grantham in 1663 on his royal progress to receive the crown of Scotland, and accepted from the corporation the gift of a silver cup; on the imposition of the tax called "ship money," the town and soke furnished a sum of £200 towards the equipment of a ship of 800 tons required from the county of Lincoln; in 1640 and 1641 the King was again here, and on the breaking out of the civil war the town, being considered a chief post on the north road, was contended for by both parties, and alternately held.

The church of St. Wulfran is a noble and spacious building of stone, in the Norman, Transitional, Early English and Later styles, the foundations also of an earlier Saxon church being still in situ parallel with and just outside the line of the existing arcades. The present church consists of chancel with aisles, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, north and south porches, a chantry chapel on the north side, now used as a vestry, and a noble western tower of the Early Decorated period, rising to a height of 140 feet, and surmounted by a beautiful crocketed spire 145 feet high, making the total height 280 feet; the tower contains a splendid peal of 10 bells, a clock and set of chimes; the tower, with its magnificent spire, forms the dominant feature of the church, its buttresses of great strength, adorned with niches, support it at the angles and rise into octangular turrets, crowned by crocketed spirelets surmounted by statuettes, three of which represent bishops; the uppermost of the four stages of the tower terminates in a cornice and parapet, and of the others, the second is arcaded and the lowest has a recessed doorway, richly ornamented; the spire may be described as one of the loftiest and most graceful in this country; its surface is relieved by three tiers of lights, in sets of eight, and at the angles by crockets, thickly set; there are also figures at the points of the broaches; the upper portion of the spire was severely injured by a storm in 1661, and again by lightning in 1797: the spire, damaged by lightning in 1882, was taken down 16 feet and rebuilt to its original height and surmounted with a handsome finial of stone in place of the old copper ball, at a cost of £400, raised by subscription; a new lightning conductor weighing 3¾ cwt. has also been fixed: on the south side the principal features are the porch, which has a battlemented parapet, and an octangular turret staircase, with spirelet, and the picturesque turret which formerly gave access to the rood loft, which has an embattled parapet and tall crocketed spire-like roof; the east elevation exhibits three gables separated from each other and flanked by embattled turrets; on the north side the character of the elevation though more uniform, it is broken by the chapel of the Holy Trinity, and by the large Decorated north porch with a chamber over it, approached by newel staircases at the angles; the porch seems also to have been used as a chapel, and retains a piscina in its east wall; at the junction of the chancel and nave there is an octagonal turret corresponding to that on the south side. A portion of the nave is Norman, and some few Norman fragments of later date have been built into the tower; with the exception of these remains, the earliest part of the present fabric is comprised in the three easternmost bays of the nave, which appear to be of Transitional date, the remaining portion being Early English; to the fourteenth century or Decorated period belong the north wall of the nave aisle, the west ends of both aisles, the tower and spire, and the chapel south of the chancel; this latter, dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, was built about 1360, by William Gunthorpe, and others, and opens by an arcade into the chancel; three of its original windows, with fine flowing tracery, remain, and there is also a piscina; beneath the chapel are two vaulted crypts of the same date, the vaulting being supported in each case by a central pillar; the easternmost crypt has a stone altar, with an aperture in its front intended to contain relics, possibly those of St. Wulfran, and there is also a piscina and a credence; access is now obtained from the outside; but an entrance from the chancel, constructed during the Perpendicular period, and including a richly ornamented doorway and a flight of stone steps leading down to the crypt, still exists; a bell cote on the western gable of the south aisle seems to indicate the existence there of a chapel at some former time; there is another on the north porch. The north aisle of the chancel, called the "Corpus Christi" aisle, from a chantry founded here in the fourteenth century by John de Orston, in honour of the Holy Trinity, is of Late and poor Perpendicular character, circ. 1500, and the chapel beyond it, known as "Hall's chapel," is of the same date; the latter is now used as a vestry and library for the books given by Dr. Newcome, master of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Dean of Dorchester, to the Corporation of Grantham, and was transferred to the churchwardens by Earl Brownlow in 1819. Over the south porch is a small chamber containing the library presented to the church early in the sixteenth century by Francis Trigg, priest, of Welbourn; these volumes are all chained to the desks on which they lie, and include some valuable works of the Fathers and earlier Divines; a small Perpendicular bay window looks into the church. The font, belonging to the Decorated period, has an octagonal panelled bowl, richly carved with subjects from the Old Testament and figures of the Apostles; there are six stained memorial windows including the east window erected in 1883; of the others, inserted during 1852-75, three are at the west end; the northernmost was presented by the trustees of the late Mr. Charles Clarke. In the church is an altar-tomb of stone, placed beneath a recessed arch in the wall of the south aisle, and inscribed on the margin of the slab to Richard de Calteby, or Saltby, and Margaret, his wife, 1362; and a flat sepulchral slab bears an inscription to John Saltby, of Gunwarby, 1429; more to the east, on the same wall, is another monument, similar to that of Richard Saltby; in the north aisle is a stone tomb, supporting a black marble slab, inscribed to Francis Malham, of Elslack, a devoted Royalist, 1660, by Jane, his third wife; against the same wall and near to the foregoing is an imposing monument by Cheer, to Sir Dudley Ryder, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 1754-6, and an ancestor of the present Earl of Harrowby; in the south aisle is a monument to William Cust, a naval officer killed in an attack on Port Louis, Mar. 8, 1747: a representation in relief of the engagement. The south porch and library were restored by a private benefactor in 1881. The organ, originally built by Byfield, was improved in 1838, again in 1845 and in 1851. In 1869 it was rebuilt and enlarged and the organ case renewed from designs by the late Sir George Gilbert Scott R.A.: the cost, inclusive of £500 for the case, was £960: a further sum of £85 was expended upon it in 1878. The chancel is separated from the nave by a handsome carved oak screen designed by the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A. and erected from a legacy left by Mrs. Ottley, at a cost of £800: it takes the place of a former stone screen, long since destroyed; the pulpit was erected by the relatives of the late Hon. Richard Cust, whose friends also presented the handsome brass eagle lectern; the altar-cloth, of velvet, is beautifully embroidered, and was presented in 1869 by the Honourable Lady Welby-Gregory, the whole having been worked by herself and her sister. The building was extensively repaired in 1866-7, under the direction of the late Sir George Gilbert Scott R.A. when the whole of the roofs were renewed in oak and covered with lead; the entire cost of repairs since 1840 has amounted to upwards of £23,000; the north porch was restored in 1877 as a memorial to the late Sir Glynne Earle Welby-Gregory bart. at a cost of £500: two doors, ornamented with fine hammered iron for this porch work, and designed by Sir G. G. Scott, were presented by Sir W. E. Welby-Gregory bart.: there are 1,400 sittings, all of which are free The register dates from the year 1562, but is imperfect till 1580. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £454, gross yearly value £1,000, including 450 acres of glebe, with residence, and charged with endowments for the rectory of Great Gonerby and the vicarage of Spittlegate; it is in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1883 by the Rev. William Glaister M.A., B.C.L. of University College, Oxford, and surrogate, who also holds the Campden Lectureship, value £100 yearly, in the gift of the Mercers' Company of London.

The church of St. John the Evangelist, in Spittlegate, erected in 1840-2, is a building of stone in the Early English Lancet style, designed by Salvin, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, transepts and a western tower with pinnacles, containing 1 bell: in 1883-4 the edifice was restored and enlarged by the extension of both aisles and the rebuilding of the chancel, the interior being also entirely reseated; the total cost was £2,090, one-fourth of which was defrayed by James Hornsby esq. and the rest by subscription: the organ was erected in 1871 by subscription, at a cost of £430: there are sittings for 1,100 persons. The register dates from the year 1842. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £418 including 1 acre of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of Grantham, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Clement Elsmere M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford.

St. Saviour's mission church, Manners street, Little Gonerby, is a small brick building attached to the church of St. Wulfran: it was erected by subscription, and is capable of seating about 120 persons: services are also held at Welby school mission-room, Welby street, and Little Gonerby school chapel, Brownlow street, in connection with the same church, and at the Inner Street school mission church, Spittlegate, in connection with St. John's church.

The Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, in North parade, Little Gonerby, was erected by the Rev. Thomas Tempest, in 1832, at a cost of £5,000, inclusive of priest's house and school-room, and will seat 250 persons; in 1876 a side chapel was added.

The Baptist chapel, in Wharf road, was erected in 1863-4, the congregation having previously met since 1859 at a house on St. Peter's hill: the building will hold 600 persons and cost £520. The General Baptist chapel, in George street, formerly a corn warehouse, was converted to its present use in 1877, at a cost of £40; the congregation, formed in 1876, had previously used the Westgate rooms.

The Calvinist chapel is in Castlegate, and will seat 300.

The Congregational chapel, Avenue road, is a building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1870, at a cost (inclusive of house and school) of £4,500, and will seat 600 persons.

The Primitive Methodist chapel, in Commercial road, Spittlegate, was restored in 1867, at a cost of £300; and again in 1876, at a cost of £600, and will now seat about 650.

The Free Methodist chapel, in Chapel street, Little Gonerby, originally Congregational chapel, was purchased in 1869 for £760, its original cost having been £2,200: it is now (1884) being thoroughly restored at a probable cost of £750, and will seat 500 persons.

The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, Finkin street, was erected in 1840 on the site of a smaller one: it is an edifice of the Tuscan order, and cost £5,800, inclusive of 7 vestries and chapel keeper's house, and will seat 1,000 persons: in 1856 an organ was added at a cost of £400: the chapel was restored in 1868, at a cost of £200.

The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, in Bridge End road, Spittlegate, is a building of brick with stone facings in the Early Decorated style, and was erected on a site given by Messrs. Hornsby in 1875, at a cost of £1,800, two ministers' houses were also built in Dudley road, at a cost of £4,500, the site being the gift of William Hornsby esq. the old houses in Wharf road being then sold for £1,050.

The Wesleyan Reform chapel, Swinegate (originally a theatre), will seat 350 persons: in 1873 the interior was remodelled and reseated and other improvements made; an organ was erected in 1875, at a total cost of £400.

The Grammar school was founded in 1528 by Richard Fox, Bishop of Winchester, the favourite minister of King Henry VII. and a native of Ropsley: it was endowed by King Edward VI. in 1553 and possesses a revenue of about £1,100 yearly. The school was reorganised under the Endowed School Act of 1876 and is now under the control of a governing body of 15 members, of whom three viz. The Lord Lieutenant, the Mayor and the Chairman of the Board of Guardians are ex-officio governors, six co-optative, three representative appointed by the Town Council, and three by the Burial Board. There are six exhibitions, in the form of free tuition for 3 years, two being awarded annually. Six junior exhibitions: three of £10 and three of £15 each yearly, for 3 years; two of which are awarded yearly to boys under 15 who have been at the school three years. There are also senior exhibitions, not exceeding £50 each; for boys over 16, entitling the holders to a professional education at some university; the number of these is regulated by the state of the funds. Pupils of this school have also a preference in competition for the Newcome exhibition of £40 yearly at St. John's College, Cambridge, and to two Lovett exhibitions of £50 each at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, the latter being restricted to sons of clergymen. There are now 90 boys. Among the distinguished persons educated at this school may be named, Sir William Cecil in 1532; Sir Henry More in 1624; Sir Isaac Newton in 1654; Colley Cibber in 1682; Dean Newcome in 1710; and the Right Rev. Frederick Barker D.D. late Bishop of Sydney. The school-room and adjoining residence, erected by Bishop Fox, are spacious and convenient and were refitted in 1855, and a large dining-room added; two class-rooms were added in 1863.

The Grantham Ladies' College, situated on St. Peter's hill, was established in 1875 for the purpose of providing the daughters of gentlemen a sound and religious education of the highest order, at moderate terms, upon the principles and in the manner which the experience of the Cheltenham Ladies' College had proved to be successful: the funds for promoting the college were raised in 200 shares of £20 each; the Lord Bishop of the diocese is visitor and Earl Brownlow president.

The Guildhall and Police Station, situated on St. Peter's hill, and erected in 1869, is a building of brick with stone facings, in a mixed Renaissance style, and is surmounted by a clock turret: on the left of the entrance-hall is the borough surveyor's office, and on the right is the news-room; to the rear is the sessions-hall and magistrates' retiring-room; the whole of the front storey is devoted to the assembly-room, a fine apartment 60 feet long by 30 feet wide, and in the rear are the council and ante-rooms; the police station, with head constable's residence, is attached to the building on the south side and is flanked by four cottages for police residences.

Quarter, special and petty sessions (the latter every monday), for the borough are held in the Guildhall; Gilbert George Kennedy esq. is recorder.

The old Town Hall, which formerly stood in High street, was pulled down, and handsome premises, for the Stamford, Spalding and Boston Banking Company erected on the site.

The Exchange Hall, High street, in which the corn market is held every saturday, was erected in 1852, at a cost of about £6,000, in £5 shares, and is the property of a Company: its area is 80 by 44 feet: the upper storey is devoted to the use of the Public Literary Institution and Reading Society. In November, 1862, it was injured by fire to the extent of £1,000, but was restored the following year.

The Westgate Rooms, 66 feet by 40, were erected in 1852, at a cost of about £6,000, in £10 shares, and became the property of the Exchange Hall Company in 1872. The building has a good front, towards the Market-place and the upper storey is occupied as offices of the Inland Revenue. These large halls are often let for sales, and musical and other entertainments.

The Butter Hall, in the Market-place, erected by the town council in 1872, is a convenient but very plain building, and is under the management of the head constable.

The Temperance Hall, in Wharf road, erected by voluntary contributions, in 1874, at a cost of £800, is let for lectures and meetings, and will hold 400 persons.

The Theatre, in George street, opened May 4th, 1875, is a plain brick building, and will hold about 1,800 persons. It is now let to the Salvation Army.

The Conduit, in the Market-place, is an ancient structure, erected in 1579, and supplied by water from springs in Gonerby conducted to the town by the Grey Friars in 1314; it was granted to the town by Robert Fysher in 1684, and in 1860 was thoroughly restored and utilized as a drinking fountain.

In the centre of the Market-place is an Ancient Cross, believed to have been erected by the Grey Friars; John Manners esq. lord of the manor in 1779, took it down, but was compelled by mandamus to replace it, on the ground that Royal Proclamations were wont to be made from it; the cross is at present without its lofty shaft, but it is now (1884) in course of restoration.

Here are three banks, Messrs. Hardy and Co. a branch of the Stamford, Spalding and Boston Banking Company Limited, and a branch of the Leicestershire Banking Company Limited; there is also a savings bank: two newspapers (the "Grantham Journal" and the "Grantham Times"), a large agricultural implement works (Richard Hornsby and Sons Limited), carriage manufactory, paper and corn mills, breweries, tanneries, many building establishments, and there is a large business in malting.

There are many good inns. The principal are the Angel and Royal, and the George. The Angel and Royal Hotel, in High street, once belonging to the Knights Templars, is one of the three remaining mediæval hostels that exist in England (the others being at Fotheringhay and at Glastonbury. The front of two storeys displays a wide pointed gateway, the heads terminating the hood moulding representing Edward III. and Queen Philippa; over the gateway is a boldly projecting bay, resting on a massive corbel; on either side are buttresses, rising to the parapet, and at each end of the front are square projecting bays, rising to the full height; the parapet is enriched with a band of quatrefoils. Many interesting associations are connected with this hostelry, one of the earliest being the holding of his court here by King John on the 23rd of February, 1213, as appears from the Patent Rolls of that reign. On the 19th October, 1483, King Richard III. signed in this house the death warrant of the Duke of Buckingham: the apartment in which his signature is said to have been affixed, called "the King's Room," runs the whole length of the frontage in High street, and has a richly designed oriel window. This hotel, under the bequest of one Michael Solomon made in the early part of the tenth century, is subject to the payment of 40s. a year on Michaelmas day, for a sermon on drunkenness. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales visited this and the George hotel, February 23rd, 1866. The latter hotel is referred to by Charles Dickens in "Nicholas Nickleby." The "Chequers Arms" is another ancient inn, dating from 1562, and was re-erected 1867.

The market day is on Saturday; and the fairs are the first Tuesday in April, and two following days. Easter Eve stock fair, a stock and annual pleasure fair, Cherry Fair, July 7th, stock fair; September 5th, new ram fair, also for beasts; October 26th, stock fair; December 17th, fat stock fair. Mr. Henry Escritt holds a fat stock sale every Monday.

The prisons, in accordance with the "Prison Act" of 1877, were closed in 1878, and the prisoners transferred to Lindsey County prison at Lincoln; the old gaol is now used as a tobacco manufactory.

The Guildhall news room was opened in 1861; it is maintained by subscription, and is well supplied with London and provincial newspapers and periodicals.

The Steam Laundry, in the Londonthorpe road, is a spacious and well-appointed group of buildings, with extensive drying and bleaching grounds, and is fitted with modern machinery; it is the property of a Company started in 1878, with a capital of £8,000 in shares of £10 each; and from 40 to 50 hands are employed: the modern system of French dyeing and cleaning has recently been introduced.

The Public Baths, erected in Wharf road in 1854, consist of 10 private baths and a vapour bath, the water being supplied from a well 24 feet deep. They are the property of the Corporation, but are under private management.

The Grantham Hospital, for in-patients only, is situated on the Manthorpe road about ¼ mile north of the town: it is a building of stone in the Gothic style, erected in 1874-5, at a cost of £5,000, on a site given by the Right Hon. the Earl Brownlow, who, with other gentlemen of the district, subscribed liberally towards defraying the cost of erection: it was opened by Lady Brownlow in January, 1875: the building contains fifteen beds in the main block and five beds in a separate structure, in addition to which there are four private wards; the inmates have since 1883 been admitted free of charge except in certain specified cases.

The Dispensary, situated in Finkin street, was established in 1849 upon the self-supporting system, and has upwards of 4,000 members: it is managed by a committee of 12 members; William Vincent Hardwick, secretary.

The Friendly and Trade Societies Medical Institution, 4 Swinegate, originated at a meeting of delegates held in Grantham in 1878, and was established in 1879. The committee consists of 27 members from whom a managing committee is selected: there are now (1884) upwards of 1,000 members; John Hancock, secretary.

The Campden lectureship is maintained by a sum of money bequeathed in 1651, by Viscountess Campden, the yearly proceeds to be employed for the endowment of two lectureships, one of which was obtained by the Corporation from the Mercers' Company of London, who were the trustees under Lady Campden's will.

The interest of Charles Clarke's charity of £500, left in 1790, is applied to the repairs of the parish church.

Langwith's charity.—This charity consists of two sums of £750 each, bequeathed to trustees by the wills of the late Lucy and Arabella Langwith, in the year 1857, and invested in £3 per Cent. Consols, the income being divisible, as to two-thirds thereof amongst ten poor women, residents of Grantham, Spittlegate and Little Gonerby, and the remaining one-third amongst the widows in Hurst's Almshouses; the annual income amounts to about £42; the vicar of Grantham for the time being and John Grundy Thompson esq. are the trustees.

Other charities were merged in the new Grammar school scheme in 1876.

The most important of these is Curteis' Charity, of £175 per annum, consisting of £151, derived from the rent of six houses in Curteis' place, and £24 from land in Spittlegate.

Thomas Hurst D.D. by his will, dated 20th November, 1671, gave certain almshonses adjoining the west end of the churchyard of St. Wulfran, for the residence of eight poor widows, rent free.

Francis Trigg and Anthony Acomes' charities the first bequeathed in 1597 and the latter in 1640, were, by a scheme dated the 19th March, 1860, for the regulation, management and application of the income thereof, directed by the High Court of Chancery to be applied in the first place to the repairs of the almshouses called Hurst's almshouses, and then in paying to the six senior alms persons elected to such almshouses a sum not exceeding 6s. nor less than 3s. 6d. per week.

Bradley's Almshouses, situated in High street, were built in 1875, and endowed from moneys left for that purpose by Elizabeth, widow of Richard Bradley esq. of Grantham, in the year 1874, for six females, aged not less than 63 years, members of the Church of England, and previous residents of the town or of Little Gonerby; each inmate receives 5s. weekly: the principal is vested in the official trustee of charitable funds, in trust to pay the amount of annual income to the vicar and two churchwardens, who have the choice of the inmates.

Dawson's Almhouses, situated in Brook street, Little Gonerby, were erected in 1862 by the trustees of the charity left by the will of George Dawson in 1662; these are for ten poor aged persons, each of whom receives 5s. weekly; the income amounting to about £235 is derived from two farms, one at Gosberton and the other at Risegate.

Sir Isaac Newton was born at Woolsthorpe, near Grantham, 25th December, 1642, and commenced his education at the Grammar school here: he afterwards proceeded, in 1660, to Trinity College, Cambridge, where, in 1667, he became a fellow, and in 1669, professor of mathematics; in 1671, he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society, in 1672 he published his theory of light; in 1676 his method of fluxions; and in 1687 his "Principia," or mathematical system of physics; in 1699 he was made Master of the Mint. In 1858, to perpetuate his memory a fine bronze statue by Mr. Theed was erected on St. Peter's Hill, at a cost of £1,800; it was inaugurated by Lord Brougham, and stands on the site of one of the crosses erected by Edward I. to the memory of his Queen Eleanor.

Grantham is situated on the Lias formation, the greater part of it being built upon a deep dry bed of gravel and sand. The sewage is disposed of since 1881, at a sewage farm at Marston, 5 miles north of the town: it is conveyed by gravitation through a two foot sewer having a total fall of 33 feet, the farm has an area of 231 acres, 105 of which are underdrained five feet, and already under irrigation, producing rich crops of roots and vegetables. The effluent water which issues from the main under drain passes clear and inoffensive through a dyke half a mile long, and is discharged into the Witham.

The manor is now held by the Earl of Dysart.

Grantham Castle, granted to Edmund of Langley, Duke of York, fifth son of Edward III. in 1363, stood north-east of the church; no vestiges now exist. Some remains of St. Catherine's chantry may be seen between the cemetery and the river Witham.

GRANTHAM GRANGE, formerly extra-parochial, is now a parish within the borough, near the Market-place; it contains about 10 acres of land, laid out as gardens, and is the property of the Earl of Dysart, and was without houses or population in 1881; it was anciently possessed by a house of Grey Friars, established here in 1290; but dissolved by Henry VIII. in 1540; no traces of any buildings now exist

The area of the municipal borough is 1,676 acres; the rateable value and population of the municipal and parliamentary borough in 1881, was:—

Parish Clerk, George W. Wilkinson.

Spittlegate (or SPITAL-GATE) is a populous township, mostly within the municipal borough of Grantham on the south, and in 1842 was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from Grantham civil parish, in the Southern division of the county, wholly in Grantham parliamentary borough, union and county court district, rural deanery of North Grantham and Lincoln archdeaconry and diocese. Here is a County Police Station, with superintendent's residence: these premises are retained by the county and are not included in the area of the borough. The Grantham Union workhouse and the Great Northern Railway station are situated in Spittlegate, as also the engineering and agricultural implement works of Messrs. R. Hornsby and Sons Limited, employing over 1,300 men. Here are two breweries and a corn mill, and malting is carried on to a considerable extent; brickmaking is likewise carried on.

HOUGHTON adjoining Spittlegate on the south-east and WALTON adjoining on the south are hamlets; at the former is a paper mill. The reservoir of the Grantham Water Works Company, situated on the Ponton road, will hold 700,000 gallons of water. The Earl of Dysart is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is various, the hills being composed chiefly of limestone; subsoil, mostly clay. The chief crops are barley, wheat and turnips. The area is 2,052 acres.

Parish Clerk, Spittlegate, Joseph Whaley.

Little Gonerby (Manthorpe-cum-Little Gonerby) adjoins the borough of Grantham on the north, and is united with it for ecclesiastical purposes; it is in the Southern division of the county, partly in the municipal and wholly in Grantham parliamentary borough, union and county court district, Spittlegate petty sessional division. The Earl of Dysart who is lord of the manor, and Earl Brownlow D.L., J.P. are the chief landowners. The area is 700 acres.

Harrowby is a township, adjoining the borough of Grantham on the east, and to which it is ecclesiastically connected, in the Southern division of the county, Spittlegate petty sessional division, partly in the municipal and wholly in Grantham parliamentary borough, union and county court district. The barracks for the Royal South Lincolnshire militia, forming the 4th battalion of the Lincolnshire regiment, were erected here when Grantham became their headquarters. The building is of blue stone, in a castellated style, and consists of two courts, of which the first was erected in 1858, at a cost of £3,640; over the gateway is a band room; the rest of the front comprises an armoury for 1,020 stand of arms, a guard room, a prisoners' room with 3 cells, 2 store rooms, tailors' shop &c.; in the centre is the parade ground 60 yds. by 40, and at the end a covered drill shed; the magazine will hold 75,000 rounds of ammunition; at the sides are officers' quarters and stabling: the second court was added in 1872, and includes houses for 30 men, an hospital for 20 patients, and other offices, and a reading room; the adjutant's residence, detached from the barracks, was also erected in 1872; a large field adjoining is used for drill purposes. The manor was purchased of the Rolt family by Sir Dudley Ryder, who was Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench in 1754, and is now the property of the Right Hon. Earl of Harrowby P.C.: the ancesters of the present lord were long seated at Harrowby Hall, now a farm-house in the occupation of Thomas Newton esq. The Earl of Harrowby P.C. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is mostly creech land, and the subsoil on the hills stone, and in the vale blue clay. The chief crops are turnips, barley, seeds and wheat. The area is 1,453A. 3R. 21P.

New Somerby is a part of the parish of Somerby, adjoining Spittlegate, and now forms a populous portion of the borough of Grantham. The iron mission church of St. Anne was erected in 1884, at a cost of £600, and will seat 350 persons. The cemetery for Grantham, Spittlegate, Honghton and Walton and Manthorpe-cum-Little Gonerby, which was opened on May 1st, 1857, is almost entirely in this district, and covers an area of 9 acres, 3 of which were added in 1872; the total cost was about £7,200, inclusive of two mortuary chapels connected by an archway. The cemetery is under the control of a Burial board of 20 members, to which the parish of Grantham contributes 9 members, Spittlegate 7, and Little Gonerby 4. The inhabitants of New Somerby have the right to bury here on payment of double fees.

GRASBY is a village and parish, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, south division of Yarborough wapentake, Brigg petty sessional division, Caistor union and county court district, rural deanery of Yarborough No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln. The village, which lies a little off the high road from Brigg to Caistor, is 3 miles north-north-west from Caistor, 6 south-east from Brigg, and 2 from the North Kelsey station on the Hull, Market Rasen and Lincoln railway. The church of All Saints is a handsome structure of Kirton and Normanby stone, in the Gothic style of the thirteenth century, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, porch, organ chamber and vestry, and a tower with spire containing a clock and 4 bells, two of which were added in 1869, one, in memory of Henry Selwood esq. by his three daughters, and the other in memory of Mrs. Tennyson, mother of a previous vicar, and of Lord Tennyson, and one of the others has the date 1500: the church was rebuilt, with the exception of the north aisle (which had been rebuilt on the old foundations in 1850) in 1869, under the direction of Mr. Charles Buckeridge, architect: the east window, of five lights, is stained, and the interior has been refitted in oak: a mural tablet, in memory of the last vicar, the Rev. Charles Turner, has been erected by his widow. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1653; that of marriages from 1754. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £315, in the gift of Lord Tennyson, Poet Laureate, and held by the Rev. James Francis Quirk M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford J.P. who was appointed October, 1879. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built 1840, and a Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1841 and enlarged 1862. There is no lord of the manor. Lord Tennyson, John West esq. of Melton Ross and J. J. Burkinshaw esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, clay, sand and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 1,720 acres; rateable value, £1,817; the population in 1881 was 411.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

Great Grimsby is an ancient parliamentary and municipal borough, seaport, railway station, market town, head of a county court district and polling-place for the Northern division of the county, in the parts of Lindsey, Bradley Haverstoe wapentake, Caistor union, rural deanery of Grimsby No. 2, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, 16 miles north-west from Louth, 20 south-east from Hull, 45 north-east-by-north from Lincoln and 155 from London by rail. The municipal borough comprises the parish of Great Grimsby. The parliamentary borough comprises the parishes of Great Grimsby, Bradley, Clee with Weelsby and Cleethorpes, Great and Little Coates, Laceby, Scartho and Waltham, and returns one member to Parliament. Grimsby is situate at the mouth of the Humber, about 7 miles from the sea, and has in front a deep roadstead, with excellent anchorage in blue clay, protected by the opposite promontory of Spurn Point. Railways connect Great Grimsby in direct lines with every important district in Great Britain. The main lines are the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire and the Great Northern; the latter passes through Louth, Boston and Peterborough to London. The principal street, running the whole length of the old town, and formerly called Loft street, has been re-named Victoria street, in honour of Her Majesty's visit in 1854; in the neighbourhood of the docks an entirely new town has sprung up, and is still extending itself.

Grimsby is supposed to be a word of Danish derivation, meaning "Grim's town;" "by" being a usual termination of a Danish settlement, and "Grim" being a not uncommon Danish name. There is a tradition that this Grim was a fisherman who rescued from a boat at sea a Danish infant named "Cuheran," afterward called Havelock or Havloc, i.e., "sea-waif," whom he adopted and brought up, but who was afterwards found to be a son of a Danish king, who, being restored to his rightful position, enriched his foster-father and enabled him to become the founder of Grimsby. The ancient common seal of the town contains, in Saxon letters, the names of Gryme and Habloc, and a design which is supposed to show that Gryme, by favour of the king, at the intercession of Habloc, and under the protection of the hand of Providence, should become a wealthy man and founder of the place. The mayor's seal, which was restored by William Brooks esq. when mayor, refers to an ancient privilege enjoyed by the borough, viz., the right of hunting in Bradley manor, whose lord was bound to find a boar for the amusement of the corporation in the field and for their enjoyment at a subsequent banquet. The magistrates of Great Grimsby appear to have zealously guarded and preserved their rights of hunting, fowling and fishing over a considerable district in the vicinity of their town; they had also other local rights, such as that of holding slaves, and of bringing thieves to trial.

The borough is governed by a Town Council, consisting of a mayor, 8 aldermen, 24 councillors, and has a Commission of the Peace, comprising the mayor and 20 borough magistrates. The Corporation or Town Council appoint the borough officers, and are lords of the manors of Great Grimsby and Clee, and hold a borough court of record, a court leet and baron, and have obtained several improvement Acts. The Council also act as the urban sanitary authority. The borough is divided into four wards, viz., south, south-west, north-east and north-west.

Grimsby, though not possessing a large population, occupies a natural position which is peculiarly favourable to river, coasting and foreign trade, and this important advantage has—during the period 1852-84—been turned to the best account by the continuous extension of its dock area, and the gradual but very decided improvement effected in its means of internal communication. There are at present five docks:—the Royal dock, the Union dock, the Alexandra dock and two fish docks; besides which there are two graving docks. The principal entrance to the docks is through a tidal basin of about 15 acres, formed for the reception of river craft, and protected on the east and west by breakwaters: on its southern side are two locks of unequal length and width, admitting vessels to the Royal dock; these locks are opened by hydraulic power, the accumulator, engines and other mechanical apparatus for working which are contained in a lofty square tower of brick, and adjacent buildings, erected on the pier between the two locks: two high-pressure engines of 25 horse-power each raise the water required for the machinery into the reservoir in the tower, which rises to a height of 300 feet. The reservoir also supplies water to vessels in the docks. The Royal dock, entered from the tidal basin as described, extends southwards and has on one side the entrance to the Emigrants' Home, and on the other the Graving dock No. 1; a long range of warehouses occupies its eastern side, and both sides are encompassed by lines of railway connected with the Grimsby Dock station; another extension, branching into two lines at the end of the dock, is continued on twin piers, for some distance, into the centre of its area; this dock was designed by Wm. Rendel, and constructed under the superintendence of Captain Adam Smith, the resident engineer; the first stone was laid by his late Royal Highness the Prince Consort, April 18th, 1849, and opened for traffic in 1852; in 1854, October 14, Her Majesty the Queen visited Grimsby, and in compliance with the request of the Dock Company, gave it the name it now bears: the Union dock, lying in a south-westerly direction between the Royal and Alexandra docks, forms a wide connecting channel and has locks at its seaward end: the Alexandra dock consists of two arms or branches placed at right angles to each other, of which the older portion, lying due north and south, and formerly known as the "Old dock," was originally constructed at some time previous to 1845, in which year a company was formed for the purpose of making a new dock and connecting it by rail with all the principal towns in England; this company eventually purchased all the property and privileges of the old dock company, and in 1846 the works were begun which at length resulted in the completion of the present Royal dock, an undertaking in which the company received much valuable assistance from the late Earl of Yarborough, who for some years acted as chairman: the older portion of the Alexandra dock is continued southward into the town, where it becomes much narrower, and finally bifurcates, the shorter arm terminating abruptly at River Head, and the other turning off westward and uniting itself to the stream which traverses that part of the town: the newer portion of the dock, completed in 1884, extends due west from the northern extremity of the old dock, into which it opens, and occupies part of a site of 105 acres of land, purchased by the Company from the corporation of Grimsby: ample quay space is provided on the north and south sides, and a high-level coal railway, continued on to three coal drops projecting from the western end of the dock, and extending along the quays, affords special facilities for transit; it is further proposed to convert the space on either side of this dock into timber yards, to reclaim about 203 acres northward of it for further dock extension, and to construct therein a timber dock of 19 acres: the Fish docks, two in number, are situated to the east of the Royal dock; the Old Fish dock is approached by two locks of its own, immediately adjoining the eastern pier of the tidal basin, and protected by breakwaters: on the south-western side of the dock are extensive fish sheds, and its southern extremity opens into Graving dock No 2, and into the New Fish dock: the fishing trade of this port has thus a larger area of dock space alloted to it than that of any other port in the kingdom: a ship canal, 300 yards in length, extends from the northern end of the Alexandra dock to the Humber, and forms a special means of commucation with both arms of that dock, and with the Union dock.

PROPOSED TIMBER DOCK.

Area of Timber Dock ..... 19 acres

SUMMARY.

Area of Docks constructed ..... 71½ acres
" " to be constructed..... 19 acres

These various docks lie eighteen miles nearer the sea than Hull (all the other ports on the Humber being still further off), and are at the mouth of a river which is so well lighted and buoyed, that in clear weather a strange vessel might run in even after the loss of her anchors. The Grimsby docks are on the edge of a channel of deep water; coasting steamers can enter them at any time of the tide, whilst the largest steamers will find sufficient water on the dock sill for at least twelve hours out of the twenty-four, and at all times they can lie afloat alongside the landing piers within the basin, and there land or embark their passengers.

Trade of the port of Grimsby (1883)—Ships belonging to the port, 721; tonnage, 55,323.

Total amount of duties received, £111,873; number of vessels arrived from foreign ports, with cargoes, 1,136; in ballast, 99; number of vessels sailed to foreign ports, with cargoes, 1,022; in ballast, 180; coasting trade vessels with cargoes inwards, 1,628; ditto outwards, 1,555.

Coal is now (1884) shipped from Grimsby to the extent of about 500,000 tons yearly: this is an increasing trade, and has grown with the enlargement of the port: the mode of shipment is from drops, so constructed that a vessel can be loaded with a thousand tons in one day.

The fishing trade of Grimsby forms a very important item in the trade of the port, and has increased to such an extent that it was found necessary some time since to enlarge the dock appropriated to this traffic to more than double its original size. Nearly 900 fishing smacks belong to this port, but it is made use of largely by vessels belonging to other ports. Fish of every description is forwarded hence to all parts of the kingdom by special fish trains daily, leaving Grimsby for the Midland counties &c. at 7 p.m.; for Manchester, Liverpool and district, at 7.30 p.m.; and for London and places south thereof at 8.30 p.m. The total weight forwarded annually is about 60,000 tons. The importation of Norwegian ice, of which nearly 45,000 tons are brought in and distributed over the country annually, also constitutes a leading factor in the local trade.

The ancient church of St. Mary, mentioned in Domesday, was situated in the centre of the town, and was united as a benefice to St. James' in 1586, but having become dilapidated, it was eventually taken down.

The church of St. James is an ancient cruciform building of stone, in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, with south aisle, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, south porch, transepts and a central tower, with pinnacles, containing 8 bells, re-hung in 1836: during the years 1858 and 1859 the south transept was rebuilt, the tower repaired and new-roofed and the bells re-hung, the tower arches being opened and a new ringing gallery built; about 200 tons of earth and rubbish were also removed from the area of the interior and the whole space laid down anew and reseated: these improvements were carried out by means of subscription, at a cost of £2,113, under the direction of Mr. Charles Ainslie, architect: the church was enlarged and the chancel restored in 1874 and 1882, from plans by Mr. R. J. Withers, architect, at an estimated cost of £2,100: the east and west windows are stained; the latter was given by Mr. John Marshall, in memory of his wife, and the east window by the family of the late Mr. Andrew Marshall, in memory of their father: in the north transept is an ancient raised tomb, with the recumbent effigy of a knight in armour, covered by a surcoat bearing six lions rampant, commonly called "Grim's tomb," but the effigy represents in fact, Sir Thomas Haslerton kt. and was removed here from the nunnery of St. Leonard, which he rebuilt or repaired: the church plate includes an interesting chalice of Elizabethan date: in the churchyard is a cross. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, glebe and tithe rent-charge, £440; net yearly value, £559, including the 20 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1879 by the Rev. James Peter Young M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford.

St. Andrew's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1871 from the mother parish; the church, erected in 1870, at a cost of £8,500, and consecrated September 29th, 1870, is a fine building of stone in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. J. H. Hakewell, architect, consisting of chancel with aisles, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles and a tower on the north-west 125 feet high, and containing 1 bell, presented by the Bishop: there are sittings for 1,050 persons. The register dates from the year 1871. The living is a vicarage, net yearly valne £293, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1883 by the Rev. James Spawforth. The population in 1881 was 14,678.

St. Barnabas Mission Church, King Edward street north, is an iron building, erected in 1874.

St. Hugh's Mission Church is in Macaulay street; St. Luke's Mission Church is in Wellington street, and St. Paul's Mission Church is in West Marsh.

The Catholic Church of St. Mary on the Sea, situated in Clee-with-Weelsby, was erected in 1883 at a cost of £5,492 12s.: the Rev. Joseph Philip Hawkins is resident priest.

There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Congregational, Baptist and Presbyterian chapels, and there is also a Jewish synagogue.

The Borough Cemetery, comprising about 9 acres, was opened in 1855, and cost £2,500: it contains two mortuary chapels, built in 1855, one in the Early Decorated and the other in the Early English style: it is under the control of the Urban Sanitary Authority, acting as the Burial Board.

The town possesses several good private schools: at the south entrance stands St. James' College commercial and boarding school, an extensive building, pleasantly situated on an elevated spot of ground.

The charities are not very numerous. In 1619 the Rev. John Fotherby D.D. who was a native of Grimsby and Dean of Canterbury, left an annuity of £4, payable out of lands in Beesby and Mablethorpe: in 1638 Anthony Acham left a yearly rent of £5, payable out of the manor of Asterby. All freemen also receive a certain annuity derived from leased lands of the borough, as an ancient right; the amount last year was between £4 and £5 to each freeman.

The Town Hall, opened October 15th, 1863, is a building of stone and white brick, in the Italian style, from designs by Messrs. Bellamy and Hardy, of Lincoln, and was erected at a cost, together with the Free Grammar schools, of about £11,000: the front consists of a centre, with projecting wings, adorned with Corinthian pilasters upon a rusticated basement; in the centre of the front is an open portico of coupled rusticated Ionic columns, forming a capacious covered entrance: the second or principal storey displays seven recessed arches, enclosing as many circular-headed windows, and is surmounted by a cornice and open balustrade; in the spandrils are six circular panels, containing busts of the Queen and Prince Consort, Archbishop Whitgift (born at Grimsby), King Edward III. (who granted the land to the Freemen), the late Earl of Yarborough (High Steward of the Borough), and Gervase Holles (Mayor of Grimsby A.D. 1640): the ground floor comprises—entrance, vestibule, and corridors, with staircases to public room or town hall; offices for town clerk, magistrates' clerk, borough treasurer, and surveyor; council chamber and sessions house, with requisite retiring and waiting rooms attached; police offices and cells for prisoners, with residence for superintendent of police: fire-engine house, and other requisite store rooms and conveniences: in the centre of the building is an open court, surrounded by a covered corridor, giving easy access to the various departments: the large hall, situated on the first floor, is 80 feet long by 40 feet wide and 30 feet high, and has retiring rooms attached: it contains a gallery and an orchestra: the total length, including these, is 112 feet: the sides of the hall are divided by Corinthian pilasters, surmounted by a bracketed cornice, over which rises a deeply-coved ceiling with ribs and pancls.

The Corporation Free Grammar schools, which originally stood in Chantry lane, have been rebuilt in a style corresponding to that of the new Town hall, and form detached wings, each holding 100 pupils, with complete suites of class rooms, and yards attached to each: the school was founded about 1547, and is partly endowed and partly supported by the corporation: the children of freemen are entitled to admission, and receive an entirely gratuitous education, which includes classics, mathematics, French, German, and the usual English course.

The Custom House, Cleethorpes road, opposite the Royal Dock chambers, is a large building of brick with stone facings: the foundation stone was laid by Sir Thomas Fremantle (now Lord Cottesloe), on the 31st July, 1873.

The Offices of the Board of Trade are at the Custom house and Fish dock: Henry Noel Malan, superintendent; Joseph C. Hill, deputy superintendent.

Gas Works were established here in 1837 by Mr. Richard Holme: in 1845 a company was provisionally registered, and in 1846 incorporated by Act of Parliament, the capital, amounting to £10,000, in 1,000 shares of £10 each: in 1851 new gas works on a larger scale, and in a more central position, were erected; but since 1867 these have been superseded by other buildings, on a fresh site; the capital is now about £100,000, and further outlays are being constantly made to meet the increasing requirements of the district lighted by the company.

Waterworks were established in 1864: the reservoir is situated on a small eminence, about 70 feet above the level of the town, at Scartho, a village 2 miles distant, and contains about 300,000 gallons: an abundant supply of very good water is obtained from two artesian wells, supplying 2,000 gallons per minute, by means of three engines of 280 horse power collectively; the works are undergoing considerable alterations and extensions: new works are now (1884) being constructed at Cleethorpes, for the purpose of increasing the water supply to that locality, which, when completed, will be capable of supplying 1,000 gallons per minute.

The Corn Exchange is a building of red brick with stone dressings, in the Elizabethan style, erected in 1854, and designed by Messrs. Bellamy and Hardy, architects, of Lincoln: it has an hexagonal entrance, with a tower and bell-turret over: at the entrance on each side are offices and retiring-rooms.

The Mechanics' Institution, erected in 1856, at a cost of nearly £1,200, from the designs of Messrs. Bellamy and Hardy, is an edifice of colored brick and stone, in the Italian style, and includes a large news-room, library, reading and lecture rooms: the library contains about 2,000 volumes.

The Odd Fellows' Hall, Victoria street south, was built in 1854, at a cost of £800.

The Friendly Societies' Hall, Lower Spring street, erected in 1864, at a cost of £1,200, is a plain structure, and will seat about 700 persons.

The Temperance Hall, Cleethorpes road, built in 1870, at a cost of about £4,000, is a building in the Classic style, and will hold about 800 persons.

The Masonic Hall, Osborne street, the foundation stone of which was laid by John Sutcliffe esq. on the 22nd August, 1875, was erected at a cost of about £3,000, and besides the various rooms for the use of the Pelham Pillar Lodge of Freemasons, includes a spacious hall capable of seating nearly 300 persons.

The Working Men's and Sailors' Institute, near Cleethorpes road, is an iron building erected in 1870, chiefly under the auspices of E. Banister esq. as a place of resort for working men and sailors.

The Savings Bank is at the Corn Exchange.

The market for the sale of agricultural produce is held on Fridays, and for cattle on Mondays; in 1876 cattle sheds and pens were erected at Brighowgate, at a cost of £500: a market is also held on Saturday evening in the Market place, which is well attended and extensively supplied with provisions. The annual fairs have been obsolete for several years, but an attempt is now being made to establish two annual fairs for the sale of live stock on the first Monday in April and the Monday before the 11th October.

The Theatre Royal, erected in 1864, on a plot of leasehold ground in Victoria street north, is a neat and substantial building in the Italian style; including the stage, it is 95 feet long by 40 feet wide, clear, and will seat about 1,500 persons.

The new Prince of Wales' Theatre is in Freeman street, and will seat about 1,700 persons.

The Grimsby and District Hospital, formerly in Cleethorpes road, and now in South parade, West marsh, was originally founded by a number of gentlemen of the town, and opened May 18th, 1866. On the 17th July, 1876, the Countess Yarborough laid the foundation stone of the new hospital, which consists of an extensive series of buildings of red brick, with stone dressings, in a plain Gothic style, erected at a cost of over £4,000, and is available for 30 in-patients; there is also a dispensary for out-patients. The new Hospital was opened by Victoria, Countess of Yarborough, May 22, 1877, and is supported by voluntary contributions: during the year 1877-8, a total of 171 in-patients and 185 out-patients were under treatment; in 1881-2 there were 254 of the former and 581 of the latter, the annual expenditure amounting to nearly £1,450.

The Emigrants' Home, on the west side of the Royal Dock, originally intended by the Dock Company for a railway station, has been converted, by suitable alterations, to its present purpose, and is available for 300 inmates.

The Library, established in 1873, by the Rev. George Johnson (Catholic priest), for the use of working men of all denominations, is maintained at the board schools, Holme Hill.

Grimsby is the head-quarters of the First Lincolnshire Artillery Volunteer Brigade, commanded by Colonel G. M. Hutton, of Gate Burton Hall, and comprising the following corps, viz.—1st corps, two batteries, Boston; 2nd corps, three batteries, Grimsby; 3rd corps, one battery and a sub-division, Louth. The Lincolnshire Rifle Volunteers, whose head-quarters are at Lincoln, comprise nine companies, of which Grimsby furnishes the 5th.

The Anglo-French Steam Ship Company commenced operations here in 1856, with a capital of £100,000, for the purpose of establishing a regular trade between Grimsby and France; their fine fleet of steam vessels has, however, been purchased by the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway Company, and several additional vessels of great speed, plying three times a week to Hamburg, Rotterdam, Antwerp and other continental ports, are also in full work; Mr. George Kennett Hore is the superintendent, and Messrs. John Sutcliffe and Son are the shipping agents; there are also three boats a week to Dieppe.

A handsome bronze statue of the late Prince Consort, on a granite pedestal, presented to the town by Sir Edward Watkin M.P. in 1879, and unveiled by the Princess of Wales, stands opposite the Royal hotel.

The town possesses some well-regulated hotels and inns. The Royal hotel, built in 1864-5 by a company, on land adjoining the offices of the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Railway Company, near the Royal Dock and opposite the Grimsby Docks station, is a large and handsome building, in the Italian style. The Yarborough, close to the town station, was erected in 1851. The Ship hotel has been rebuilt on the site of the old house, and re-fitted: the White Hart is an old-established market house. Amongst the establishments for trade and public purposes are ship yards, ship chandleries, block and mast works, rope walks, timber and coal wharfs, brick fields, saw mills, breweries, linseed cake, bone and corn mills, and creosoting works.

The People's Park, comprising a site of 27 acres, presented to the town by Mr. E. Heneage M.P. was opened by the Duke and Duchess of Connaught on the 17th August, 1883: it has been very tastefully laid out by Messrs. William Barrow and Son, of Barrow Ash, near Derby, and forms a pleasant place of recreation for the people, including an ornamental lodge at the principal entrance, cricket-ground, bowling-green, archery-ground, lawn-tennis ground, a piece of ornamental water, about two acres in extent, refreshment pavilion, band-stands and shelters.

Grimsby was anciently the seat of several monastic institutions of some interest; these comprised a Benedictine nunnery, dedicated to St. Leonard, and founded before 1185; a house of Austin Canons, founded by Henry I. and a monastery of Franciscans, or Grey Friars, established in 1308, it is said in expiation of the hanging of a priest, named Richard of Nottingham, by the then mayor of the town.

The Abbey of Wellow, or Welhove, near here, was built and endowed by Henry I. about 1,110, for Black Canons, and dedicated to St. Augustine; at its surrender in 1539, the net yearly revenues were estimated at £152: the possessions of the abbey were granted 22nd May, 1545, to Sir Thomas Heneage.

There was also at Grimsby a house of the Knights Hospitallers, believed to have stood on Spittal hill, and probably endowed by the Abbot of Wellow, and others: at the Dissolution, the revenues passed to the mayor and burgesses.

The area of the parish is 1,737 acres of land and 1,101 of water; rateable value, £63,228; the population of the parish and municipal borough in 1871 was 20,244, and in 1881, 28,503; of the parliamentary borough, 26,982 in 1871, and 45,351 in 1881, viz.: Great Grimsby, 28,503; Bradley, 99; Cleethorpes, 2,840; Clee, with Weelsby, 11,620; Great Coates, 245; Little Coates, 60; Laceby, 1,017; Scartho 224, and Waltham 743.

NEW CLEE and WEELSBY are extensive suburbs of Great Grimsby, on the east, but in the parish of Clee; the names of the residents are given at the end of the names. In 1879 New Clee was formed in to an ecclesiastical parish from Clee civil parish.

The church of St. John the Evangelist, erected in 1878 from designs by Mr. James Fowler, of Louth, at a cost of about £6,500, is a building of brick and Ancaster stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave and aisles, vestry, organ chamber, western porch or narthex, and a bell gable at the western end; the church has sedilia and credence, and a reredos in three arched compartments: the stained east window was presented by James Meadows esq. of Beaconthorpe: there are sittings for 600 persons. The register dates from the year 1878. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £325, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Henry Hutchinson M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. The population in 1881 was 9,131.

GUNBY (or GUNBY ST. NICHOLAS) is a small village and parish, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, hundred of Beltisloe, petty sessional division of Spittlegate, union and county court district of Grantham, rural deanery of Beltisloe, archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, bounded on the west by the county of Leicester and on the east by the river Witham. The village lies 6 miles south-west from Corby, which is the nearest station, 10 south from Grantham and 13 north-west from Stamford. The church of St. Nicholas, situated on a slight eminence, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave and a western tower containing a clock and 3 bells: the stained east window was the gift of Mrs. Osborne; and a new organ, western screen, reredos, choir desk and ornaments for the communion table have been presented by the rector: the church was entirely rebuilt in 1869 by the Rev. George Osborne, then rector. The register dates from the year 1715. The living is a rectory, consolidated with that of Stainby, joint net yearly value £365, including 165 acres of glebe at Gunby, in the gift of John Chase esq. and held since 1877 by the Rev. Wilfrid Augustus Holden Thorold M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge, who resides at the rectory, Stainby. The Earl of Dysart is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay and rock. The chief crops are cereals. The area is 963 acres; rateable value, £1,096; the population in 1881 was 110.

GUNBY (or GUNBY ST. PETER) is a small parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Wold division of Candleshoe wapentake, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Spilsby, Candleshoe No. 1 rural deanery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 5 miles east-by-north from Spilsby and close to Burgh station on the East Lincolnshire railway. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt at the beginning of the last century, was again rebuilt in 1870 from designs of Mr. James Fowler, of Louth, and is now an edifice in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a tower with conical roof containing 4 bells: there are two stained windows in the nave, and the church retains some valuable and interesting brasses: the earliest of these relates to the Massingberds, two of which family it has in turn served to commemorate: it now consists of effigies of a knight and his lady beneath a good double canopy: the former is in full armour, with surcoat and collar of S.S. and his wife wears a similar collar: the slab enclosing these figures has also a shield of arms quartering Massingberd with Bernak, Halliday and other coats: a portion of a border inscription also remains, but this was substituted for the original inscription in the sixteenth century, and commemorates Sir Thomas Massingberd kt. who died in 1552; the effigies represent Thomas Massingberd, of Gunby, 1405, and Johanna (Bernak), his wife; on another slab of marble is a brass effigy, with arms and inscription to William Lodyngton, Puisné Justice of the Common Pleas, 1416-19. The register dates from the year 1724. The living is a rectory, consolidated with the vicarage of Welton-le-Marsh, tithe rent-charge £145, joint gross yearly value £330, in the gift of Mrs. Hairby and C. L. Massingberd esq. and held since 1871 by the Rev. William Maxwell Smith, who resides at Welton-le-Marsh. Gunby Park, the seat of Charles Langton Massingberd esq. J.P. is a fine mansion, situated in a well-wooded park, and commanding extensive views of the sea and of the surrounding country. Charles Langton Massingberd esq. is lord of the manor and sole landowner; this family is of high antiquity in Lincolnshire, and at an early period held lands at Sulterton, of which Lambert Massingberd, who lived in the reigns of Edward I. & II. was one of the first possessors. Thomas Massingberd, in the fourteenth century, married Juliana, daughter and co-heir of Sir Hugh Bernake, of Burgh; and Robert, his son, wedded Agnes, daughter and sole heir of Robert Halliday, of Burgh, and hence came the quarterings mentioned above; Christopher Massingberd was Chancellor of Lincoln, 1532, and archdeacon of Stow, 1543; Sir Thomas Massingberd, whose monument is in the church, resided chiefly at Bratoft, the principal seat of the family, till the close of the seventeenth century; a later Thomas represented Calais in the Parliament of 1552, and was buried here in 1584: during the Civil War Henry Massingberd, of Christ's College, Cambridge, and the Inner Temple, raised a troop of horse for the service of the Parliament, and was created by the Protector a baronet by patent, dated July 16, 1658. Elizabeth Mary Anne, daughter of Henry Massingberd esq. who inherited the estates in 1780, became the eventual heiress of the family, and married Peregrine Langton esq. who thereupon assumed the name of Massingberd, and was the ancestor of the present lord of the manor. The soil is sand and loam; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and potatoes; the area in acres is 606; rateable valne, £1,006; the population in 1881 was 80.

GUNHOUSE (or GUNNESS) is a small village and township, pleasantly situated on the east bank of the river Trent and deriving its name from forming a ness or promontory in the river Trent; it was formerly a chapelry in the parish of West Halton, but in 1861 was united with Burringham and formed into an ecclesiastical parish, from the civil parishes of Bottesford, Frodingham and West Halton, in the Northern division of the county, parts of Lindsey, north division of Manley wapentake, union of Glanford Brigg, county court district of Barton-on-Humber, petty sessional division of Winterton, rural deanery of Manlake, archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln: it is 4½ miles east from Crowle and 18 north from Gainsborough. The South Yorkshire railway crosses the Trent here by a bridge and joins the Trent and Ancholme railway, and has a station here, called Gunness and Burringham station. The church (dedication unknown) is a small and plain building of brick in cement, consisting of chancel and nave and a belfry containing 1 bell. The register dates from the year 1851. The living is a rectory, with Burringham annexed, tithe rent-charge £200, joint gross yearly value £220, including 1 acre of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich, and held since 1861 by the Rev. Walter Allcroft B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The rectory house was built in 1866, on a site given by Sir Robert Sheffield bart. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. Here is a wharf for the shipment of iron ore, brought by railway from Frodingham. Sir Robert Sheffield bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor. The trustees of the late Edward Scholfield M.D. of Doncaster, are the principal landowners, but there are many small owners. The soil is alluvial; subsoil, moor. The chief crops are wheat, potatoes and flax. The area is 2,808 acres, in the township 501 acres; rateable value, £1,079; the population in 1881 was 266 in West Halton parish and 68 in Frodingham parish and in the ecclesiastical parish of Gunness-cum-Burringham, 864.

HACCONBY with STENFIELD.

HACCONBY is a parish, township and village, 4 miles north from Bourn, 1½ north from Morton station, 6 south from Falkingham, in the Southern division of the county, parts of Kesteven, Aveland hundred, Bourn union and county court district, rural deanery of Aveland No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, north chapel, nave of three bays, aisles and a tower with spire containing 4 bells: at the east end of the south aisle are an altar bracket and piscina and two slabs with crosses of the thirteenth century: there is also a piscina in the chancel, and on the pavement a slab commemorating an ecclesiastic, of which the inscription, when perfect, ran:—"Iste fuit Rector de Brunn vocitatus:" there are two mediæval oak chests, one of which has very excellent traceried panelling: the chapel, which is Perpendicular, has stone seats on the north and east sides and a piscina, and there is here a fine brass to the late Rev. Samuel Hopkinson, vicar and his wife, designed by Mr. A. W. Pugin: in the south wall of the chantry is a freestone tablet with a rhyming acrostic to John Audley, 1648, and at its north-east angle, in the churchyard, a rich canopy which once covered an effigy: the tower of ashlar and rubble is of the fourteenth century. The register dates from the year 1703. The living is a vicarage, annexed to that of Morton, joint gross yearly value from 219 acres of glebe £430, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held since 1862 by the Rev. Walter Stockdale M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at Morton. Sir Richard Brownlow left to this parish two yearly rent-charges—one of £3, for educating six children and one of £1, for the poor, who have also the interest of £55 left by different donors. A few yards north of the church is an ancient brick building, formerly protected by a gateway. The principal landowners are Lord Aveland P.C., D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, Thomas Lawrance esq. of Hacconby hall, William Munton Lawrance esq. and W. Brown esq. The soil is loam and sandy peat; subsoil, higher parts rock, lower parts silt. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans and peas. The area is 3,220 acres; rateable value, £3,842; the population in 1881 of the entire parish was 412.

STENFIELD (or Stainfield) is a hamlet of Hacconby, about 2 miles west. The poor of this hamlet have the interest of £47 6s. 2d. left by Henry Fryer in 1822. There was anciently a Roman station formed apparently on account of the existence on this spot of mineral springs, which retained their popularity until the middle of the eighteenth century; many Roman coins have been met with, and there was once a chapel here.

HAGWORTHINGHAM is a large village and parish, in the Mid division of the county, parts of Lindsey, Hill hundred, Horncastle union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Hill No. 2, and archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, 4½ miles north-west from Spilsby railway station and 6 east from Horncastle. The church of the Holy Trinity is an old building of stone and brick, in the Transitional and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a tower containing 8 bells: the chancel and south aisle were rebuilt in 1859, in the Early English style, and the church generally restored, under the superintendence of Mr. James Fowler, architect, of Louth, the material being sandstone, with freestone dressings: the east window is a memorial to the Cheales family: in the north aisle a stained window was erected in 1865, to the memory of the late Prince Consort, and there is one in the chancel. The parish register dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, yearly value £404, in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln, and held by the Rev. Cecil Edward Fisher M.A. late student of Christ Church, Oxford, and prebend of Lincoln. The rectory house was built in 1841, at a cost of about £2,000. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. In 1651 Mr. Thomas Cheales left a yearly rent-charge of £8 for the poor parishioners, of which £5 6s. 8d. only is now paid out of an estate in this parish belonging to the Rev. Henry John Cheales M.A. vicar of Friskney. The poor's land, amounting to upwards of 7 acres, was allotted at the Enclosure, and is now let for more than £13 a year. Earl Manvers, who is lord of the manor, and the Rev. Henry John Cheales M.A. Sir Henry Day Ingilby bart. of Ripley, Yorks, the trustees of the late Rev. W. A. Bathurst and Mrs. Wingate, are the principal landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay and sand. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley, seeds and roots.
